IT is not often that we are able to obtain any definite insight into the working of the complicated system of inland taxation which prevails in China; but some very important light is thrown upon the subject in the Report on Trade at Ningpo from Mr. Acting-Consul COOPER, which we recently noticed. He states that the trade in British cotton manufactured goods is still entirely in the hands of the guild called the Foreign Piece Goods Guild, which, by the monthly payment of a thousand strings of cash (say £200) to the Governor of the province, obtains not only an exemption from lekin tax for all cotton manufactures imported by it, but also the aid of all the officials at the barriers in preventing goods without its stamp passing into the country. The monopoly that has been created obtains exemption from lekin only, and not from transit duty and tolls, but is of such a nature that retailers from all parts do not dare to offer for sale unmarked foreign cottons, and that foreign merchants are entirely excluded. Mr. COOPER does not appear to attach so much importance to the injuriousness of the effect which is produced upon foreign trade as it deserves. He looks upon it chiefly in the light of the additional payment of some £2,400 a year; but it is clear that the system of monopoly which it is the means of producing must have the effect of very greatly hampering the trade, and the details which he furnishes are of value as showing how the lekin and other inland duties are made the means of creating monopolies. The matter has an important bearing upon the results which would be brought about by our officially recognising the right of the Chinese officials to levy lekin upon goods the moment they had left the foreign settlements. A farm of precisely the same character as that above described would be instituted, and a complete monopoly established by means of which the local officials would benefit by obtaining larger taxes, the native guilds by being protected in the trade, while foreign goods would be completely excluded from the interior through any other channel than that of the monopolists. No doubt a system of this character is in force even at present to a great extent; but this is a different matter altogether to our officially recognising it, and thus giving our full support to Chinese obstructiveness and to the system of levying irregular and arbitrary duties, against which all the commercial stipulations of our Treaty are directed. The French Treaty with China has a clause directly declaring trade monopolies contrary to the interests of the foreign merchants illegal; and we have the right to avail ourselves of this fact in virtue of the most favoured nation clause. It would, therefore, be in the highest degree impolitic to do anything which would have the effect of diminishing the force of such representations as we might at times feel justified in making to the Chinese Government on the subject.

WE are glad to find that the scheme for re-building the Praya at Hong Kong is proceeding, though unfortunately somewhat slowly. It appears from an explanation which Mr. LOWCOCK has done good service in eliciting from the Governor at the meeting of the Legislative Council that, under the impression that the proposed wall would have to withstand the full force of the sea, instead of that of the sea in a land-locked harbour, Sir JAMES COODE suggested some modifications of Mr. PRICE'S plan which would add to the strength of the wall but needlessly increase its cost. We believe that revised plans are now on the way from Hong Kong, which the Colonial-office will decide on without loss of time.

THE Crown Agents for the Colonies have been authorised to receive applications for £100,000 Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Straits Settlements Government Debentures. Full particulars of the issue are given in our advertising columns.

WE understand that Lord CARNARVON will receive the members of the Straits Settlements Association at the Colonial-office to-morrow. A meeting of the Association will be held at the office, 34, Leadenhall-street, this day.

THE appointment of Mr. ISAAC SWINBURNE BOND to be a member of the Legislative Council of the Straits Settlements is gazetted.

THE CHINESE NAVAL OFFICERS.

We have received some further particulars regarding the Chinese Naval officers who have recently come to Europe, and whose movements we have noticed from time to time. Three were admitted into the Channel Fleet in September last, taking the rank of sub-lieutenants. Of these, one went on board the Minotaur, one on board the Defence, and one on board the Black Prince, and by last accounts were getting on very well. A further batch of three are to serve on board British men-of-war; namely, one on the Bellerophon, stationed at Bermudas, and two on the Agincourt, now stationed in Besika Bay. They will start for their destinations in about two weeks' time. The remaining six of the twelve who came to England were admitted into Greenwich College, and we learn now that they obtained very good marks on their Entrance examination. One of the Chinese professors of the Naval School, at Foochow, who accompanied the present Mission as secretary, is studying at King's College.

With regard to the students in France, we are informed that they are distributed as follows:—Two are to study law in Paris, and will go to the Ecole Libre des Sciences Politiques on the 15th inst. Some six or nine, who are at present at the Forges et Chantiers at Marseilles, will, it is expected, be admitted into the Ecole du Génie Maritime at Cherbourg. There are also three more at Marseilles in the same establishment, who are intended to enter the Ecole Maritime at Brest in June next; and one is also at La Seyne, near Toulon, studying naval architecture at the Forges et Chantiers there; while there are four studying machinery and metallurgy at Creusot, and one at the Ecole des Mineurs at St. Etienne.

The accounts from the various students are all satisfactory. They keep their health and make good progress with their work. The Chinese Government are so well pleased with the course things have taken that they have determined to send five more pupils from Foochow, accompanied by M. de Seyonzac, the present Director of the Arsenal there. This establishment has now been placed almost entirely under Chinese management. There are still twelve European employés in it, but the direction has been handed over to the Chinese who was formerly secretary to Mr. Giquel, who superintends the works, while another Chinese is superintendent of the schools. The management of the establishment will continue on this footing until the students connected with the present Mission return, when the whole Arsenal will be placed under their management.

Literature, Science, &c.

The announcements of Christmas publications fully come up to the expectations which have been formed, considering the dulness which has been the characteristic of the closing year. Mr. Murray announces Dr. Schliemann's Mycænæ with 500 illustrations, and an introduction by Mr. Gladstone. Messrs. Smith and Elder will publish a cheaper illustrated edition of Thackeray; Longmans announce the Life of Pius IX., by Adolphus Trollope, while many other works of general interest will be forthcoming. Good Words for January is to contain the first part of a new novel by William Black, "Macleod of Dore"—the scene of which is laid partly in the Highlands and partly in London.

The Life of Jenghiz Khan, by R. K. Douglas. London: Trübner and Co., Ludgate-hill.—This work will be welcomed as throwing new and valuable light upon the history of the celebrated Jenghiz Khan, the founder of the Yuen Dynasty; who, succeeding at the age of thirteen to his father's small and inhospitable tract on the River Onon, ended by pushing his conquests from the China Sea to the banks of the Dnieper. The life of this celebrated conqueror has been hitherto obscured in consequence of the small amount of attention which Chinese, like all native writers of oriental history, have bestowed to events outside their countries, even when most intimately affecting them. For this reason it is only by combining the Chinese records of Jenghis Khan's life with what the Persian and other historians tell us that we can form a complete idea of what he achieved. Mr. Douglas prefaces the translation of the record from Chinese sources with a very well-compiled narrative, which will be of great assistance in attaining the end indicated—while the Chinese account itself is of much interest.

The Treaties between the Empire of China and Foreign Powers. Shanghai: The North China Herald Office; London: Trübner and Co.—This work, to which we have already directed attention, will supply a want much felt at the present time. It collects together all the treaties between China and Foreign Powers, and thus makes it easy to refer to our actual position upon any given point, which it is impossible to ascertain without consulting other treaties as in some cases we are entitled to more than is expressed in our own treaty, by virtue of the most favoured nation clause. The present collection gives, in addition to the different treaties, the various regulations agreed upon from time to time; and has also Sir Rutherford Alcock's Convention of 1869, and the Chefoo Agreement, now under consideration of the Government.

The China Review for July and August publishes, in addition to its usual selection of interesting papers, one of special value, from the pen of the Rev. Dr. Eitel, on "Chinese Studies and Interpretation." With a view to the improvement of interpreting in China, he makes the same suggestion which we put forward some time back. He states that the Student-Interpreters' scheme, as organised by Sir Hercules Robinson, is in its main features sound, practical and efficient; but it might be improved in its mode of working by sending the candidates, selected by the prescribed competitive examinations, for two years or more to Oxford, and placing them under the tuition of Professor Dr. Legge, as unattached students of the University. He states that he has urged this plan on another occasion, and has since learned from Dr. Legge that he has made exactly the same proposition to the Foreign-office, offering to engage a native Pekingese teacher to assist him in the tuition of the students to be placed in his charge. He has also reason to believe that the present Acting Colonial Secretary of Hong Kong, the Hon. C. C. Smith, M.A., has on more than one occasion recommended the same plan to his superiors. It is to be hoped that the Government will see the advisability of acting upon such good authority. Mr. Chaloner Alabaster, of the Consular Service, continues his papers on Chinese law. Some of the "decisions" published read somewhat comically, and show the crude state in which Chinese legal science still remains; as, for example, the following:—

Decision of Wen Tai-Ching.

Recovery of Debts.

Hsü Lang-ching, the plaintiff, is a dealer in cotton from Honan; he supplied some by order to Shen Ai-men and Sun Tuan-cho, and although they have already worked it up into clothes, his money bag is still empty. At the hearing defendants have no excuse and promise payment. We order them in addition to be flogged for the greater security of strangers trading here.

Note.—Delay in payment is punishable.

Whether the flogging is merely a means of "security" or the weaving up of unpaid-for cotton is regarded as a quasi-delict, those learned in "Ancient Law" may perhaps be able to determine; but to the ordinary mind the decisions seem little short of puerile. Would not Mr. Alabaster do better service by endeavouring to explain such leading principles of Chinese law as he may be able to speak upon from his long experience as Assessor at the Shanghai Mixed Court?

M. Theodore Mueller, of Geneva, announces L'Empire Japonais, by Léon Metchnikoff, which will contain a complete description of Japan, and will be composed of four parts, and an album with coloured illustrations.

The Geographical Magazine for November contains the continuation of Mr. James Morrison's description of the island of Formosa, and also a very readable paper on the island of Perim, from the pen of Lieut. King, of the Bombay Staff Corps.

Professor Nordenskiöld's plan for his Arctic voyage of 1878 is described in the Geographische Blatter (Heft. iii. and iv.) of the Bremen Geographical Society. He intends to sail for the Siberian seas in the beginning of July, 1878, in a specially-adapted steamer, with a crew of one superior officer and eighteen volunteers of the Royal Swedish Navy; four scientific men, one doctor and four Norwegian ice-pilots will also form part of the ship's company. The voyage will be directed, first of all, to reach the mouth of the Yenisei and Cape Chelyuskin, the extreme north point of the mainland of Asia. If successful in doubling the latter point, Nordenskiöld hopes to be able to pass eastward along the coast between the new Siberian Islands and Kellet (Wrangell) Land, through Long's Strait to Behring Strait and the Pacific. Should the expedition find insurmountable difficulties at Cape Chelyuskin, it will winter in Taimyr Bight, in the mouth of the Piasina, or in the Yenisei.

Mr. Layard has obtained for the trustees of the British Museum some interesting antiquities from the neighbourhood of Lake Van. These relics are expected to throw light on the history of the ancient kingdom of Van or the Minneans, a people who were important opponents of Assyrian rule, and who helped to accomplish the overthrow of Nineveh.

Meetings of Societies.

At the Numismatic Society, on the 18th ult., John Evans, Esq., F.R.S., President, in the chair, Mr. Barclay V. Head read a paper, supplementary to his former article, on "Cyzicene Staters." A fresh instalment of thirty staters from the same hoard, presenting new types, formed the occasion for some additional notes on the subject, and also for a review of M. Six's criticisms on the previous essay. The President read a paper on "Three Roman Medallions, of Postumus, Commodus, and Probus," from his own collection, the first presenting considerable interest.

A paper, entitled "Free Trade and Protection, from an Indian Point of View," has been read at the Sassoon Mechanics' Institute, by Kashinath Trimbak Telang. Mr. Kashinath of course advocates the maintenance of the present customs duties on the import of piece goods into British India, and his reasons are entitled to much consideration. He displays an exhaustive acquaintance with modern authorities on political economy, and also with the contents of our magazines.

Monetary and Commercial.

It is notified that the Crown Agents for the Colonies are prepared to receive applications for £100,000 in Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Debentures of the Straits Settlements Government, being part of a sum of £150,000 authorised by ordinance, and sanctioned by the Secretary of State for the Colonies. The loan is incurred for the purposes of covering expenses incurred in the suppression of the Malayan disturbances, to make advances to the State of Perak, and for public works. Tenders will be received not later than the 15th inst., but allotments will not be made below £98 per £100 bond. The debt is to be redeemed in about fourteen years, a cumulated sinking fund of 5½ per cent. being created, commencing in November, 1878, for annual drawings at par, or purchase in the open market. The interest commences from the 15th inst., and is payable in May and November.

The Eastern Telegraph Company's traffic receipts for the month of October amounted to £37,402, against £33,383 in the corresponding period of 1876. Those of the Eastern Extension, &c., Telegraph Company amounted to £21,388, against £19,211. The Great Northern Telegraph Company's Traffic receipts in October, 1877, were £21,210. The total receipts from January 1 to October 31, 1877, were £172,657, and in the corresponding months of 1876 £177,785, 1875 £140,390.

The report of the Eastern Extension Telegraph Company for the half-year ended 30th June last shows that after payment of debenture interest, &c., the sum of £48,418 is left for division. The two quarterly dividends of 1½ per cent. each took £49,938, and it is proposed to place £28,782 towards the final payment for the Rangoon-Penang cable, leaving £13,300 to be carried forward.

The tone of the Tea market during the week has continued much as reported for some time past—heavy arrivals, numerous musters, and large public sales upon an unwilling trade—with the inevitable result of depression and despondency. Prices for all common kinds continue unchanged. The demand for export and the deliveries for home consumption are very large, but the supply more than counterbalances the demand. At the same time the latest telegrams from China continue in favour of a considerable falling off in the total export; but until this becomes more definitely established—indeed actually felt—neither the trade nor importers will place confidence in it.

The total quantity of tea delivered from the bonded warehouses in London for the week ended the 3rd inst. was 3,716,775 lb., or a fall compared with the previous return of 7 per cent. The amount taken for home consumption was 2,304,824 lbs., while 759,070 lbs. was removed coastwise, 570,160 lbs. was exported, 79,463 lbs. was sent coastwise for exportation, and 3,258 lbs. was for ships' stores. During the week the duty received fell short of that of the preceding week by £2,370, or close upon 4 per cent., the respective totals being £59,991 and £57,621.

The total quantity of tea delivered from the bonded warehouses in London during last month was 18,600,836 lbs., which was 2,234,508 lbs. more than was taken out of bond during the month of October, 1876. Of this quantity 10,897,538 lbs. went for home consumption, 3,520,552 lbs. for exportation, 17,724 lbs. for ships' stores, 3,472,302 lbs. went coastwise to various outports, and 693,170 lbs. went coastwise for immediate exportation. The tea duty paid in London during the month was £272,438 9s., which was £21,854 7s. 6d. more than was derived from the same source of revenue during the corresponding month of last year.

In the Silk market there has been a fair amount of business doing on the basis of the easier rates established after the public sales, chiefly in Tsatlees and Japans. The tone of the market continues good, though the deliveries have not been equal to those of last month.

In the Produce Markets there has been no recovery from the quietude which has so long prevailed. Coffee has been in large supply, and is lower in value. Sugar is extremely inactive, and a further fall has occurred in low brown qualities. Floating cargoes of Rice have been quitted at reduced quotations. The market for Hemp, Pepper, Sago, and Tapioca has been steady. Tin has been fairly active; Straits is quoted £69 10s. to £70, Banca £71 to £71 10s. per ton.

The market for Bar Silver has been very quiet during the week, and prices have varied but little. The arrivals have been small, being £23,920 from America, and about £113,000 from Germany. We quote the rate to-day as 54⅞d. to 55d. per oz. with a firm market. There have been no arrivals of Mexican Dollars, and the market remains inactive.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

In the Board of Trade Returns for the month of October some indication of an improved export trade is afforded, which, if it is to be relied upon as the beginning of a recovery from the long period of depression, must be a source of general satisfaction. The exports of British and Irish produce for the month amounted to £18,372,693, against £17,779,274 in October of last year, and £18,422,544 in 1875, this being about 3¼ per cent. above the total of October, 1876, and fractionally less than that of the same month in 1875. For the ten months the decline compared with last year is 1½ per cent., the exports amounting to £166,036,212, against £168,814,721 in 1876, and £187,788,138 in 1875. The exports of cotton yarn have increased 1⅞ per cent. in quantity and 5½ per cent. in value; cotton piece goods increased 2¾ per cent. in quantity, and 5½ per cent. in value; linen and jute yarn decreased 4¾ per cent. in quantity, and 13 per cent. in value; linen piece goods increased 3½ per cent. in quantity and nearly 7 per cent. in value; woollen yarn decreased 13¾ per cent. in quantity, and 16¾ per cent. in value; woollen cloths increased 13½ per cent. in quantity and 10 per cent. in value; worsted stuffs decreased 2¼ per cent. in quantity, and 6¾ per cent. in value; silk manufactures decreased 2½ per cent. in value; coal, coke, &c., decreased 15¾ per cent. in quantity, and 19¾ per cent. in value; and iron and steel increased 5½ per cent. in quantity, and 1¾ per cent. in value. The imports of foreign and colonial produce for the month are valued at £36,537,002, against £29,657,517 in the corresponding month of last year, and £29,196,220 in 1875. In the ten months the imports were £329,195,405, against £311,874,377 in 1876 and £310,710,915 in 1875. The principal increases are in wheat, which stands for the month at £3,837,414, against £1,464,351 last year, and £2,826,294 in 1875, coffee, sugar, tea, timber, and wool. Silk shows a considerable decrease. Coffee has increased in quantity only 5¾ per cent., but the value is 13½ per cent. higher. We have imported 43 per cent. less cocoa, but the reduction in the value is only 20¾ per cent. Tea has increased about 73 per cent. in both quantity and value; rice has increased 33¾ per cent. in quantity, and as much as 49 per cent. in value.

The total imports of gold and silver for the month were £2,612,338, against £4,264,238 in October of 1876, and £2,360,600 in 1875. In the ten months the total was £31,494,339, against £32,988,901 in 1876, and £28,817,696 in 1875. The total exports of gold and silver for the month amounted to £3,439,354, against £3,483,079 last year, and £4,098,094. For the ten months the exports were £34,813,139, against £19,638,594 in 1876, and £20,893,320. For October, 1875, the exports exceeded the imports by £1,737,494, in 1876 the imports exceeded the exports by £981,159, and last month the exports exceeded the imports by £847,016. In the ten months of 1875 the imports exceeded the exports by £7,924,366, and in 1876 by £13,350,327, whilst this year the exports have exceeded the imports by £3,318,800.

The following is an extract from these Returns of the figures which refer to our Export trade with China and the Far East:—

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Arthur Capel and Co.'s Circular says :—Our market has been extremely dull and depressed, and the amount of business by private contract has been unusually small, the quantity offered at public sale without reserve being heavy, and enabling the trade to supply many of their wants in small lines. Prices have generally ruled in favour of buyers, especially for fair black and red-leaf Congous, of which a large portion of the public auctions consisted. The demand for good to fine kinds is sluggish, but prices are fairly steady, Importers holding these kinds with more confidence. Congous.—Red-leaf kinds : Siftings have sold from 6d. to 7d. per lb., beidg ½d. per lb. lower ; common to fair common are saleable from 7¼d. to 7⅝d. per lb., good common selling slowly at 8d. to 8½d. per lb. when free from dust. Fair Kaisow kinds have been heavy of sale, and at public auction 8⅜d. to 10d. per lb. has only been realised for very desirable parcels ; privately they are dull of sale ; medium to good kinds meet with but little inquiry. Fine Ching Wos have been in request, but fine to finest Kaisows difficult of sale. Pak Lin kinds show no material alteration. Black-leaf kinds : Common to fair common have been saleable at 7¼d. to 7½d. per lb. ; good common to fair kinds have sold at comparatively low rates, from 8d. to 9d. per lb., showing fully ½d. per lb. decline ; fair to good medium kinds sell slowly at rather under former prices ; good to fine are steady, but business in them is very limited, finest also being dull. New make kinds : Common to fair have realised previous prices ; good to fine have sold from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 6d. per lb., being full prices. Oolongs : Fair to good Amoy and Swatow kinds show no improvement ; good to fine Formosa kinds have sold at full prices. Souchongs : Common to fair are only saleable at low rates ; good to fine show no material change in prices. Scented Teas : Canton Capers have been in large supply, and common grades have been forced off at auction at very low prices, 6⅜d. to 7d. per lb. having been the price at which one parcel was sold ; whilst privately it is difficult to get on at 8d. to 8½d. ; fair kinds have been better maintained ; medium to good have sold from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 5d., being fully 1d. per lb. decline ; finest also showing a similar reduction. Orange Pekoes : The Macao kinds are very difficult to sell, and at auction common to fair short leaf kinds have sold 1d. per lb. lower. Long leaf kinds are rather more saleable, but even in these prices have given way 1d. per lb. Foochow kinds : Capers are only saleable at low rates. Orange Pekoes has been in full supply, and are difficult to move even at a decline of 1d. per lb. Green Teas : The improvement lately quoted has not been maintained. Ping Suey kinds have sold at 1d. to 2d. per lb. lower ; whilst Moyune kinds, with the exception of Young Hysons, which have supported previous rates, are also selling in favour of buyers.

Messrs. J. C. Sillar and Co.'s Circular says :—We have again to report an unsatisfactory market. The quantity of tea forced for sale during the fortnight has been greater than the trade were prepared to take, and a further decline in price has been the result. The deliveries last month have reached the extraordinary amount of 18,780,000lbs. The arrivals, on the other hand, have been 29,422,000 lbs., the stock being thus increased by about 11,000,000 lbs. In the above arrivals are included the cargoes of several vessels which arrived in September, but which did not appear in the dock returns on the 30th of that month. There are also included no less than 6,500,000 lbs. of Indian Teas imported in October. Telegrams from China report the shipments on the 25th inst. at 128,000,000 lbs. Last year on that day they were 133,000,000 lbs., exclusive of the cargo of the Sarpedon, but inclusive of the shipments to Russia. Accounts from China lead us to the belief that the total shipments for the season will fall short of last year's by about 16,000,000 lbs.

SILK.

Messrs. Waithman and Co.'s Circular says :—We have had a much quieter market, and a portion of the rise has been lost. The most atisfactory feature is the improvement in the deliveries, which have sbeen gradually increasing each month since May, and show for October an excess of 33 per cent. as compared with those of the previous month.

Messrs. Hogg, Walker and Co.'s Circular says : There is very little doing in the market at present, and in the absence of demand prices show a tendency to further weakness. The Deliveries continue on a fairly satisfactory scale, being from 1st to 7th inst. inclusive :—China 459 bales, Canton 162 bales, Japan 156 bales, Bengal 8 bales, total 785 bales.

Messrs. D. O'Donoghue and Co.'s New York Circular says :—Our last bore date Sept. 20, and for the first fortnight of the interval the market remained in much the same condition as then reported. With prices gradually weakening in spite of the firmer tone of the China and European markets. The later advices from those markets confirming the advance and the stability of the movement has naturally caused holders here to show greater firmness, and under the pressure prices have recovered to, and in some instances have been a little above those last reported. To-day the market is firm at quotations. Manufacturers generally are lightly stocked with Raws, and in consequence of the difficulty of obtaining compensating rates for their products, take only sufficient quantities to cover their most pressing wants.

ORCHELLA.—687 ballots 20 bags Ceylon bought in at 48s. to 50s. per cwt.

PLUMBAGO.—At auction the good supply of 467 barrels Ceylon, mostly of new import, met a fair demand, and fully one-half was disposed of at previous rates. Lump, very low 7s., good bright small at 13s. 9d., selected bold, &c., 14s. to 14s. 6d., one lot superior soft small at 15s., middling to fine bright chips 9s. 6d. to 11s. 6d., middling to good dust 8s. to 10s. per cwt.

PEPPER.—Black: Only small sales have been made privately at 3¼d. to 3 5-16d. for Penang, and 3 9-19d. for Singapore. Moderate supplies, amounting to 1,836 bags at the public sales were chiefly sold at about the previous value; 766 bags Singapore sold at 3¼d. to 3⅜d., chiefly the former price, two lots fine washed 3⅜d. to 4d.; of 1,000 bags Penang 400 bags good sifted West Coast sold at 3⅜d., the remainder bought in at 3¼d. to 3⅜d. White: At auction 737 bags Singapore went off slowly, and only 360 bags sold without change in value, fair at 6¼d. to 6½d., good fair at 6¾d., but chiefly low brown import 1875, without reserve, at 5⅝d., the remainder bought in at 6¼d. to 7d.

RATTANS.—At auction of 60 tons offered 25 tons sold, Penang, one lot sound £23 10s., damaged £17 to £23 15s. per ton, 16 bales split sound at 10½d. to 1s. 4½d. per lb., 14 cases manufactured withdrawn.

RICE.—Business has been done in floating cargoes at a decline of 3d. per cwt. from previous transactions, and the market generally is dull. Three floating cargoes have been sold, viz:—The Secondo B., 1,157 tons Rangoon, off coast, at 10s. 9d., quay terms Liverpool; the Chanaral, 864 tons Rangoon, off coast, at 10s. 3½d., for the Continent; and the Daporta Padre, 907 tons Rangoon, off coast, at 10s. 6¾d., for the Continent. In auction 9,406 bags Japan were chiefly bought in, middling at 11s. 3d. to 11s. 9d., good 12s. 6d., only about 1,200 bags being sold, heated at 9s. 6d. For arrival 100 tons Raree Ballam, November-December steamer, have been sold at 8s. 9d. ex quay.

SPICES.—Cassia Lignea: In auction of 1,120 boxes about 500 boxes good fair unworked sold at 44s. to 44s. 6d., being a further decline of 1s. per cwt., the remainder bought in. Cassia Buds: Of 100 boxes China offered only 10 boxes sold at 73s., being rather dearer. Cinnamon: 200 boxes broken China bought in at 8d. Cinnamon Chips: 125 bags Ceylon sold, middling at 4¾d., bark at 3½d. Cloves: Of 14 cases Penang offered 3 cases ordinary sold at 1s. 10¼d. to 1s. 10½d., the remainder bought in at 2s. 1d. Nutmegs: Of 30 cases 71 boxes Penang offered only 7 cases 5 boxes sold at previous rates, fine bold, average 76 nuts to the lb., at 4s., 81's at 3s. 10d. to 3s. 11d., 85's at 3s. 10d., 107's at 2s. 7d., 170's at 1s. 7d., the remainder bought in, 79's at 3s. 11d., 121 to 113's at 2s. 4d. to 2s. 8d. Mace is quiet at previous rates. Of 14 cases Penang offered 9 cases sold, pickings at 11d. to 1s., low red at 1s. 8d. to 1s. 9d., 3 cases 7 casks Java bought in at 1s. 8d. to 1s. 9d. per lb.

SUGAR.—A dull tone has prevailed, but there has been more inquiry for some descriptions, more particularly low brown, for which a further decline of 6d. to 9d. has been accepted; refining kinds show no alteration in value. Penang: In auction 5,574 mats fine grocery crystallised were all bought in at 28s. 6d. to 29s., 27 bags low brown Native sold at 15s. 6d. Manila: 290 tons unclayed Ilo Ilo sold at 16s., and 550 tons unclayed Taal and Zebu at 15s. 9d. China, Java and Siam: No sales.

LAUNCHES.

An iron barque has been launched from the shipbuilding-yard of Messrs. Alexander Hall and Co., at Footdee, Aberdeen. The vessel measures 150 feet in length, 28 feet in breadth of beam, and 14½ feet in depth of hold, her register being 450 tons. She is to be fitted with a steam winch for discharging her cargo. The barque has been classed 100 A1 at Lloyd's, has been named the Elissa, and is intended for the West India trade.

There has been launched from the shipbuilding-yard of Messrs. Scott and Co., Greenock, a large screw steamer to the order of Mr. Alfred Holt, for the Liverpool and China line, of the following dimensions:—Length, 320ft.; breadth, 35ft.; depth of hold, 26ft.; and 2,230 tons. She will be supplied with engines of 500-horse power by the Greenock Foundry Company. She is named the Teucer.

BY SEA TO SIBERIA.—A committee has been formed in Holland under the patronage of Prince Henry of the Netherlands, and 24,000 florins have been collected, to send out in May of next year a small but strong sailing vessel to the west coast of Spitzbergen, with the view of reaching the mouth of the Yenissei. The objects of the expedition are to explore the new commercial route to the Siberian rivers, to train sailors who might ultimately be intrusted with the formation of a scientific station, and to erect a few monuments to the memory of the early Dutch arctic navigators.

THE WEST INDIA MAIL SERVICE.—A fine new screw steamship, named the Medway, belonging to the Royal Mail (West India and Brazil) Company, was taken on the 6th inst. to Stokes Bay for an official trial at the measured mile. She has just been built and engined by Messrs. John Elder and Co., of Glasgow, and is fitted with all the newest appliances for the comfort and accommodation of passengers, the berths, of which there are 260, being larger than usual. The Medway is intended for the West India and Trans-Atlantic mail service.

OVERLAND ROUTE and SUEZ CANAL.—The PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL COMPANY'S STEAMERS sail from Southampton, via the Suez Canal, as follows:—

TONITE, OR COTTON POWDER.

THE SAFEST, STRONGEST, AND CHEAPEST OF ALL EXPLOSIVES.

Recommended to MINERS, PIT SINKERS, QUARRYMEN, and CONTRACTORS as the MOST EFFICIENT and ECONOMICAL BLASTING AGENT ever invented.

Results of practical experience show a saving of from 15 to 20 per cent. over the strongest explosives previously in use.

It saves labour in drilling holes, as a less number of holes are needed.

It does not require thawing, but is ready for use at all temperatures and in all climates.

It can also be advantageously used in breaking up boulders, extracting stumps, removing wrecks, exploding torpedoes, and for submarine purposes in general, as well as for signal lights and fog signals for ships.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Mr. J. T. COOPER,

In his celebrated TRAVELS IN CHINA, published in 1871, says:—

"I had with me in my travels a quantity of "Holloway's Ointment. I gave some to the people, "and nothing could exceed their gratitude; and, in "consequence—milk, fowls, butter, and horse-feed "poured in upon us, until at last a teaspoonful of "Ointment was worth a fowl and any quantity of "peas, and the demand became so great that I was "obliged to lock up the small remaining stock."

This fine OINTMENT is invaluable in the cure of BAD LEGS, BAD BREASTS, OLD SORES, wounds, ulcers, gout, rheumatism, and all skin diseases.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS (SINGAPORE, PENANG, AND MALACCA) GOVERNMENT FOUR AND A-HALF PER CENT. DEBENTURES.—£150,000.

AUTHORISED BY ORDINANCE NO. 1 OF 1877, to cover expenses incurred by the Colonial Government in the suppression of the recent disturbances in the Malayan States, to enable advances to be made to the State of Perak, and to provide for the erection of certain public works in Singapore and other parts of the Settlements.

Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies having authorised the Crown Agents for the Colonies to negotiate the above Loan in the London market, they Hereby Give Notice of their readiness to receive TENDERS for a FIRST INSTALMENT, amounting to £100,000.

The Loan is secured on the general revenue and assets of the Colony, and will be represented by Coupon-bearing Bonds of £1,000, £500, and £100 each, transferable by delivery, and redeemable in London in about fourteen years from date of issue.

Interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum, commencing on the 15th November, 1877, will be paid at the Offices of the Crown Agents for the Colonies in London. The first payment will be made on the 15th of May, 1878, and thenceforward half-yearly on the 15th November and the 15th May.

Tenders in accordance with the annexed form will be received by the Crown Agents, at their Offices, not later than One P.M. on Thursday, the 15th inst., when they will be there opened in the presence of such of the applicants as may be pleased to attend. The Debentures will be allotted to the highest bidders, provided the rates offered are not below £98 in money, for every £100 in Debentures, payable as follows:—

£5 per cent. on application.

So much on allotment as will leave £50 unpaid.

£50 on 3rd December.

Tenders at a fraction of a shilling other than sixpence will not be preferentially accepted, and should the equivalent tenders exceed the amount of the Debentures to be allotted, a pro rata distribution will be made.

After payment into the Bank of England by the allottees of the final instalment, they will receive, at the offices of the Crown Agents for the Colonies, in exchange for the banker's receipts, Debenture Bonds to bearer.

For the final repayment of the capital a sinking fund of 5½ per cent. on the cumulative principle will come into operation on the 15th November, 1878, and will be applied to the extinction of the Debt, either by annual drawings at par or by the purchase of the Debentures in the market, at the option of the trustees to the fund.

Form of tender and prospectus, showing the resources of the Colony and the financial condition of the Government, may be had on application to the Crown Agents, or to their Brokers, Messrs. Mullens, Marshall, and Co., 4, Lombard-street; and Messrs. J. and A. Scrimgeour, No. 18, Old Broad-street, E.C.

The Ordinance authorising the Loan is open to inspection at the Offices of the Crown Agents for the Colonies.

Downing-street, November 9, 1877.

Form of Tender.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS (SINGAPORE, PENANG, AND MALACCA) GOVERNMENT FOUR AND A-HALF PER CENT. LOAN. Authorised by Ordinance No. 1 of 1877. First issue £100,000.

Gentlemen,—I hereby tender for the following portion of the above Loan to the extent of £——, for which I undertake to pay at the rate of £—— for every £100 in Debentures; and I hereby agree to accept the same, or any less amount, subject to the conditions contained in your Advertisement, dated November 9, 1877.

I enclose herein a cheque for the sum of £——, being the required deposit of 5 per cent. on the amount applied for.

Name in full.....
Address.....
Date .....

The Crown Agents for the Colonies, Downing-street, S.W.

This tender must be enclosed in an envelope, marked outside "Tender for Straits Settlements Government Loan," and be delivered at the Offices of the Crown Agents for the Colonies not later that One P.M. on Thursday, November 15, 1877.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all description of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

NINGPO DISTRICT.

ROCK TO THE EASTWARD OF POOTOO ISLAND.

Notice is hereby given, that Captain Petersen, of the C.M.S.N. Company's steamer Ho-chung, has reported a Rock, unmarked on the Charts, to the Eastward of Pootoo Island, and he gives the following magnetic bearings as determining its position :—

West Nine Pin Rock	N. 33° E.
Half Tide Rock	N. 12° E.
N.W. Point of Isthmus Island	N. 14° W.
Northern end of Pootoo E. Bluff	N. 49° W.

The Harbour-Master at Ningpo has verified the position of this pinnacle rock, and reported that there will probably be only 6 feet of water on it at low water spring tides, with from 7 to 13 fathoms round it.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Matsukata, Vice-Minister of the Finance Department and Director of the Japanese Section of the International Exhibition to be held in Paris in 1878, will shortly leave for France.

The plan of the new buildings of the Daijokuwan, to be built within the precincts of the Akasaka Palace, have already been drawn up, and the work will be commenced shortly. The structure will be in European style, and its cost is estimated at 30,000 yen.

The Akebono Shimbun gives currency to the rumour that some of the Government Departments have appointed a committee to consider and report on the Press Laws, and that a Bill to reform the existing regulations has already been drawn up on a liberal and satisfactory basis. Still one department is said to have expressed opinions in favour of the laws now existing. It is said, however, that one of the Ministers insist that the matter shall be discussed fully before the civil war is brought to a close.

NAGASAKI.

The Cosmopolitan Free Press of Sept. 29 gives the following items :—

A steamer which left Osaka for Nagasaki on the 24th August with two hundred passengers and a full cargo foundered on the 26th ultimo in the Suwanada. It is not yet known if all the passengers and goods have been lost. In the same typhoon sixteen Japanese junks also foundered, near the coast of the Osasa Fu, and forty-eight met with the same fate in the Hiogo Ken. Fifty persons have perished, or have been more or less severely hurt.

A great number of Chinese arrived in Yokohama by the Nagoya Maru, their object being, it is said, to avoid the famine which exists in their own country.

The following movements of war vessels have taken place during the week :—H.M.S. Fly arrived from Chefoo on the 23rd instant, and the Kestrel left for Kobe on the same date. The Juno and Lily left for Shanghai on the 24th, and H.I.G.M.'s s. Nautilus departed for Yokohama.

CHINA.

PEKING.

The Peking Gazette of Sept. 18 contains an interesting memorial from Chunghow, regarding the arrangements made for introducing an organised Government among the squatters in the region bordering on Korea. More than one memorial has already been published on the subject, setting forth the projected reforms ; and their accomplishment is now reported. Brigandage has been suppressed, and the regions in question have been brought under control, "the immigrant population turning themselves," in the euphonistic language of the writer, "to the quarter whence renovation proceeds." Lands have been marked out and assessed for taxations and districts portioned off and officials nominated to administer them. Altogether some 300,000 acres have been admitted to the benefits of taxation. Walled cities, official yamens, cantonments, &c., are to be built, and the cost defrayed out of the new sources of revenue.

TIENTSIN.

The correspondent of the North China Daily News writes under date of 29th September as follows :—

It is expected that a trial of a torpedo, recently invented by Mr. Say, of Buffalo, N.Y., will soon take place at Taku. The Viceroy some time since contracted for fifty, at $15,000 a piece, and the payment is understood to be conditioned upon the result of the trial. Two trials have already taken place in the United States, one of them in the Potomac, near Washington, which was a brilliant success.

The bund has been absolutely reduced from a road to the capacity of a godown yard by the enormous piles of grain along the greater part of its length. The grain is said to be owned by private individuals.

Who can observe the careful ant
And not provide for future want?

The indiscriminate occupation of the bund by merchandise has long been a very serious evil. Within a few months the Municipal Council has had the matter under advisement, and has adopted a set of regulations requiring every kind of goods to be removed within three days from the date of landing, and allotting a very limited space for the temporary deposit of goods, instead of the whole water front, as has hitherto been the case. A scale of fines or dues has been fixed, classifying merchandise, and these fines become due on expiry of the three days. The Customs Taoutai has issued a proclamation embodying the foregoing requirements, but omitted to append any definite penalty. It is said that he objects to the principle of the payment of wharfage dues by the Chinese. In consequence, a long correspondence has taken place between the Taoutai and the British Consulate, and the matter is to be referred to Peking before any attempt is made to enforce payment. Meantime a roadway has been cleared on the bund sufficiently wide to enable a foot-passenger and a sedan chair to go abreast—until recently impossible.

The Lapwing is expecting soon to leave for Nagasaki, and to be replaced by H.M.S. Midge.

It is reported that Mr. Detring, of Chefoo, has been appointed Commissioner of Customs for this port, vice Mr. Macpherson, who left several months ago.

CHEFOO.

Complaints are still made of the harm done to this place by the exaggerated rumours some time back with regard to fever. A correspondent says :—

The hotels are almost empty, and the evening walk on the beach, which by-the-bye is the most disappointing and tiring of its kind, is unenlivened by any élite, beauty or band. A few bathers are seen in the morning very far apart, and apparently shunning each other. Everything is the abomination of desolation. The want of energy on the part of the community was painfully evident only the other day, when at a bowling match between Chefooites and outsiders the former had all sloped off to bed before the result could be ascertained. A somewhat amusing incident occurred a few mornings ago on the beach. Some employés of the Customs were trying a theodolite and level at about the bathing time, and were accused by the lady bathers, with the usual proneness of their sex to jump at rash conclusions, of trying to photograph them. Some who came down late actually went so far as to desist from going into the water, and to compare the "Customs Cads" with Punch's "Margate Snobs."

The cholera has almost entirely disappeared from the native town, and with the thermometer at 62 deg. Fahr., a clear sky, and bracing north-easterly winds we are or ought to be enjoying magnificent health.

Snipe have finished, ducks are scarce, and partridges are not yet ready for the gun, so that our fare at present consists simply of plain butcher's meat. Apropos of the table I may mention that Chefoo produces the whitest and crispest curled endiff of all China.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 5th October; the French mail from London, Aug. 10, was received on the 23rd Sept.; and the following P. and O. mail of Aug. 17 arrived out on the 26th September.

Prison discipline seems to have been a subject of somewhat active discussion not only in Hong Kong but also in Shanghai, though so far as can be judged it does not seem that Chinese prisoners are over-leniently treated at the jail attached to the Yamen of the Mixed Court magistrate before whom Chinese offenders in the foreign Settlements are brought. The correspondent of one of the local papers wrote a long letter on the subject, but it seems that he was somewhat mistaken in his views, to judge from the following paragraph, which appears in the Courier, the journal which gave publicity to his statements:—

By the courtesy of Chen, the Chinese Magistrate of the Mixed Court, and Mr. Gardner, H.B.M. Vice-Consul and English Assessor, we were permitted to see the prison arrangements and everything connected with the establishment in the Maloo lately so vigorously attacked by our correspondent, "Anti-Club Law." The impression we brought away with us was, that the writer of that long letter drew a little on his imagination. We do not profess to have any ambition to take up residence in the cells, but we can truly say that they seemed to us as wholesome as such places can be, where many men are incarcerated together. As to their being hot-beds of fever or cholera we saw nothing to give grounds for such an assertion or such an opinion. There are three rooms in which the prisoners are—two being long and narrow, but clean, according to Chinese notions. The prisoners lie on mats on raised floors running on each side of the room, with a path about six feet wide, their whole length. The Debtors' prison is small, and rather dark, but there are only a few persons in it. We are assured that the drainage is properly attended to—and that the prisoners are as well off as the same class are in their own dwellings—and perhaps better. Be that as it may—it is no "plague spot," and the prisoners incarcerated there must thank their stars that they are kept there instead of being sent into the city.

A communication from the Catholic Bishop of Shantung, which is published in the North China Daily News, gives an extremely sad account of the prospects of famine in the north. He writes :—"We expected good crops, but the rain has taken away at least one third of the yield we had hoped for. In several places there are locusts, and they are near Hun-kia-lou (that is near Tsi-nan-foo)—yet notwithstanding we have not the terrible dearth of last year." Further on, the good bishop proceeds :—"Yesterday I received letters from Father Serafino; he says that in Wucheng, Sin-ching-chow, &c., there is a great drought; and there come up bands of thieves who steal and pillage under the pretext that they have nothing to live upon. He tells me also that the pagans secretly introduce their small children into the exterior court-yard of his house, and then run away; the orphanage is quite full, and he does not know where to place the new-comers; and, he adds, grain is very dear. Here, too, living is very dear. Fra Ottavio sent to buy grain in the market, but the market was empty. This year they still continue to bring here many suckling babies; but they are so weak that unfortunately they go soon, many of them, to their Creator. Yesterday they brought me two little girls. I hope that they will live, because they are one year old. Many pagan women come to beg some relief, saying they want to become Christians." From this it is evident that the struggle for life has commenced even there, where the famine is not said to be so bad as last year. Will foreigners do nothing this year? They cannot any more say that the Chinese do not help themselves; for Mr. Muirhead's letters, published by us, show a very different state of things. The Chinese have already commenced, and have collected most liberally; and it is pleasant to see this is a result of the example shown by foreigners last season—but they are far ahead this season. It is a pity that the Government were not induced to set on foot a system of road-making by which the traffic to the threatened districts might have been facilitated. It is evident that the difficulty of conveying food to the famishing will be a very serious one; but probably, as it was last year, many will migrate to the favoured localities in which plenty abounds.

We take the following from the North China Herald :—

A meeting of shareholders in the new Steam Washing Company was held on the 26th September at the Club, when Messrs. R. Mackenzie, H. Silva, and G. Withers were appointed a committee to organise the company. As all the capital has now been subscribed, we presume the undertaking may be considered fairly started.

The Gazette of the 13th September reports one of the cheapest pieces of work we have seen recorded for some time. The walls of Lanchow, the capital of Kansuh, which were well-nigh destroyed during the rebellion, have been rebuilt at a cost of only Tls. 3,397. This is for material only, the labour having been done by the soldiers; but Tls. 3,397 for the material for a wall five miles in circumference seems tolerably cheap.

A forcible illustration of the inconvenience arising from the Woosung bar is afforded in the case of the British ship Taitsing, Captain R. G. Johnston, which arrived in port on the 23rd ult. She left Nagasaki on the 7th ult., and arrived at the Red Buoy on the 14th, where she was detained for nine days, owing to insufficiency of water for her to cross the bar. This is no isolated case, for few vessels are able to enter without being delayed for a longer or shorter time at Woosung.

A divorce case was tried on 26th Sept. at the United States Consulate General, before Mr. G. W. Wells, and two Associates. It was a petition by Mrs. Burr for a dissolution of her marriage with Captain Thomas Francis Burr, on the ground of adultery. The Court granted the prayer of the petitioner with the Court and other incidental costs, and ordered the respondent, who is absent from Shanghai, to pay $530, money borrowed by the petitioner to pay her passage from England to Shanghai.

The Chinese say that our old friend the Shanghai Hsien, whose misdeeds in the famous "Lodging House-keeper" case will be fresh in our readers' recollection, is again in trouble. It is reported that a man was killed in a wood-yard and thrown into a pond, from the bottom of which his body was eventually floated by generated gas and claimed by his relatives. Whereupon the wood-yard people are said to have bought some Ningpo clothes, dressed the corpse in them, and brought forward a Ningpo man to claim the body as that of a relative. The Hsien adjudged it to the Ningpo claimant, and the Shanghai people are said to have appealed to Soochow.

The Municipal Minutes inform us that the Council have succeeded in obtaining a site for a police-station in Hongkew, somewhere, we believe, in Hanbury-road. They get seven and a-half mow of land for Tls. 5,000. Land has been offered for a cross road from the Bubbling Well-road, at Eames's bungalow, towards the Cemetery-road; but as there is no immediate prospect of their being able to carry the road through, the Council decline the proposal for the present. Steps are being taken to obtain the land for the Markham-road extension.

A season which has been eminently unhealthy as regards human beings has been singularly prolific of insects. We have mentioned from time to time the appearance of locusts, grasshoppers, &c., in our neighbourhood. The latest visitation has been a swarm of caterpillars. It was worth the while last week of anyone to walk through the country, in order to appreciate the plague which had fallen upon the neighbourhood. Not only did they cover the cotton stalks, which they seem especially to affect, but the pathways and even the main roads were covered with stray ones migrating from one field to another. Myriads were crushed under the feet of the passers by, though without perceptibly lessening the number. They have latterly become fewer, though still a number are to be seen clinging to the stalks of plants and branches of trees that promise a succulent meal. In many cotton fields the stalks are stripped bare of leaves, though we are glad to hear that the country people do not speak as though their crops of cotton were likely to be injured. The leaves are stripped, but the pods do not seem to suffer, and the crop appears to be a low average. But though the cotton seems to be the object of the caterpillars' especial affection, they do not confine their attention to it. Rose trees, bean-stalks, persimmon trees, laurels, all seem to be taken toll of, if they come in the way of the swarms; and the oldest inhabitant has been heard to declare that, though the insects have visited the neighbourhood now and again in his time, he had never seen such a plague as the present.

WENCHOW.

A correspondent of the Daily Press writes as under concerning the Lekin duties:—

Hitherto no action has been taken by the lekin men, and although several have been seen going about with an umbrella in one hand and a drawn sword in the other, they bolt with extraordinary speed the instant a foreigner comes in sight. I have been going over the trade returns issued by the Customs for the April-June quarter, and our port by no means makes a bad show. We are ahead of Wuhu as far as piece goods are concerned, and this in spite of the great disadvantage we labour under when compared with that port as regards regular communication. Of course a package can always be dropped by some passing river steamer; but for this place intending shippers must preserve alike their patience and their goods until a chance offers.

Again, the analysis seems to prove that a new field for Shirtings and T-cloths has been opened up, and not, as was prophesied, simply a transference of trade from Ningpo brought about. Anything that we do in that last way will be so much more to the good, and quite irrespective of our inherent capacity. Thus it will be seen that in the quarter under notice 60,705 pieces of Shirtings and T-cloths came here direct; whilst to Ningpo there were imported during the same time 306,849 pieces, against 298,553 for same quarter last year, being an increase of 8,296 pieces on 1876. We have reason to believe that during the short time subsequent to June, when left untrammeled, it will be found that this favourable and promising condition of affairs became more and more satisfactory, but now!—horresco referens—lekin has stepped in and spoilt all; and a lekin that was not levied before we came.

HONG KONG.

Dates by this mail extend to the 11th October; the French mail from London, Aug. 24, arrived out on the 30th September, and the following P. and O. mail of August 31 was received on the 4th October.

A somewhat unexpected termination of the sad cause célèbre which ended in the imprisonment of Mr. Duncan, Secretary of the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock, has taken place. It appears that his health was failing so rapidly that the jail surgeon sent in a certificate to the effect that his being kept longer in confinement might result in his death, and he has in consequence been released. The directors of the Company endorsed the petition which was sent in to the Government in favour of this act of clemency.

A graceful acknowledgment from the late popular Governor, Sir Arthur Kennedy, of the compliments paid to him in placing his portrait in the City Hall, has been received by Messrs. Lane, Crawford and Co.

It is stated in the Mission intelligence of the Catholic Magazine that the infamous practice of carrying off Annamite girls by force or fraud from their native comntry and selling them in Chinese territory into domestic slavery, or, as is more frequently the case, for immoral purposes, is again in full vigour. Over two years ago the Viceroy of Canton put down the traffic at Pakhoi, degrading several mandarins of the prefecture of Lim-chow, who had not only tolerated but favoured the trade. It has not shown its head there since, but at On Pon it is now again openly carried on. During the past year over 300 Annamite girls were there sold into slavery, and among them were many Christians. The mandarin in authority openly favours the sales, receiving a fee on each girl, and recently he accepted two as a present. The sub-prefect of the town of Shek Sheng favours the mandarin at On Pon, so that the latter has no fear. On Pon is a port of some commercial importance, situated on a small river which, rising in Kwangsi, flows through part of the prefecture of Ko Tchow, and empties itself into the Gulf of Tonkin at its north-eastern extremity.

The annual meeting of the shareholders in the Canton Insurance Office was held at the office of the General Agents, Hong Kong, on the 9th October. The report showed a net profit of $364,022.16, of which, after placing $60,000 to reserve fund, a division was made of $267 a share and 19 per cent. to contributors on contributions. On the proposition of the Chairman, the report was taken as read. It was resolved, on the motion of Mr. Sassoon, to continue the usual pension to Captain Rickett, their late surveyor. The consulting committee and the auditors were re-elected.

The Daily Press gives the following description of a new revenue cruiser for the Chinese Government:—

Although the Chinese pretend to despise the ways of Western nations, they have always acknowledged our superiority in the science of shipbuilding. But the Chinese are apt pupils; and, having had the advice and assistance of Europeans for a period extending over many years, have recently taken to building ships after the foreign model for themselves. Their latest effort in this direction is a revenue cruiser, the Yup Choong. This vessel, which was designed, laid down, and entirely built by Chinese at Canton, has just been engined by Inglis and Co, of the Victoria Foundry, at this port. The Yup Choong has been fitted with a pair of compound surface-condensing engines of 60-horse-power nominal and 240 indicated; the diameter of the high pressure cylinder is 20 in. and that of the low pressure 38 in., stroke 26 in. The fires are ranged athwartships, and the stoke-hole is specially designed with a view to economise space. The vessel went a trial trip round the island on the 1st October, and, although the machinery had only been moved round at moorings previous to this, the trial was such a success as to exceed the most sanguine expectations, not the slightest hitch occurring in any shape from start to finish. The trial would not admit of testing the vessel's true speed, as she was so light that there was at least a thirty per cent. slip of the propeller, but with 110 revolutions (which was the average) a speed of nine knots was obtained, a result which would fully justify the expectation of 10½ knots or more when the vessel is down on her water line. The engines, which were entirely designed and constructed by Messrs. Inglis, are probably the largest of their kind ever made in the East, and reflect much credit on that firm; and the trial was so eminently satisfactory that the Chinese authorities will take over the vessel at once.

From the above-named paper we quote the following:—The annual general meeting of the Hong Kong Yacht Club took place on the 9th Oct., at the Hong Kong Club-House. Present: Messrs. W. H. Forbes, Commodore (in the chair), A. MacG. Heaton, C. F. Nunn, W. Legge, A. P. McEwen, L. L. Bush, W. H. Kay, J. K. Morrison, and E. Beart, Hon. Secretary and Treasurer. The accounts were passed, and the officers of the club were unanimously re-elected. These are Messrs. W. H. Forbes (Commodore), Mr. J. McLeod (Vice Commodore), A. MacG. Heaton, C. F. Nunn, and E. Beart (Hon. Secretary and Treasurer). The opening cruise was fixed for next Saturday fortnight, the 27th instant, when it is hoped that all the yachts will be able to put in an appearance at the place of rendezvous. Some conversation took place with reference to the existing scale of time allowance in the club matches, and it was ultimately resolved to leave the question in the hands of the committee. A proposed addition to the more valuable prizes was then discussed, and it was resolved that a certain sum should be set aside each season towards making up another Challenge Cup to be raced for by yachts belonging to the club. With a vote of thanks to the Chairman the meeting closed.

We learn that it is a fact that Captain Brown, of the Macao steamer Yotsai, was fined by the Macao authorities for posting bills contrary to the regulation, which requires that a ten cent stamp shall be attached to each. The case was concluded on the 1st October, and the fine was to have been paid before the vessel left, which, however, was not done. Seventeen posters were put up, and the fine was $6 on each poster, amounting in the aggregate to $102. On the vessel's arrival at Macao on the 2nd October, and whilst Captain Brown was on his way to the Post-office with the French mails, he was arrested for not having paid his fine, and he and the mails marched off to jail. Upon remonstrating with the police, he was escorted to the Post-office and the mails delivered. He was then taken to jail, where a soft plank was given him for a bed for the night. He protested against this, as he was prepared to pay the fine there and then. He was not liberated, however, till next morning, when the fine was paid. It is asserted that the jail authorities charged him $3 for his night's lodging.

We take the following from the China Mail.—

At the rate cases are being committed for trial by the police magistrates, the Criminal Calendar next month will be a very full one. We believe their Worships are acting in this way under instructions from his Excellency the Governor. However this may be, it is, we presume, always open to the Attorney-General to send back to the magistrates any case that may in his opinion be summarily disposed of.

The Acting Collector of Stamp Revenue states that the total revenue collected during the past month was $10,001.42. The amount collected this year up to the 30th ultimo was $88,246.88, as compared with $78,045.51 collected in the corresponding nine months of 1876, showing a net increase of revenue to the amount of $10,201.37.

Mr. Herbert Cope, who left by the French mail of 29th for Singapore to open a branch of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank at that port, will be greatly missed as a leading amateur in our musical associations, and as one of the most hearty supporters of the useful local institution known as the Temperance-hall.

Capt. Cary, of the steamer Kinshan, of the Hong Kong, Canton and Macao Steamboat Company, was summoned to the Police-court by Inspector Grimes for having carried more passengers in her trip from Canton to Hong Kong, on the 24th Oct., than she was legally entitled to do. After hearing the evidence the magistrate said that he had no discretion to mitigate the penalties under the ordinance, and inflicted fines aggregating over $4,000.

The price of salt has probably reached its highest, a dollar being enough to buy only about 120 catties, and it is said the price is even much higher in Macao, where a dollar is the equivalent of about eighty catties. This is owing to the unusually stringent measures being adopted by the Salt Commissioner to enforce the laws of taxing salt, and we are told that recently a new office has been opened at Cap-sui-moon, where salt is taxed. Several speculators have attempted to import salt from Annam, where it can be purchased at the rate of about 1,000 catties for a dollar, but considering the great outlay which conveyance in foreign bottoms entails, the operation has not been successful. The Customs blockade is beginning now to tell on even articles of necessity.

A correspondent, who has evidently been studying sanitary science, suggests that people in Hong Kong have no idea how much infection might be conveyed in the older and dirtier of the $1 notes now in circulation. It is just possible that many of our readers are perfectly prepared to take the risk of infection in return for a large bundle of those handy notes; but the suggestion to replace some of the more dilapidated specimens with new paper is one which may be worth the consideration of the manager of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank. Dr. Ayres, the Colonial Surgeon, might also be called upon for an opinion.

BORNEO.

SARAWAK.

According to the Sarawak Gazette, the Principality has been suffering from unprecedented drought. During the month of August the total rainfall was 0in. 66'.

The Revenue Returns for the first six months of 1877 show that the total revenue was $97,770.50, showing an increase of $10,079.78 over the same period last year. The total expenditure was $92,940.09, showing a decrease of $3,159.35 over last year. In 1876 there was a deficit of $2,249.37. In 1877 there is a surplus of $7,990.36.

The latest intelligence with regard to the war states :—One of the most influential headmen has offered his submission to the Dutch authorities, and it was expected that his example will soon be followed by several of the remaining hostile chiefs, who have hitherto opposed Dutch Supremacy. STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The present P. and O. mail brings advices from this port to the 18th October; the French mail from London, Sept. 7, was received on the 7th October, and the following P. and O. mail of Sept. 14 arrived out on the 15th October. We take the following items of intelligence from the Straits Times:—

There have been three meetings of Council, on the 2nd, 9th, and 16th October, and steady progress has been made with business, with the utmost harmony between officials and non-officials. On the 2nd Mr. MacArthur was promised information regarding the constitution and proceedings of the native Courts of justice in Perak and other native States. The Perak Prisoners Bill was read a third time and passed, Mr. Adamson putting in a plea for merciful consideration in the course of time, and Mr. Bond objecting to the case of the prisoners being compared to that of ex-Sultan Abdullah. Progress was made with the Singapore Water-rate Bill; the Supply Bill 1878 was read a second time, and an Excise Amendment Bill a first time. On the 9th Mr. Bond moved for and was promised returns of debtors committed to prison since Ordinance twenty-two of 1870 came into operation, and also similar returns for the previous period between 1867 and 1870, with the object of ascertaining whether the ordinance has been beneficial or not. The Acting Chief Justice, Mr. Ford, asked when the new Judicature Ordinance would be introduced, when the Attorney-General replied that it was in the printer's hands. Progress was made with the Singapore Water Bill; and the Steam Boilers Amendment, Final Supply 1876, and Excise Amendment Bills were read a second time. The proceedings at the meeting of the 16th have not yet been published.

Some interesting correspondence with regard to the succession to Moar State has been going on between Tuanku Allum, the Tumongong, and other Chiefs of Moar, and his Excellency the Administrator. The local Government, it is to be noted, have not yet uttered a word in regard to this small affair, and may have a defence, but, so far as the public can judge, they have, of course with the best intentions, blundered or are blundering into positive dishonesty, and encouraging the Maharajah of Johore to unjustifiable aggression on the unquestionable rights of a poor and helpless man. It is startling to find British officials sanctioning such iniquity under such shallow and false pretences as the good of the country and the wishes of the people.

As there is no news from the Peninsula, it is to be presumed that all is now quiet throughout the Native States. On the 3rd October a rather alarming report reached this of a Chinese riot in Malacca, and the Colonial Secretary with Mr. Pickering deemed it prudent to proceed there. It turned out, however, to be an affair of ten minutes, and of no importance whatever.

A somewhat novel appointment appeared in the Government Gazette of the 5th Oct., viz., that of the Hon. H. A. K. Whampoa, C.M.G., and M.L.C. as Chinese Consul. The reason or object of this appointment has not transpired, but it is surmised to have something to do with the working of the Chinese Immigrant's Ordinance, which was brought into operation in an emasculated form on the 24th September last, the main clauses being suspended. All that is done for the present is to forbid the landing or transhipment of immigrants at any place but the three ports without the permission of the Governor, and to insist that every immigrant vessel be boarded on arrival by the Protector of Chinese or one of his assistants.

The adulteration of produce, more especially gambier and black pepper, has now reached such a pitch as to be almost intolerable. A general meeting was held under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce on the 11th Oct., to consider the matter, and a committee was appointed to devise remedial measures. The only effectual remedy would be for the European merchants to combine together to put it down. And that is exactly the remedy which will not or cannot be adopted. The correctness of the import and export returns has also occupied the attention of the Chamber, and several attempts have been made at amendment, but to little purpose. As with the adulteration of produce, the remedy lies mainly in the hands of merchants themselves.

We have to record an act of Vandalism by the Singapore Cricket Club, aided and abetted by the Government. They are desecrating our beautiful Esplanade, the only place of recreation for Europeans in the place, by the erection of a bungalow, to be styled a Pavilion, on the western side' next the Townhall, for the accommodation and refreshment of themselves and friends. They have obtained the permission of Government, it appears, for this encroachment, and persist in their course in spite of remonstrance and the opinion of the general public; and as there appears to be no one here who cares to take the lead in giving practical expression to public opinion, they may succeed for a time.

The approaching departure for Penang of Colonel and Mrs. Anson has led to sundry dinners and entertainments in their honour, as they have made themselves personally very popular during the six months they have dispensed the hospitalities of Government House. On the evening of the 11th Oct. the Chinese Community gave a grand Chinese Wyang for their delectation, and on the 22nd the Tanglin Club will give a ball or "at Home."

The Raffles' Library and Museum is fast becoming what it should be, an institution for the benefit and recreation of the general public, thanks a good deal to the zeal and energy of the new Secretary, Dr. Dennys, who is acting, of course. The Committee have reduced the subscription to the Library to one uniform rate of $6 per annum, which should place it within the reach of all capable of deriving benefit from it.

A very serious accident happened on the 16th October to Mr. Matthew Little, of Messrs. John Little and Co., while out for his morning ride. He was thrown from his horse, but how is unknown, as he was found in a semi-conscious state, and has remained more or less so since. It is supposed he is suffering from concussion of the brain.

The Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank are opening a branch here, under the management of Mr. Herbert Cope, from Hong Kong.

The weather has been very hot and trying for a month back, and rain is much needed.

Market Reports.

IMPORTS.

TIENTSIN.—In Shirtings and T-Cloths the business had been small. Drills had been in some request. Woollens very little doing. American Drills and Sheetings very little business.

NEWCHWANG.—With the disappearance of cholera, business had revived, and manufactures were being placed at comparatively good rates. Quotations: Grey Shirting, 8¼ lbs. Cock, Tls. 1.3.4; ditto, 8¼ lbs. Stag, Tls. 1.2.4; ditto, 8¼ lbs. Stork, Tls. 1.2.5; ditto Mandarin, Tls. 1.2.3; ditto, Phœnix, Tls. 1.2.5; ditto. Globe, Tls. 1.2.3; White Shirtings, Blue Cock, Tls. 2.1.0; T-Cloths, 6 lbs. Tls. 0.8.7; Drills—English, Kung-yih, Tls. 2.0.0; ditto, American—Horse, Tls. 3.1.4; ditto, Lion, Tls. 3.0.5; ditto, Cock, Tls. 3.0.2; American Sheetings, Horse, Tls. 325. Iron: Good assortments of Nail-rods and bars would find buyers at Tls. 2.0.0 to 2.3.0 per 91⅓ catties.

HANKOW.—There had been rather more doing in Grey Shirtings, but prices showed no improvement. Cotton Goods.—Grey Shirtings: Sales amounted to 5,500 pieces, of which 1,000 pieces were 8¼ lbs. Eagles at Tls. 1.84 per piece, and 4,500 Stork Chop 8¼ lbs. at Tls. 1.22 per piece. Metals.—Lead, Tin and Quicksilver: Nothing doing, and quotations unaltered.

SHANGHAI.—There had been no improvement in the position of the market; privately sales of Grey Shirtings and T-Cloths had been almost impracticable, dealers buying for the Yangtsze and local trades fully supplying their wants at public auction, where sales had been forced daily at gradually declining rates. From the northern provinces advices were still unsatisfactory, and business, usually active at this season, was in abeyance. The latest quotations for Grey Shirtings were 7 lbs., at Tls. 1.06 for common to Tls. 1.31½ for Dewhurst's Eagle chop; 8-4 lbs. Eagle Dewhurst's at Tls. 1.85 per piece nominal. Horse-jockey at Tls. 1.70, Pagoda quality at Tls. 1.50 per piece, and common chop from Tls. 1.20 to 1.40 per piece. Heavy Shirtings were in a little request for Tls. 2.25 to 2.57½ per piece. In T-Cloths, a small business only is reported in 6 lbs. at Tls. 0.83 to 0.85; 7 lbs. ordinary Mexican at Tls. 1.08 to 1.10, better goods at Tls. 1.20, and best makes at Tls. 1.35 to 1.37 per piece. and a few 8 lbs. from Tls. 1.37 to 1.40 per piece. Drills were the only Cotton Goods which had been in active demand, at Tls. 1.85 to 1.90 only English makes, and Tls. 2.85 to 2.87½ for American chops. Jeans and Sheetings had been moderately asked for at previous quotations. In Woollens and Worsteds a steady business had been passing at previous prices, which were well maintained. A strong upward movement had manifested itself for all descriptions of Coal, owing to unfavourable advices from Japan, and all cargo afloat had been eagerly purchased. Cargo quotations from ship here: Cardiff, Tls. 8.2.5 per ton; American, Tls. 8.2.5 per ton; Sydney, Tls. 7.5.0 per ton. There had been hardly any business done in Metals. Small sales of Belgium Nail Rods are reported at Tls. 1.65, but no sales of Dawes or Rogers. Lead had changed hands at Tls. 5.40, the market closing firm.

FOOCHOW.—The Piece Goods Market had remained in the same inactive state, and there had been no settlements. Lead had been disposed of to a fair extent at $8 to 8.25 per picul, against Tea purchases. A considerable stock, say 7,550 pigs, remained in the hands of foreigners. Sales: Lead, 2,150 pigs at $8.25 per picul, 200 pigs at $8 per picul, against Tea purchases.

HONG KONG.—The market for Cotton Goods had been quiet, and in Yarns and Grey Goods a further decline had been established. Woollens had been rather more active, but Spanish Stripes and Camlets were lower in value. Messrs. Oliphant and Co.'s Circular says:—Mexican T-Cloths have been inquired for, and fair sales of special marks, chiefly imported from Shanghai, have been made. For other descriptions the market is depressed, and no settlements of importance have transpired. Grey Shirtings are very dull, and only a limited business has been done. In English Drills no movement of importance has been reported. White Shirtings are not inquired for. American Cotton Goods continue out of stock. Coals: The stock of all descriptions has been considerably increased, and sales of Australian kinds are most difficult to effect at quotations. In Cardiffs there is nothing doing, and rates tend downwards. The reported flooding of the Takasima mines had had no effect upon the market. Metals had been in very limited demand. A sale of Belgian Bar Iron had been effected at $2.30 to arrive, and $3.77½ had been paid for a parcel of Swedish Bar. L.B. Lead was obtainable at $7.02½ to 7.05.

CANTON.—Lead: Prices were lower, but there were no sellers at the nominal quotations of $7.70 to $7.80 per picul for Mixed Brands, and $7.80 to $7.90 for Hole Chop and W.B. Quicksilver: A further decline had taken place, and the closing quotation was $67 to $68 per picul.

MANILA.—Towards the end of September the Piece Goods market revived a little, and a fair business was done at previous quotations. The startling figures, however, shown by the quarterly note of stocks of Plain Staples immediately caused a rush of goods on the market, and at the close dealers seeing the position of affairs had declined to do business, unless at a serious reduction on current prices. Coloured printed goods were also held in large quantities, and the rates offering were unremunerative, while Woven were not inquired for.

SINGAPORE.—In the early part of the interval the market for cotton staples had remained very quiet, but towards the close a demand had sprung up, and a moderate business had been done. There had been no change of importance in rates, but as holders generally were anxious to sell the tendency of prices had been weaker.

PENANG.—The market for Cotton Goods had been very quiet. Sales continued to be made only on a small scale, and prices generally were unchanged.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

HANKOW.—Only small transactions are reported, Russians being the chief buyers. Quotations were: Oonams and Oonfaas, Tls. 7.50 to 10.50; Oopacks, Tls. 8 to 10.75 per picul.

	1877-78. chests.	agst. 1876-77. chests.
Settlements to date were	438,890 ...	445,423
Shipments to Shanghai	114,615 ...	157,592
Stock	2,600 ...	5,500
Total arrivals	556,105 ...	608,515

SHANGHAI.—Black: Messrs. Evans, Pugh and Co.'s Circular says:—The decline in common Teas last quoted has been more than recovered, and it is now difficult to buy anything under Tls. 12 per picul = 8½d. per lb. by steamer, the market being very firm for such kinds. Rather better value has been obtained in the grades above, say at from Tls. 13 to Tls. 15 per picul, but with a little more demand at the close these kinds also are not so easy to buy. The stock shows a slight increase over that of last mail, but we can only expect small arrivals now to the end of the season. The following settlements have been reported during the fortnight:—Oopacks, 1,764 chests at 8½d. to 1s. 0½d. per lb.; Oonfaas, 2,758 chests at 8½d. to 11½d. per lb.; Oonams, 1,578 chests at 8½d. to 9d.; Ningchows, 8,953 chests at 9d. to 1s. 1½d. per lb.; Hohows, 1,590 chests at 8½d. to 1s. 3½d. Total settlements from commencement of season 196,673 chests; stock 25,700 chests. Green: The business during the interval had been large. Purchases had been for the most part on American account and for shipment by the steamers Loudoun Castle and Glenartney via Suez Canal. With a fairly general demand and accumulating stocks many teamen were willing sellers, and purchases of the medium to fine Moyune kinds up to Tls. 26 proportion showed a decline of about Tls. 1 per picul. The first parcels of the season were not quoted any lower. The buying for these direct steamers had ceased at the close, and there being little competition, the market was quiet and weak. Some large settlements of Pingsueys were made early in the interval, and prices became rather firmer. The stock was small and undesirable, and the demand had latterly fallen off. Settlements: Fychows, Teenkais and Moyunes, 45,245 half-chests at Tls. 18¾ to 44; Pingsueys, 16,432 half-chests at Tls. 13½ to 50.

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Olyphant and Co.'s Circular says:—Congous.—Since the 17th Sept. Congous have met with a fairly steady demand, settlements during the interval amounting to 37,327 chests. Prices of grades from medium upwards have been well supported, but ordinary to good common Congou has in some instances been secured at a reduction of fully one tael per picul. Receipts to date are about 70,600 chests under last season's, and it remains to be seen whether this deficiency will be materially increased by the end of the season. Ooloongs continue to be neglected, the only settlement to report being that of 104 half-chests good cargo at Tls. 16.8 o.b. Scented Teas have been taken to the extent of 8,799 boxes since the 17th Sept., these settlements being composed chiefly of Scented Orange Pekoe, grading good common to preferable good common, at Tls. 19.8 to 22.3 o.b., one chop of fine first crop having commanded Tls. 35.8 o.b.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co.'s Market Report says:—We have had a fairly active Tea market during the period under review, and prices have been well maintained for nearly all kinds. Congous: A good demand has existed for these Teas, and full prices have been paid, an advance on previous quotations of nearly two taels having been established. Shipments to some extent have been made from Macao. Scented Teas: A moderate inquiry has existed for Capers, but the demand has not been general. Common and medium kinds have ruled slightly in favour of buyers, but fine and finest Teas are rather dearer. Shortly after our last report was published Pekoes came to hand in some quantity, and purchases have been made freely at gradually advancing rates for long-leaf kinds, closing quotations showing an advance of Tls. 1 to 1½ for medium, and Tls. 2 for fine and finest grades; short-leaf Teas have been taken at Tls. 13½ to 16, and long-leaf kinds at Tls. 21 to 30; the former class shows rather better value than previously. The following is a summary of the business since Sept. 20:—Congou, 12,000 boxes at Tls. 17 to 28 per picul; Scented Caper, 18,100 boxes at Tls. 12½ to 27; Scented Orange Pekoe, 16,800 boxes at Tls. 13½ to 30.

AMOY.—The market had been much excited, and a large business had been transacted during the interval in both Formosa and Amoy Ooloongs. On the 20th September the market for the former was reopened by the settlement of some 30,000 half-chests, and an active demand continued until the stock of desirable Teas was exhausted, and prices advanced $1 to 2 from the lowest point. Settlements for the interval amounted to some 71,500 half-chests. A steady demand had continued for Amoy Oooloongs resulting in the settlement of some 35,000 half-chests, at but little change in value, excepting for good cargo and superior grades, which were in small supply and commanded $1 advance.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—Mr. A. R. Burkill's Circular says:—The French steamer of 23rd Sept. took 359 bales only, business being much restricted at hat date by the tenor of home advices and the firm attitude of Chinese holders. In Tsatlees No. 4, Zebra and Black Lion chops were settled at Tls. 360 (at 5/5½=16/9), market 4½ to 5, Tls. 330 to 360 (15/4=16/9). Towards the end of the month some buying for the Continent was reported, and the fact of three or four houses having orders was sufficient to excite the minds of holders to such an extent that many of them refused to name a price for any quantity of Silk; prices rose rapidly, Chinese speculators assisting very materially in the advance, until Blue Elephants were reported settled on Foreign account at Tls. 415 (at 5/6 = 19/4), then holders advanced their demands Tls. 10 to 15 per picul and stopped business. An advancing Exchange and a falling off in demand have weakened the market considerably, and there is now some anxiety to realise amongst speculators. Tsatlees may be quoted (from foreigner's purchases) as follows:—Blue Elephants, 19s. 4d.; Elephant "May Fong," 18s. 9d.; Kukeeking Hock, 18s. 5d.; Bird Chop Kinhock, 18s. 1d.; Market 4½ 16s. 8d. to 17s. 2d.; Common, 15s. 10s. Keahings: Have been in fair demand, and some purchases of Green are reported at 13s. 6d. to 14s. 11d. Ching Yung Shing's Gna Ling has been taken at 19s. Taysaams have also attracted the attention of buyers, some ordinary 9/12 Moss has changed hands at 11s. 11d. to 12s. 2d., market Laeyangs at 11s. 9d., and No. 2 Sewhings at 12s. 2d. Re-reels: Are apparently at a prohibitive figure.

Settlements since Sept. 15	1,700 ...	9,000
Total Settlements to date	9,200 ...	54,000
Stock estimated at	16,500 ...	15,000

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co.'s Circular says:—A fairly active business has been passing, settlements aggregating 858 bales of Tsatlee reel. Prices have ruled somewhat irregularly, and No. 4 quality has been purchased at from $355 to $370 per picul. Arrivals have kept pace with sales, and about 1,000 bales of Tsatlee are said to be in stock. The superiority of fifth crop Silk is generally admitted, and prices for staple of that yield are not likely to decline. It is too early to ascertain anything regarding the sixth crop. Long-reels have been in very small demand, and only 20 piculs are reported settled for this mail. Re-reels have likewise been in slight request, and contracts announced are 130 boxes of Nos. 1, 2 and 3 Cumchuck and Lucklow.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HONG KONG.—A few settlements of Sugar had been made by native dealers at low rates for shipment to Shanghai, and a foreign buyer is reported to have taken some 10,000 piculs low quality brown, at $3.20. The market at the close was very dull at a further marked decline in rates, Chui Chow being quoted, white, $6.50 to 7.30; brown, $3.50 to 4.10; Sheklong, white, $7.00 to 7.40; brown, $4.00 to 4.20; and other kinds, $3.10 to 3.30 per picul. At Swatow the market was dull and depressed. Camphor: No settlements reported, and quotations unaltered. Gamboge continued scarce, and holders asked $53.00 per picul. Vermillion offered at $35.00 per picul.

CANTON.—Cassia: Buyers still holding off, and business had only been transacted to a comparatively small extent. Settlements 1,300 piculs. Prices again lower, and holders showing more inclination to meet the ideas of buyers. Gall Nuts: Market cleared of stocks, and fresh supplies not expected for two to three weeks. Closing quotations: Cassia, boxes, $10.45 to 10.55; mats $10.10 to 10.20; Cassia Buds, $17.75 to 18.00; Gall Nuts, $12.20 to 12.30 per picul.

MACAO.—The Drug market was very quiet. The stock of Aniseed Oil was 120 piculs, for which $180 per picul was wanted. There were about 70 to 80 piculs of Cassia Oil on offer at $91 to 92 per picul. Aniseed Stars out of stock, but new crop expected very shortly.

MANILA.—Messrs. Smith, Bell, and Co.'s Circular says:—There has been somewhat more animation in the market, and rates of freight and exchange have slightly advanced. Sugar: In dry descriptions we have to note sales of close upon 20,000 piculs, extra at $5.25 per picul, and dealers, having satisfied their present wants, do not care to sell further at this price. Superior could be sold to a moderate extent at $4.50 per picul, but as that would leave a loss to dealers of about $1 per picul they are holding back on the chance of doing better later on, or at all events of being able to replace their stocks, which are large and costly, on more favourable terms. Unclayed: About 8,000 piculs have come forward from Taal during the fortnight, about half of which has been sold at $3.18¾ to 3.25 per picul, and the balance is held for higher prices. At Ilo Ilo and Cebu prices remain much about the same. Hemp has fallen to $.550 per picul (£21 11s. 2d.), and there are now no buyers at that. Quilot has been sold at from $6.31½ to 6.75 per picul (£25 4s. to £26 14s. 1d.).

SINGAPORE.—There had been a good demand for most of the principal articles of produce, and a fair business is reported in gambier, Tin, Coffee, Sago Flour, White Pepper, and Hides. Gambier had had a downward tendency, and the price receded from $4.67½ to 4.40 per picul; at the close there was more firmness, small transactions being reported at $4.42½ to 4.45 per picul, the total contracts amounted to 1,400 tons. There had been only small arrivals of Black Pepper, and no important supplies were expected until the new crop.

PENANG.—There had been a good demand for Tin. Black Pepper had been in limited inquiry; white had been in strong demand, and considerable purchases are reported. Other articles had been in moderate request, and showed little change in value.

RHEEA GRASS FIBRE.—The Gazette contains a notice from the India-office that the Government of India have offered prizes of Rs. 50,000 and Rs. 10,000 for the best machines or processes for preparing the fibre of Rheea, Ramie, or China grass from the plant in its green state. The trials will be made in India. Full particulars may be had on application to the Secretary of the Department of Statistics and Commerce at the India-office.

CHINESE NAVAL OFFICERS.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—In reading over the account which you gave in your last issue with regard to the Chinese naval officers who are now studying at home, I must say it struck me as somewhat liberal on the part of our Government to afford such material aid to the Chinese in case they should again wish to go to war with us. I, of course, presume the Lords of the Admiralty know what they are about; but it does seem to me somewhat strange that a number of Chinese should be sent on board our ironclads and to our arsenals to gain the fullest information as to what we are doing and the best way to set about opposing us. Is not this carrying international courtesy a shade too far?—Yours faithfully,

OUTSIDER.

HOLLAND.

AMSTERDAM, NOV. 14.

It seems to be the intention of the Ministers to lay the Budgets before the Second Chamber, and not to ask for provisional credits. The Minister of the Colonial Department has altered the Budget by erasing the estimates for the construction of new railways in Java and for the loan of sixteen millions, to cover the deficit. If the Budget is approved he will lay before the Members separate Bills to deal with these important matters. At the same time the Chamber will have an opportunity to discuss the question of introducing a poll-tax and a license-tax. Mr. Tak Van Poortoliet has been installed as Minister of the new Department for Public Works. His secretary-general is Mr. J. F. Boogard, of the Home Department. It gives much satisfaction that the Ministers who were Members of the Second Chamber will not offer themselves as candidates for re-election. They thus follow the old rule that a Minister should be a completely independent man. Mr. Kappeyne Van de Coppello has prepared a Bill to increase the number of our representatives by six. In a short time he will lay before the members a Reform Bill, which, it is said, will not be of a Radical character. Amongst the new candidates for the vacant seats in the Second Chamber are Mr. A. Kerdyk and Mr. A. van Assen. The last-named was formerly editor of a Batavia newspaper. The Second Chamber is convoked for the 19th inst. The Ministers seem thus to be quite ready with their Bills.

The last mail from Batavia brought us very painful news. The fact that some important houses of trade stopped payment was, of course, most deplorable, but the circumstances aggravated it enormously. The elucidations which are publfshed by the Batavia papers are very meagre, but in our private circles more seems to be known. The measure adopted by the Java Bank of publishing at once a statement to show the damages and losses which this institution underwent, made a very good impression. The quotations of the shares collapsed of course; they were sold yesterday at 180 per cent.—they lost ergo 15 per cent. Some fears also prevail that the Netherland-India Trading Bank will be involved in these failures. The prices of the shares were, however, well maintained. The closing quotations is 125¾. There are, of course, some fears entertained that these failures are only the beginning of the end, and that the Java trade is very rotten. The Conservative papers will of course ascribe this to the change of Governments-system, and they will plead the necessity to introduce again the system of adoration of the Golden Calf by squeezing the natives.

Dr. J. W. Gunning received some time ago from the Japanese Government a most valuable collection of Japanese coins, in return for services which he had rendered to that Government. The learned doctor has presented this little treasure to the public, and it is now on exhibition by the Artis Society, as an addition to the very valuable collection of Japan curiosities which it already possesses.

Up to this moment no light has been thrown upon two mysterious cases of death which occurred in this town, viz., that of Mr. de Geer Baers—a pensioned captain of the East India Army—and that of Mr. Kets, a sub-director of the Telegraph Department. The first one was said to be poisoned by his wife, who lived apart from him; she has been arrested, but no evidence has transpired. Mr. Kets was found in his own house, having his feet tied together and one of his arms and his head cut off. These affairs made much sensation in our town, where murders are very rare.

I regret to record that Mr. Goeman Borgesius, the editor of the Vaderland, who was some weeks ago elected as Member of the Second Chamber, has resigned. His place will be filled by Mr. A. Greebe, hitherto Burgomaster of Zaandam.

The nomination of Mr. A. E. Ten Brinck as Vice-Consul of France at Sourabaya has been approved by the King.

The Prince of Orange will arrive in a few days at the Hague. Prince Frederick will reside during the winter at his seat "het Huis de Pauw."

THIS MAIL'S NEWS.

A strong illustration of the urgent necessity for some steps being taken with regard to dredging the River Wangpu is contained in the papers brought by the present mail, and should have its effect in supporting the representations which are being made by the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce on the subject. The British steamer Tailsing was detained no less than nine days outside Woosung, in consequence of insufficiency of water on the Bar. The loss to the owners, and the inconvenience to trade generally by such an occurrence, should assuredly be sufficient to cause some action to be taken in the matter by the Chinese authorities, who receive such handsome tonnage dues from foreign shipping. At Shanghai much satisfaction is felt that the long-talked-of Steam Washing Company is at last likely to become á fait accompli, the whole of the necessary capital having been subscribed. A decree of divorce has been given in the United States Consular Court. As time goes on the prospects of the poor people in the North of China for the coming winter were becoming more and more serious, and grave distress was anticipated, to remedy which nothing had been done by the Chinese authorities. No less than thirteen out of the eighteen provinces of China were said to be afflicted either with drought, floods, or locusts. The officials were still actively engaged in obtaining torpedoes, which appear to be a favourite weapon of war with them; a trial of a new one from America was expected to come off shortly at Tientsin, and it was asserted that the Viceroy had contracted for fifty at $15,000 each. The memorial and recommendations of his Excellency Kwoh Sung-tao, the Chinese Minister to London, on opium smoking, have received a great deal of discussion among the Chinese, who are of opinion that though it would be a good thing to abolish the habit, it will be simply impossible to do so. A great deal of disappointment is again expressed regarding Chefoo, which seems likely to lose its popularity as a watering place. The cholera among the natives there had almost entirely disappeared, and the news from the other ports was to the effect that the cases were rapidly decreasing.

At Hong Kong a very strong application of the Passenger Ordinance has been made, the master of the Kinshan having been fined over $4,000 for carrying an excess of passengers, but it was expected this sum would be reduced by the Executive. Mr. H. Cope, of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, had left Hong Kong to establish a branch at Singapore. Duncan, the late Secretary of the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock, has been released from prison, the jail surgeon having certified that his life would be endangered by further incarceration. A new gunboat for the Chinese Government has undergone a satisfactory trial.

From Singapore we learn that the Legislative Council has passed the measure known as the "Perak Prisoners Bill." The question of the succession to the Government of Moar still remains unsettled. A meeting of the Chamber of Commerce has been held to devise some means for checking the adulteration of produce. The Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank has opened a branch at Singapore. The principality of Sarawak has been suffering greatly from prolonged drought. Several of the native chiefs in Atchin have tendered their submission to the Dutch authorities.

THE CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE AND THE CHEFOO CONVENTION.

WE are informed that, upon the basis of the representations from the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, to which we have already called attention, several of the leading Chambers, including those of Manchester, Bradford, and Edinburgh, intend taking steps to express their views with reference to the Chefoo Convention. The opinions entertained by the representatives of the commercial interests concerned concur, for the most part, in recognising the injury to the trade in our manufactured goods certain to result from the arrangement with reference to the Lekin tax which has been proposed by Sir THOMAS WADE. While the agreement that this impost shall not be raised on imports within the limits of the foreign settlements seems at first sight in favour of foreign merchants, it is in reality seriously against their interests, as it impliedly recognises the right to levy lekin without restriction upon such goods the moment they have passed the limits of the small foreign settlements, or, say, within half a mile of the place where they are landed. Thus the sanction of a treaty stipulation is given by a kind of side wind to the levy of a tax of a most harassing and irregular character, which it has always been considered illegal to lay on foreign goods, while the simple provisions of the 28th Article of the existing Treaty (of Tientsin), to the effect that the payment of a half the tariff duty as commutation of "all further inland charges whatsoever" is sufficient, if the Chinese be made to adhere to it, and there is certainly no valid reason why they should not be called upon to carry out this article in its true spirit. With regard to opium, there is little to be said so far as the lekin duties are concerned, as the Chinese Government is already at full liberty to collect any inland duties they see fit upon that article. We are not aware how far the Chambers of Commerce here may be disposed to express their opinion with reference to the settlement of the Yunnan outrage, but should they do so there can scarcely be any doubt that the conclusion must be unanimous that that settlement has been of a most unsatisfactory character, seeing that the criminals concerned—and especially TSEN-YU-YANG, the acting Governor of the Province, one and all escaped punishment.

THE KOREA.

A VARIETY of statements, having probably some little foundation, but evidently founded in part upon misapprehensions of the true bearing of the matter, have, as we have recently noticed, appeared in the public prints with reference to our establishing commercial relations with the Korea. According to one account, Sir HARRY PARKES was endeavouring to obtain trading concessions with that country from the Japanese Government, but this would certainly seem to be erroneous, as it must clearly rest with the Korea and not with Japan, whether she will accord trading rights to other foreign nations, even if there be any understanding with Japan which might appear to stand in the way. The exact foundation—if any—for this particular view of the subject has yet to be discovered; but it would seem probable that the matter is not being overlooked by Sir HARRY PARKES, and we trust he will direct his efforts to the opening up of the Korea to British trade, for which, from all accounts, the country is likely to offer a valuable field. It seems very anomalous that Japan should have exclusive privileges in this respect; and it can hardly be imagined that the Korean Government will refuse to grant similar advantages to other nations, if the subject be brought before them in a judicious and at the same time firm manner. They have had an opportunity of realising the advantages of trade with foreign countries in a manner which is certainly likely to impress them—namely, in connection with the relief afforded during the recent famine by the Japanese rice ships; and there seems no doubt that the prejudices which formerly existed against opening the country to foreigners are becoming diminished. Under the circumstances, we trust that due efforts will be made towards this end. Our interests are in able hands with Sir HARRY PARKES, and there can be little doubt of his success should he be supported by the Home Government.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

THE latest news from Sumatra would seem to indicate that the resources and resistance of the Atchinese are giving way, and that the long-expected, long-deferred termination of the struggle is at hand. It is hardly worth while to spend time in discussing proceedings which however regrettable cannot now be undone; nevertheless, we cannot help saying that the whole course of events, from the first outbreak of this war to the present moment, confirms us in the view which we have always held about it. Our then Government ought never to have damaged its credit among the native races by allowing a binding treaty, solemnly ratified, which secured the independence of the Sultan of ATCHIN, to be torn up without any reference to that potentate, and without any fault on his part; the outbreak at Perak might never have occurred but for the distrust thus excited amongst the native chiefs on the mainland. More immediately disastrous than this act of short-sighted impolicy has been the mode in which the Dutch have conducted their operations. When the subjugation of a feeble semi-civilised people has once been decided on, mercy and humanity—not to speak of expediency—demand that the business shall be carried out with such strength, vigour, and promptitude as to stop needless and protracted bloodshed, bringing back peace again at the earliest possible date. The Dutch system has been exactly the reverse; they have wasted their own resources, and crippled their own Colonial revenues for years to come, by consuming something like five years in lingering military operations; even yet they are not at the end of the business; those animosities which are most mischievous to peaceful happy industry and progress might already to some extent have passed away, whereas, after five campaigns of careful culture and nourishment they have taken deep root, and rankling in men's minds will prove a source of constant danger for a very long period of time.

For the above reasons we have always condemned the method employed by the Netherlands Government, urging that if they wish to develop the resources of Sumatra, to attract capital to its agriculture, and to induce Chinese immigrants to settle among the pepper plantations and tobacco fields, they should bring hostilities with a powerful arm to a summary close, and thus show that life and property are safe, peace secure, and that the Dutch flag is really able to guarantee protection and justice to all who may come to the country to trade. It was only a few months ago that a loud outcry was raised by the Dutch public denouncing the annexation of the Transvaal, and infamous caricatures were printed in Holland, accusing this country of greed, rapacity, faithlessness, and cruelty. It was hardly for the Dutch to have brought such accusations against us; we have never treated the people of the Transvaal as the Dutch have dealt with the Atchinese. According to the latest intelligence, every state in Atchin of any importance on the North, West, and East Coasts has now acknowledged the Dutch supremacy; one chief, indeed, has broken the terms under which he originally submitted; but he is seemingly a Raja of minor importance, and having been again blockaded is not expected to hold out long. Under these circumstances the land and naval forces are likely soon to be withdrawn, sufficient garrisons being left behind at the principal stations. We, of course, are not informed what the conditions are which are imposed on the subjugated Potentates; this is just one of those points on which our Government might with advantage inform itself; and though it has never seen its way to interfere during the actual progress of hostilities, yet considering that all the misery of the unfortunate chiefs might have been avoided had we not, purely to serve our own purposes, set aside the treaty which secured them in their independence, our Ministers have a fair ground for inquiring into the terms and stipulations on which peace is being re-established. Everything which may press unfairly on the Atchinese is likely to cause future disturbance, whereas English interests demand above all the insurance of a permanent peace. The free passage of the Straits of Malacca and the orderly government of the countries on both sides of it are really of consequence to us, and it is of consequence to us also that our trade with Sumatra shall be unhindered by needless artificial restrictions, unimpaired by any strained relations between the Dutch authorities and the local chiefs. If the good offices of the British nation in the way of mediation can still be erected with advantage to our own interests and advantage to the Atchinese—and on this point Lord CARNARVON ought to be able to judge—those good offices should without hesitation be employed.

We know that there is a reluctance on the part of our Government to interfere in the affairs of another, especially in what relates to a remote quarter of the globe; but—setting aside the immediate trade interest which we have in the proper settlement of the Atchin question—it must be remembered that the Atchinese have claims upon us as allies who deserted them, and that the Dutch are bound to give weight to our fair representations, seeing that their own independence as a nation rests on our protecting guarantee. We have undertaken very serious obligations on behalf of the Dutch, and have a right in return to claim from them special attention to our suggestions, and special regard for our interests. If the Dutch Royal Family should become extinct, which is a far from impr bable contingency, the people of Holland know and fear that there is a risk, in such an event, of their own absorption by Germany. We have indeed guaranteed them against forcible annexation by any Foreign Power, but, setting aside the possibility of our finding ourselves unable to carry out our guarantee, we have still to face the chance of an absorption as opposed to an annexation, that is, that when the Dutch Blood Royal fails the people may be induced voluntarily to unite themselves to Prussia or some other Power. Now it is certainly not desirable that the paramount control of one side of the Straits of Malacca should pass from Holland to some stronger European Power; but as such an event might happen, British Statesmanship should exercise its foresight now in seeing that the relations and obligations finally established between the Dutch and the chiefs of Atchin are equitable, and such as we would wish them to be even if the control over Sumatra had been transferred from the Netherlands to some stronger hand.

WE notice with much pleasure that so good a champion as Sir EDMUND HORNBY, late Chief Judge of H.M.'s Supreme Court for China and Japan, has come forward, in the letter to the Spectator which we reproduce elsewhere, to vindicate the residents of Hong Kong from the unfair aspersions which have been cast upon them in connection with the recent discussion as to prison discipline. Sir EDMUND shows clearly that the visiting magistrates, mostly merchants resident in Hong Kong, have erred, if anything, on the side of leniency, and as regards the necessity for inflicting corporal punishment, his opinion agrees with that which we expressed in our last week's issue, and which, as we stated, is in accordance with that of Sir JOHN SMALE, Chief Justice of Hong Kong, and of others thoroughly qualified from their long experience to judge on the subject. It is, perhaps, needless to add that Sir EDMUND HORNBY, while maintaining the necessity of corporal punishment, holds that "it ought not to be administered except with due precaution against excessive "severity and danger to life."

WE understand that Mr. FORREST, Acting Consul at Swatow, will succeed Mr. MONGAN at Tientsin, who comes home on leave. Mr. HILLIER returns to China by this mail, and Mr. STRONACH leaves early next month, and will probably take charge of the Consulate at Pakhoi. Mr. MIDDLETON has definitely resigned his appointment in the service. We are glad to hear that Mr. HARVEY'S health has much improved since his arrival in England. The full scheme for the China and Japan Consular Service is, we believe, before the Treasury for approval. Pending this, the notice for a further batch of Student Interpretors has not been issued.

THE Pall Mall Gazette publishes a letter, which we reproduce in to-day's issue, purporting to come from SAIGO'S headquarters. The transmission of the document and its publication are both somewhat curious. It has evidently been delayed, and it is somewhat strange that the Editor should, in inserting it, have overlooked the fact that SAIGO was overthrown and the rebellion ended by the Imperialist victory on Sept. 24. The letter (if authentic) is at least interesting, as showing how high the hopes of the insurgents were only three weeks before their downfall.

THE REV. E. REEVES PALMER, M.A., has resigned the pastorate of the Congregational Church at Theddingworth, near Rugby, having accepted the charge of the Union Chapel, Shanghai, for which place he will leave by the steamer Cyphrenes. By the same vessel the directors of the London Missionary Society are sending out the Rev. THOMAS TAYLOR, B.A., and Mrs. TAYLOR as missionaries of the Society. They are destined, with others, to commence missionary labour in the province of Szchuen. The Society are negotiating for a minister for the chapel at Hong Kong.

THE CHINESE ENVOYS.

Liu Ta Jen, the late Assistant Chinese Minister at the Court of St. James, left London on the morning of the 13th instant for Berlin, to which Court he has been accredited as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary. His suite consisted of Li Shu-Chang, Secretary of Legation at this Court, but temporarily detached until the arrival of Liu Ta Jen's staff from China; Liu Fu yi, Second Secretary; Chang Szn Hsün, and Mr. A. O. Brown, Attaché, of the Chinese Customs Service.

The reception of Kuo Ta Jen at the Lord Mayor's Banquet on the 9th instant was exceedingly cordial, the guests, 900 in number, cheering him, as the saying is, to the echo. He went out through the day, and from a window on the first floor of a house at Temple Bar saw the procession as it passed through that interesting old relic, where, hundreds of years ago, the heads of evil-doers used to be exposed as they are at this day at the gates of the cities in China. If ever he entertained the notion that our absence of show and contempt for ceremonial was a proof of our barbarism he must have felt somewhat astonished when told that the gorgeous pageant which was passing under his eyes had been yearly celebrated in much the same manner for nearly a thousand years. He would see that the processions and the flowing robes of the Chinese were indications of a condition of society not to which we were approaching, but which we had long ago passed through, preserving only the last vestige of it in the Lord Mayor's Show. His Excellency must have seen that, plain people as we are, even a thousand years ago we could have taught them a lesson in things in which his countrymen are apt to consider us deficient.

THE JAPAN REBELLION.

The following is the letter addressed to the Pall Mall Gazette, to which we allude elsewhere :—

Satsuma, Japan, Headquarters Southern Army,
Kagoshima, Sept. 2, 1877.

SIR,—By order of his Excellency Marshal Saigo, Commander-in-Chief of the Japanese Army of the South, we forward you this despatch for general information. On the morning of the 1st inst. our troops, under the command of Lieutenant-General Kirino, were ordered to attack the Imperial troops at Kagoshima. Our brave soldiers fought nobly, and, although opposed to double their number, in ten hours we compelled, with bayonet and broadsword, the so-called Imperialists to run and evacuate our capital, leaving thousands of their dead and wounded behind them, including two general officers. Vast quantities of stores, guns, ammunition, &c., have fallen into our hands; also treasure to the amount of yen 700,000. This important and great victory won by our brave soldiers and noble people will teach our insolent and despotic self-made Ministers a lesson. They thought proper to treat our people as slaves, and gave themselves up to all sorts of debauchery, and were content to sit idly watching our people's distress, making laws and issuing proclamations one day and countermanding the next—all in the name of our beloved Sovereign, the Mikado, who all know is a prisoner or puppet in their hands. We are now fighting for our liberty, fighting for our homes, fighting for the personal liberty of our Sovereign; and we are determined to obtain the right to petition his Majesty, the Mikado, who is descended from the gods, to remove the wicked councillors who surround him, and who have crept into place and power to gratify their own selfish and ambitious ends. It is these men who are accountable for this civil war, and now they are sending their foreign drilled hirelings to burn our quiet homesteads, assassinate our leaders, and betray our country.

A. KAMATZ, Lieutenant-General, 4th Division,
Secretary to his Excellency Marshal Saigo.

SIR EDMUND HORNBY ON THE RESIDENTS IN HONG KONG.

(To the Editor of the Spectator.)

Sir,—In a paragraph in the Spectator of last week you draw attention to the action of Mr. Pope Hennessy with reference to the Hong Kong jail, in which you allow an inference to be drawn by the British public that the foreign residents of Hong Kong look with favour on a system of prison discipline which is cruel and unnecessary towards Chinese prisoners. I am not going to pronounce any opinion on the course pursued by the Governor, because I do not know sufficiently the facts on which he has been, or is acting; but I think you are a little hard upon the colonists. During the twelve years I acted as Her Majesty's Chief Judge for China and Japan I had frequent opportunities, and indeed made it my business, to inquire into the management and discipline of the colonial jail, as until the completion of the jail in Shanghai the prisoners sentenced on the mainland by British authority had to be sent to Hong Kong, there to undergo their several terms of imprisonment. It became therefore my duty to look into the discipline of the place in which they were confined, and I did so, always once a year, and frequently more often.

While the jail was under the charge of the late Mr. Douglas I had only one complaint to make, and that in the direction of over-leniency; in this way I thought he erred, in common with the visiting magistrates, residents in the island, most of them being merchants. It struck me that, as regards the Chinese prisoners, their confinement was made rather too comfortable, and that the prison was likely to become a place of rather too favourite resort; in other words, the prisoners were so well treated that their confinement almost ceased to be a punishment. Your table of figures might seem conclusive to any one who did not know the character of the criminal population of Hong Kong. The lower class of Chinese who inhabit the colony, and who flee to it from the mainland, are amongst the most dangerous, persistent, and insubordinate of any criminals I know of, and the amount of crime committed by them in Hong Kong is astounding, bearing no comparison with that committed in any other part of the world; while the difficulty of detection and bringing offenders to justice is almost beyond belief, as the more respectable Chinese dare not give evidence, in consequence of the terror exercised over them by the gangs of ruffians living in their midst. Perhaps you will be astonished to hear that it is unsafe for a European to take a walk across the island alone even in broad daylight, and that robberies, accompanied with terrible and cruel violence, are of common occurrence in the streets. The offences against prison discipline of which the perpetrators of these crimes are guilty during their confinement are such as, in my humble judgment, can only be punished or checked by severe corporal punishment; and although it ought not to be administered except with due precaution against excessive severity and danger to life, I am certain that it will be impossible to maintain the necessary amount of discipline without it. As to expecting that Chinese turnkeys will, in the face of the consequences that may ensue to them, do their duty, I simply do not expect anything of the kind; but of this I am certain, that so far as the foreign residents of Hong Kong are concerned, it is no feeling of inhumanity, or careless disregard of how Chinese criminals are treated which induces them to forward complaints to London on the subject of the changes introduced by their new Governor.

It requires a very stiff upper lip and the excercise of most unpleasant firmness to maintain proper discipline amongst the ruffians who by accident, rather than by the hand of justice, find their way into Hong Kong Jail. I trust, Sir, I am as humane as most men, but an experience of twenty years has convinced me that in countries where no rational system of education exists, and where the object of native society seems, from fear or other motive, to be to screen criminals, rather than aid in bringing them to justice, sentimental notions as to corporal punishment, or the particular place where it should be inflicted, are altogether out of place.—I am, Sir, &c., EDMUND HORNBY,

Late Her Majesty's Chief Judge for China and Japan.

Monetary and Commercial.

The Crown Agents for the Colonies received tenders Thursday for £100,000 Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Debentures of the Government of the Straits Settlements. The applications amounted in the aggregate to £291,600. The minimum was fixed at 98. Tenders at and above £99 3s. will receive in full, and at £99 0s. 6d. will participate. The average price realised on the whole was £99 6s. 3d.

At the meeting of the Eastern Extension Australasian and China Telegraph Company Thursday, the chairman, Mr. Pender, M.P., in moving the adoption of the report, stated that the interruption of the cable with Port Darwin had caused so much excitement in the colonies that it was now hoped negotiations for duplicating the line to Australia at the cost of the Colonial Government would be completed. One of the Company's members would probably proceed to Australia to bring matters to a conclusion. It was in the present day most important that all telegraph lines should be duplicated, so that they might be entirely relied upon.

The dividend to be recommended by the directors of the P. and O. Company at the annual meeting on the 4th proximo will be 2½ per cent. for the half-year ended 30th September last, making, with the interim dividend paid in June, 4½ per cent. for the year. The total payment for the year 1876 was 3½ per cent.

The failure is announced of Messrs. Borradaile, Schiller and Co., Calcutta, with liabilities from £150,000 to £200,000. The drafts on London in the hands of the banks are all covered by shipping documents. Shipowners are large creditors on charter engagements.

We regret to learn that the arrangements which it was for some time past hoped could be made with a view to carrying on Messrs. White Brothers' business have fallen through, and that the suspension of the firm is now announced. The transactions of the house have been mainly in connection with Silk.

During the week the Tea market has been quieter, a reaction having apparently set in from the large transactions induced by the extraordinarily low prices last week, the importers having at last made a stand against any further decline. The telegrams from China still reiterate the belief in a considerable falling off in the export, and there seems to be some tangible ground for this conclusion, as the arrivals at the shipping ports are actually 15,000,000 lbs. less than at last season to date. But for the eagerness of a few firms in China, a total cessation of shipments would most certainly have set in, as the disastrous position of this market has apparently been tardily realised on that side. So great is the rivalry at Foochow that one firm has actually had three agents at work, each eagerly competing for the Teas as they arrive from the interior, which latterly consisted only of common kinds. The prospects for good to fine Teas say over 1s. 4d. to next July are even brighter than we have already noted—as consumption continues largely on these grades—which are not so much interfered with by the supplies from India, which latter are admittedly inferior to those of previous seasons. Some large parcels of common teas lately imported from Canton and Macao are of exceptionally inferior quality, and prices have been beaten down to 7d. for common Caper.

During the week there has been a moderate business in Silk, but at rather lower prices. It is, however, difficult to give any definite report, as the tone has been various, and transactions fitful and undecided. This state of matters chiefly results from the increased uncertainty with regard to political affairs in France.

The Piece Goods trade continues in a most unsatisfactory state, chiefly on account of the over-shipments to the East, aggravated by the continuously low range of exchange; and manufacturers are willing to make large contracts at some concession. Woollen shipments, however, having been more moderate, have given better results of late. The common brands of iron (chiefly Belgian make) are still at a very low ebb in China, though superior quality appears to be in better demand. Lead has also been in excessive shipment, with the same unsatisfactory results.

In the Produce Markets there has been no new feature exhibited, business continuing on a small scale and with an utter absence of animation. Ceylon Coffee has been in very limited demand, and all qualities except fine coloury are lower. Pepper, Sugar and Rice continue very dull. Gambier, Tapioca and Tin have declined. Pearl Tapioca and Sago are firm at a slight advance in value. Other articles show no alteration.

A commercial case of exceptional interest to people connected with the Manchester trade, namely, that of Williamson v. Barbour, is now being heard before the Master of the Rolls. The amount involved is very large, and the recognised "custom of trade" in Manchester is involved in the issue. There is at all events sufficient reason to consider the case an open one, and some of the best Manchester houses appear to have been rendered somewhat uneasy as to the issue—if we may judge by the modifications which several of them have made in their mode of quoting for goods since this dispute began to be spoken of, now several years ago. It appears that the defendants had conducted their business upon the approved Manchester system, which, as is perfectly well-known, is based upon a neucleus of commission extensively eked out by what is euphemistically called in the northern dialect "pickings." These consist of discounts obtained, but not allowed to the buyer, surcharges for packing, variations in price of goods, and a variety of other time-honoured perquisites, which of themselves amount to a handsome remuneration. But it would seem from the evidence in the case that the custom has been to charge constituents a commission in addition to these other sums, which, it is claimed, taints the other profits with illegitimacy. The case derives much of its practical importance from the fact that the plaintiffs claim to reopen all the accounts of shipments between them and the defendants, extending over the last twenty-five years. It is obvious that if there is anything in their claim at all—and the expenses already incurred are sufficient to lead to this presumption—the effect will be to call forth other similar actions on the part of firms in India and China who have been doing a regular business in Piece Goods, and have been steadily parting with their capital, so much so, indeed, that in many cases the process of exhaustion has been completed, while the Manchester merchant has been, as a rule, growing rich and prosperous.

The following are the latest quotations of Banking and other Companies connected with the Far East:—Agra Bank, 10¾ to 11¼; Chartered Bank of India, 21 to 22; Chartered Mercantile Bank, 26½ to 27½; Comptoir D'Escompte, f.651¼; Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, 36 to 38; Oriental Bank, 42½ to 43½; P. and O. In consequence of the German Government coming into the market as sellers of Bar Silver, the price has seriously declined; business has been done at 54¼d. per oz. Mexican Dollars have also declined in sympathy with Bar Silver, and those by the West India steamer, £14,000 in value, have been placed at 52⅞d. per oz.

The P. and O. Company's steamer Hindostan was despatched from Southampton Thursday with the heavy portion of the next outward mail. She takes £443,329 in specie, including £25,000 in silver for Shanghai, £22,219 in silver for Hong Kong, and £110 in gold for Galle.

TEA.

Messrs. Arthur Capel and Co.'s Circular says:—Although the public auctions without reserve have been on a smaller scale it has failed to produce any improvement in the demand by private contract. The more desirable parcels from the late arrivals have found buyers at fair prices, but for the great bulk of the Teas offered there have been no reasonable offers. Prices generally remain much as last week. Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings have been inquired for at from 6d. to 6½d. per lb., showing no change. Common to fair common have been saleable at from 7¼d. to 7⅜d. per lb., good common showing no change. Fair Kaisow kinds are without improvement, but the brisk Saryune kinds are readily taken; medium to good kinds have been taken in small quantities at about previous prices; fine to finest kinds have met with but little demand. In Pak Lin kinds there is no new feature to notice. Black-leaf kinds: Common to fair common have sold from 7¼d. to 7½d. per lb.; good common has sold at public auction from 7⅜d. to 8d. per lb.; fair kinds, at 8½d. to 11d., are without alteration; in the medium to good and fine kinds there has not been much done, but where sales have been pressed rather lower rates have been taken; in finest only a small business has been done. New-make kinds: Common remain without change; fair to good kinds have sold about 1d. per lb. lower. Oolongs: The fair to good kinds of Amoy show no change. Good to fine Formosa kinds remain firm. Souchongs remain much as before, the demand being inactive. Scented Teas.—Canton Capers: There has been a general inquiry for low to common kinds for price, but all the better kinds are at present difficult of sale, even at lower prices. Orange Pekoes: The long-leaf kinds have sold rather under previous rates. The Macao kinds are without demand. Foochow Capers are only saleable at low prices. Orange Pekoes are in full supply, and sales difficult to make. Green Teas: There is no material change to notice. Fine Young Hysons sell at full prices, but all other kinds have ruled rather easier. The public sales have been smaller, comprising only 10,476 packages, which have been sold without reserve. The deliveries since the 1st of the month as compared with last year are as follows, viz.:—

Home Consumption	4,282,962 ...	4,425,190
Coastwise	1,415,849 ...	1,706,273
Exports	1,530,974 ...	1,073,069
	*7,229,785	7,204,532

SILK.

A moderate business at declining and somewhat irregular prices has to be noted. The deliveries have been somewhat smaller, and disinclination to operate for the time being has been manifested. The business done has not been sufficiently large to form a basis for reliable report.

to 113s. Native Ceylon has met offers only at a decline of 1s. to 2s., and has been chiefly bought in; only about 300 bags being sold, ordinary and small at 73s. to 77s., fine bold at 93s. to 93s. 6d., peaberry at 88s.; 202 bags fine ordinary Ouvah were bought in at 88s. Of 759 bags Manila and Singapore offered 220 bags sold, mixed pale kinds at 78s. to 80s., brownish Campar at 75s. to 76s., Pari Pari at 80s., the remainder being bought in, good pale Manila at 87s., picked Bally at 80s. per cwt. The Dutch Trading Company have announced their public sale for the 21st inst., when 98,500 bags Java will be offered, against 113,468 bags in 1876.

COTTON.—Early in the week American was in good demand, and prices recovered 1-16d. per lb. The market afterwards became dull, a weak tone has prevailed, and prices of American are easier; East India sorts are also occasionally cheaper. The sales for the week are about 7,505 bales. On the spot Tinnivelly 5⅞d. to 6⅛d., fully fair to good; Western Madras 5¼d. to 5⅜d., fair to good; Coconada 5⅛d. fair; Bengal 4⅞d. to 5 1-16d., good fair to good; Rangoon 4 15-16d. to 5⅛d., good fair to good; Dhollera 5 5-16d., good fair; China 6⅛d.

CHINA PRESERVES.—At auction of 1,140 cases Ginger offered 450 cases sold, a few lots of old import at 5¼d., new Mansing in large jars also at 5¼d., ditto in small jars 6⅛d. to 6⅜d., being steady; 25 cases dry ditto withdrawn.

GALLS.—Business has been done in China at 54s. per cwt.

GAMBIER has been dull, with sellers at 19s. 6d. on the spot, and 19s. for arrival. For arrival about 600 tons November-December shipment have been sold at 19s. to 18s. 10½d. ex ship. There are buyers for arrival at this decline, but holders are firm, and no further sales have been effected.

JAPAN WAX.—100 boxes good small yellowish saucers bought in at 50s.

JAPAN TALLOW.—18 tubs sold, good yellow at 38s. 9d., rather dark and dark 38s., and two cases dark dregged at 34s.

SUGAR.—Early in the week there was more demand for refining West India for an outport, and prices slightly recovered. Some other kinds also met more inquiry at the previous reduction. The improved tone was not maintained, and renewed dulness has since prevailed, sales being slowly effected at previous rates for low brown, and about 6d. cheaper for West India, and other refining kinds; good crystallised is firm. The following is a record of the week's business in East Indian descriptions:—On the 9th inst. in auction 912 bags washed fine grocery Penang sold at 27s. to 27s. 6d. On the 10th 15,000 bags unclayed Taal Manila sold at 15s. On the 13th in auction of 2,857 bags European Penang about 2,380 bags sold at lower rates, good ordinary brown at 18s., middling to fine brown at 18s. 3d. to 20s. On the 14th in auction 1,442 bags unclayed Manila, from Mauritius, were bought in at 16s., but 1,100 bags afterwards sold at 15s. On the 15th the floating cargo per Jane Woodburn, 6,340 bags brown China, sold at 15s. for the United Kingdom.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

On the 12th inst. the increased activity in the Liverpool Cotton Market strengthened the tone, and brought out more buyers the result being somewhat more business in some instances, at a slight advance on previous rates. On the 13th offers were more generally made, but with the firmness of producers buyers progressed but slowly, their views as to price restricting business considerably. The general tone of the market has been quieter since the 13th, but producers have held firmly to their quotations whenever business has been offered on low terms. On the 16th the inquiry from all quarters was on a diminished scale, but, notwithstanding the slack demand, quotations were maintained with some degree of steadiness, neither spinners nor manufacturers seeming disposed to concede on the already unremunerative prices.

CASUALTIES.

PORTSMOUTH.—Nov. 10, the Good Hope (str.), Sunderland to Java, has put into Motherbank, with heavy list to starboard, having shifted cargo.

RAMSGATE.—Nov. 12, the Noach I., Rotterdam to Batavia, drove ashore in Pegwell Bay, and lost two anchors and chains; she was towed off next tide, and came into this port.

COWES, ISLE OF WIGHT.—Nov. 12, the Laurel, Japan to Falmouth, has arrived here with loss of port bulwarks from main to fore-rigging. The vessel shipped a sea off the Lizard on 10th inst., and the master considers the cargo is damaged.

PLYMOUTH.—Nov. 13, the Elmina, Amsterdam to Padang, has put in here with loss of several sails, and iron work from lower topsail yard; she experienced a very heavy gale on 11th inst., thirty miles off Scilly.

PILL.—Nov. 13, the Lanusei, Bassein to Queenstown, has been forced up the Bristol Channel, and docked at Avonmouth; she has several of the crew sick, and intends to discharge cargo.

RIO DE JANEIRO.—Oct. 23, the Paolina K. has been chartered for £700 to take on to Samarang the cargo of the Abel, and will commence loading in a day or two. The Flying Eagle, New York to Java, put in here on Oct. 18, leaking in upper works; a survey has been held, and vessel will partly discharge, and fit new pumps.

HYDROGRAPHIC NOTICES.

Pih-Quan Harbour.—The following information relating to Pih-quan harbour has been recently received. All bearings are magnetic. Variation 1° Westerly in 1877. Sunken Danger.—Mr. Williams, master of the steam ship Chefoo, reports having found a rock, in mid-channel at the entrance to Pih-quan harbour, on which at three-quarters flood a heavy sea broke. From this danger the islet at the south end of Chin-quan island bore W. by N.; and Ping-fong rock (west side of Ping-fong island) bore N. by E. Vessels entering or leaving Pih-quan harbour should guard against this reported sunken danger. Anchorage.—Pih-quan harbour is well protected from sea and wind during the N.E. monsoon; H.M.S. Growler, in October 1874, when making the inshore passage from Amoy to Shanghai, obtained shelter with the west extreme of Ping-fong island bearing S.E. ¾ S., and the south-east extreme of Chin-quan island bearing S.W. ¼ W., in three fathoms at low water, muddy bottom, and good holding ground. The tidal streams are very strong in Pih-quan harbour.—Hydrographic-office, Admiralty, November, 1877.

Japan—West Coast—Goto Islands—Sunken Danger near Hodge Rock (Shiro-Se).—The following information relative to a sunken danger bearing S.W. ¾ W., distant 6¾ miles from Hodge rock the north-westernmost islet of the Goto group, is derived from an examination made in H.M. surveying vessel Sylvia, by Captain St. John, 1876. This rock (Korai-no-ze), with 18 feet water, lies near the south-east edge of a rocky bank; this bank extending N.W. by N., three quarters of a mile, with a breadth of 4 cables, has from 5 to 10 fathoms. At 3 cables southward of the rock the depth is 20 fathoms; and at half a mile from the depth of 5½ fathoms on the northern edge of the bank there is 38 fathoms. Position, lat. 33° 7′ 10″ N., long. 128° 42′ 40″ E. Clearing Marks: North point of Biriyo-sima in line with the north peak of Nosaki-sima bearing E. ⅝ N., leads northward of Korai-no-ze. South point of Hira-sima in line with the north peak of Nosaki-sima bearing E. by N. ¼ N., leads southward of Korai-no-ze. Note: The names, Biriyo-sima and Hira-sima, on existing charts, should be transposed.—Hydrographic-office, Admiralty, October, 1877.

GENERAL SHIPPING NEWS.

MISSING SHIPS.—It is officially announced at Lloyd's that the Eaglet, Captain Nicol, sailed from Nagasaki for Shanghai, with coals, on July 11 last, and was seen during a heavy typhoon which occurred between July 13 and 14, but has not since been heard of. The Golconda, of Glasgow, from Bassein to Hamburg, with rice, was spoken on May 27 last, in lat. 22 S., long. 58 E., and has not since been heard of. Much anxiety is felt respecting the missing West India Mail steamer, Mexican, which left Port Royal, South Carolina, for Liverpool, on the 12th September, and is now forty-two days overdue. She had a crew of thirty-eight hands and a valuable cargo on board, but no passengers.

THE SUEZ CANAL.—The traffic receipts of the Suez Canal Company from shipping during the month of October and for the first ten months of 1877, compared with 1876 and 1875, were as follow:—

	Month of October
	1877.	1876.	1875.
Vessels ...	125	105	119
Tolls (francs) ...	2,490,000	2,384,616	2,476,463
	First ten months.
Vessels ...	1,381	1,223	1,242
Tolls (francs) ...	27,286,606	24,871,730	23,898,466

MR. ROBERT THOMPSON, junior, has launched from his shipbuilding-yard at Southwick, on the Wear, an iron sailing barque, built to the order of Mr. Peter Iredale, of Liverpool. The following are her principal dimensions:—Length, 214½ feet; breadth, 34 feet 6 inches; depth of hold, 21 feet 6 inches. She is 1,070 tons gross register, and has been built under special survey for Lloyd's 100 A class. The vessel is fitted with all the latest improvements, and is intended for the China trade. She has been named the Lizzie Bell.

TONITE, OR COTTON POWDER.

THE SAFEST, STRONGEST, AND CHEAPEST OF ALL EXPLOSIVES.

Recommended to MINERS, PIT SINKERS, QUARRYMEN, and CONTRACTORS as the MOST EFFICIENT and ECONOMICAL BLASTING AGENT ever invented.

Results of practical experience show a saving of from 15 to 20 per cent. over the strongest explosives previously in use.

It saves labour in drilling holes, as a less number of holes are needed.

It does not require thawing, but is ready for use at all temperatures and in all climates.

It can also be advantageously used in breaking up boulders, extracting stumps, removing wrecks, exploding torpedoes, and for submarine purposes in general, as well as for signal lights and fog signals for ships.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

ROCK TO THE EASTWARD OF POOTOO ISLAND.

Notice is hereby given, that Captain Petersen, of the C.M.S.N. Company's steamer Ho-chung, has reported a Rock, unmarked on the Charts, to the Eastward of Pootoo Island, and he gives the following magnetic bearings as determining its position :—

West Nine Pin Rock ..... N. 33° E.
Half Tide Rock ..... N. 12° E.
N.W. Point of Isthmus Island ..... N. 14° W.
Northern end of Pootoo E. Bluff ..... N. 49° W.

The Harbour-Master at Ningpo has verified the position of this pinnacle rock, and reported that there will probably be only 6 feet of water on it at low water spring tides, with from 7 to 13 fathoms round it.

Summary of News from the Far East.

YOKOHAMA.

Very little of local importance has occurred, and the chief subject of public attention continued to be the cholera. It is, however, satisfactory to note that the form was very mild, that the public apprehension at first felt had very much diminished, and that the number of deaths had decreased. The action taken by the Board of Health is very favourably spoken of. At the first announcement of the existence of cholera in the native town, five medical gentlemen voluntarily convinced themselves of the truth of the statement by personal investigation, and proceeded to make an inspection of the fouler portions of the foreign settlement, the condition of which was found to be filthy and dangerous beyond description. Upon the representations made by these gentlemen to the Consular Body, they were organised into a Board of Health, with power to enlarge their number, as seemed necessary, by the addition either of medical men or of laymen. Authority was given by the Consuls to enter and inspect all foreign compounds and dwellings, a refusal to allow of such inspection, or to carry out the reasonable instructions of the Board, to be met by reporting the case to the individual Consul, having jurisdiction in the premises. As one result of their labours, the formerly filthy and dangerous Chinese town has, by arrangement with the Japanese authorities, been placed under the joint supervision of the chief medical officer of the Kencho and a representative of the Board of Health, and now this portion of Yokohama is in as perfect a sanitary condition as is possible without its total destruction or reconstruction, while but a short time ago its condition could not have been much worse than it was. By far the greater portion of the labour and expense involved in the Augean task of cleansing and disinfecting the Chinese town has been assumed by the Kencho.

Various details of an interesting character are given with reference to the late rebellion. The Japan Herald has the following:—

Information of the attack on the rebel positions at Shiroyama on Sept. 24 has been given us by one who was among the Imperialists on the day after the fight, and saw the bodies brought in by the troops to head-quarters for identification. Our informant says the bodies of Kirino, Beppu, and Hemmi were laid side by side, that of Kirino being fearfully mutilated by sword cuts, while his right temple was laid open by a shell splinter. The others bore witness by their wounds to having made a desperate resistance against the overwhelming odds brought to bear on them. Next the body of Kirino laid the headless trunk of a man of large stature and powerful build, whose head had been unsuccessfully sought for during the interval after the battle. However, while the narrator of the above was present, a party of men came in, bringing with them a head, which, when placed on the trunk, was found to correspond with it. He describes the corpse to be that of a tall, powerful man, with a remarkably clear skin; the face showed signs of having been recently shaved, the hair curled slightly, and a bullet wound was visible near the left nipple, and a bayonet or small-sword wound in the abdomen. How or where this body and head were found he did not learn. The force against the rebels was nearly 15,000 men, which, having captured the forts on Shiroyama, turned the guns in them on the rebels, who thus were beset front and rear, very few escaping, and but 150 prisoners taken.

A few hours after the battle at Shiroyama the scene of the final encounter between Imperialists and rebels was visited by some gentlemen, who give the following information:—The bodies of the slain thickly strewed the ground; in one place at the foot of the hill fully fifty men lay piled in one ghastly heap; it was here they had endeavoured to break through the ranks of their opponents, and must have been mowed down by one volley. Of the prisoners taken, who were few, all were badly wounded, and showed signs of having made a stubborn resistance. Lying side by side on the grass, apart from the rest, were the bodies of Kirino, Beppu, Hemmi and Murata, covered with wounds, and the headless trunk of Saigo Takamori, the famous leader, whose head was buried, but discovered some short time after, and fully identified; indeed, his body from certain well known marks was identified beforehand. He was a man of large build and great height; four coolies bent under their burden as they carried him from the spot. The rebel leaders were all buried that day in the precincts of a temple, the corpse of Saigo being placed in a packing case, which proved too short for the body, the feet protruding. On the earth being filled in, the graves were marked with headboards having the names inscribed on them. Hundreds of the rebels were also interred, but in such a slight and inefficient manner that the air of the place became unbearable. We are told also that when the rebels entered Kagoshima on Sept. 1 they showed great barbarity to the Imperialists who fell into their hands, some few Kencho officials whom they captured being cut in pieces, while the runaway people on their approach were driven into the harbour and drowned. The bodies of many were seen floating about for days afterwards. But the most shocking cruelty was the inhuman treatment of the wounded in the hospital, who, helpless to defend themselves or flee, had their arms and legs hacked off, and were left to die. The attack on the rebel position on Shiroyama took place at four A.M., and as it was then dark, the scene as witnessed from the shipping was fearfully grand; while as the day broke the combatants themselves were plainly visible; but although the rebels made a courageous stand at first, they were so outnumbered that the whole affair, ending in their almost annihilation, occupied but two hours.

The expenditure of the Government in suppressing the late rebellion is stated to be upwards of thirty-seven million yen, or, in other words, paper representing that sum has been emitted from the Treasury. Now, the kinsatsu in circulation before issued amount to not quite three times that sum, and were rather more than equal to the trade necessities of the country, because kinsatsu were at a slight discount. It is scarcely to be comprehended that with such a very large addition to the inconvertible currency the discount upon it does not rapidly increase,—for increase it must. No doubt fat profits have been made by army contractors and others during the war, and a large amount of paper has passed into the hands of persons not formerly possessed of much, but the absorption of paper money in these ways can only be regarded as temporary; much of it must come back upon the centres of commerce in exchange for commodities, and then a decline will set in. Such has been the universal experience in other countries, as witness the condition of the currencies of Austria, Russia, Turkey, Italy, and America.

We hear that General Van Buren, U.S. Consul-General to Japan, has the option given him by the President of continuing in office. If this be the case, we may expect that General Van Buren will, after a brief visit to America, return to Japan, where he will be welcomed by the community.

The ceremony of naming the newly-born prince took place on Sept. 29, and the day was observed as a holiday at the public offices.

Oyama, who was governor of Kagoshima at the outbreak of the late insurrection, and who was deeply implicated in the conspiracy, was sentenced to death, and beheaded on Sept. 30.

Far the most serious accident which has yet taken place on the railways in Japan since they have been opened to traffic occurred on the night of Oct. 6 just before nine o'clock, at a point between Sumiyoshi Station and the Ashiyagawa tunnel, by a collision between the 8.30 train from Kobe and a return train of empty carriages which had been employed in carrying troops to Kioto. Why the accident happened is to the full as much a mystery as why any other railway accident happens, and we have not even in this country the satisfaction of knowing that a coroner's inquest might throw some light on the subject, however useless it might be as an instrument towards inducing reforms. As railway officials are no more disposed in Japan than at home to permit the public—or their agent, the newspaper press—to pry into accidents and their causes, and as everybody who has lived in Japan perfectly well knows that the truth, even if discoverable, will only be allowed to leak out at the pleasure of the Government, we shall be easily credited when we say that we have had no small trouble in arriving at the facts, seeing that the only two foreigners on the spot at the time were the engine drivers of the two trains, who are now both at the International Hospital so dangerously ill that access to them has been—very properly—refused by the Medical Director of that establishment. All that is absolutely certainly known is that a train of about twenty-five empty carriages left Nishinomiya just before nine o'clock, and ran against the 8.30 train from Kobe. The stokers of both trains were killed, as was one other Japanese. The two engine drivers were brought back and lodged in the International Hospital, and one Japanese is in the Native Hospital. Both engines are considerably damaged, several carriages were smashed, and it was only the accident of the 8.30 train to Osaka being on that occasion almost without passengers that the catastrophe was not more painful.

From the Japan Mail we take the following:—

His Imperial Highness Arisugawa-no-Miya, the commander-in-chief of the Imperial army in the south, returned to the steamer Thabor on the night of Oct. 9, being escorted by the Japanese men-of-war Seiki Kan and Kasuga Kan, having on board Admiral Kawamura, adviser of the commander-in-chief, and Rear-Admiral Ito. Many to the ships in harbour were gaily decorated with flags after daylight on the 10th, and shortly before eight o'clock his Imperial Highness and suite landed at the Admiralty jetty under a salute from the men-of-war and the Kanagawa fort, where they were met by the Prime Minister, Sanjo Saneyoshi, their Excellencies Iwakura, Okuma, Ito, Terashima, and other high Government officials and many of the nobles. The party proceeded to Tokio by the 9.34 train. At the Shinbashi station a large escort of cavalry and infantry were awaiting, and some members of the Imperial family were there to receive the Prince, who almost immediately proceeded in a carriage, accompanied by their excellencies Sanjo and Iwakura, to the Imperial Palace at Akasaka, where his Imperial Highness and Admirals Kawamura and Ito were received by his Majesty the Mikado, who graciously thanked them for the efficient duties they had performed in suppressing the Satsuma rebellion. The next day his Majesty was pleased to raise his Imperial Highness Arisugawa-no-Miya to the rank of General, so that the Prince now holds that rank, which was previously held in Japan only by his late opponent Saigo before the latter took up arms against the Government.

NAGASAKI.

The following items are brought by the present mail from the above port:—

The native authorities have established a special hospital for the reception of cholera patients at a village some distance down the bay. Fewer cases have been reported during the past week. The Rising Sun says a fatal case occurred on board H.M.S. Lily, and it was probably this circumstance that hastened her departure for Shanghai—with the intention of being at sea for some days. On the day of her leaving the Vigilant and Fly dropped down the bay to avoid as much as possible communication with the shore through the bum-boats, &c., which constantly assail men-of-war in harbour. At Takasima it is feared the working of the mine has been stopped on account of the number of cases daily occurring, and it is feared that it may be a few weeks before the work will be resumed, as steps will have to be taken to disinfect the works around which it would appear the disease is limited.

KOREA.

The Cosmopolitan Press (of Nagasaki) says strange rumours are current among the native population in that city, one of which is to the effect that the Japanese Ambassador to Korea has been murdered there, and that war is sure to be the result. The Koreans will have to contend against veteran troops if this report is correct.

PEKING.

The Peking Gazette of Sept. 20 contains a memorial from the Police Censors of the Western division of Peking regarding the suffering which has been experienced by the poorer classes from poverty and hunger. "Last winter the memorialists saw the sufferers from cold and hunger lying in heaps in the streets; and the corpses of those who perished from lack of shelter, lying as they had been overtaken by death, presented a pitiable spectacle." Great distress seems to be anticipated also during the coming season, and the memorialists report that certain people have come forward with subscriptions for the erection of a refuge in the neighbourhood of the South-west gate, where a piece of land has been purchased and buildings have been erected with a view to succouring the destitute poor, so far as the means in hand will allow, under private auspices, without interference on the part of the police magistrates. About a thousand persons can be accommodated there. An annual grant of 300 piculs of millet towards the maintenance of the asylum is asked and granted.

TIENTSIN.

The Shanghai Courier's correspondent writes under date of Oct. 3 :—

A considerable number of poor people from the district of which Tientsin is the centre, have been collecting here for several weeks, in the hope of avoiding starvation. They are huddled in the west suburb, and in other places. Most of the comers thus far appear to be women and children. They get their living by street-sweeping—such living as it is- not sweeping crossings however ; but, frequenting the bund, and other places where grain is stored, they brush up the ground—in a peck of dirt gather several grains of rice or wheat. Of this material a cake is made, which resembles a coarse black grind-stone. It is composed of about 70 per cent. coal dust, 20 per cent. gravel, and 9 per cent. refuse. The rest is grain. So far as appears, no official notice is taken of this distress, which will deepen and multiply every day as the winter comes on. Troops of women, armed with the stump of a broom, an old dustpan, go daily to the bund, and are driven away by the well-fed and well-paid police, who have no other occupation. A few additional torpedoes exploded under the nests where these poor people collect would relieve the Government of what may prove an embarrassment.

The distress in Shansi has become so great as to attract the attention of the officials here, who have just issued a joint proclamation, inviting the people of Tientsin to co-operate and relieve the sister province. Nothing could set forth the actual condition of things in that fertile land so clearly as the fact that even the magistrates here feel that something must be done to help them.

It is now currently reported that the sale of torpedoes to the Viceroy has been broken off, and the bargain money returned, owing to a failure to demonstrate the powers of the machine in consequence of a short supply of necessary chemicals. At all events, the failure is a cause of congratulation for the Chinese.

A correspondent writes to us as follows on the above subject under date Oct. 6 :—

The famine in South Shansi is particularly severe in Fenchowfoo, Looanfoo and Taikoo. The last place is a little to the south of Taiyuen, the provincial capital. The rich Chinese in Tientsin, officers and others, have just subscribed about Tls. 100,000. The famine will necessarily last till the wheat harvest in June, 1878. There have been three years of successive drought in Shansi. North Henan and Shansi are also under a like visitation, but it is most alarming and appalling in South Shansi over the whole region south of Taiyuenfoo. The people have already begun to die from starvation. The Emperor, it is stated, has remitted the taxation from the destitute districts, and ordered Tls. 200,000 to be diverted from neighbouring provinces to Shansi. No such famine has been known for fifty years. A Roman Catholic bishop has gone to Europe to collect funds. He has been heard of as receiving large sums in Holland.

CHEFOO.

A correspondent of the North China Daily News says :—

A Temperance Hall some 40 by 25 feet is being built here, and will be a free reading-room for sailors. It will be a great boon to many, and the moving spirit in the undertaking—a tide-waiter—deserves great praise for his efforts. The French man-of-war La Clocheterie left on Oct. 2 for Nagasaki. The passengers by the Tuka had quite a lively experience. One boat, in which were two ladies, filled, and baskets of fruit had to be thrown over. The steamer had to lie out about a mile-and-a-quarter from the Customs. She started about five P.M., but had enough of it in about half-an-hour, and put back, remaining under the Bluff all night.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 12th Oct.; the French mail from London, Aug. 10, was received on the 5th Oct.

The news brought from Shanghai by the present mail is confined chiefly to matters of local interest ; but the Model Settlement appears to keep up its activity in matters of local improvement and to be progressing, notwithstanding the unfavourable times against which it has to contend. The municipal minutes show that progress is being made in acquiring land for the Markham-road extension, but there seemed, on the other hand, to be some hitch regarding the proposed continuation of the Cemetery-road, which has been also under contemplation for some time past. The negotiations with the French Council regarding the Yangkingpang—the small creek which marks the separation between the Anglo-American "Settlement" and the French "Concession—have been brought to a satisfactory conclusion ; and at the last meeting of the French Council, the plan drawn up by Messrs. Oliver and Henry was formally adopted, to govern any future constructions or repairs of quays. The same plan of destroying diseased and ownerless dogs as is adopted in the English Settlement was approved, and the purchase was authorised, from the "Missions Etrangères," of a strip of land required to widen Rue Takou, at the rate of Tls. 4,000 a mow. Some communication has also been had with the English Council, on the subject of sanitary measures, and the China Merchants' S. N. Company were authorised to construct a floating pontoon in front of the Quai de France. Altogether there seems to be satisfactory evidence that the two Councils are working together in a conciliatory manner, which contrasts favourably with the disagreements of old days, when local orators waxed eloquent upon the diverse interests of those upon one side versus those upon the other side of the muddy little creek, the crossing of which carried one into new municipal jurisdiction, and brought one into contact with the French gendarme in place of the humbler Municipal policeman, who maintained law and order on the other side. The Washing Company was progressing and rapidly becoming a fait accompli. On Oct. 5 the committee met and decided that Mr. Meller should act as secretary for the company and be an ex-officio member of the committee, and the secretary was instructed to arrange with the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank to collect and hold the subscriptions to the order of the committee ; and also to ascertain the amount necessary for the purchase of land, construction of tanks, and requisite buildings. Shanghai will thus before long commence to wash its dirty linen at home, an improvement which on grounds of expense as well for other considerations has long been desirable. The volunteers, too, keep up their activity, and have been firing away in competing squads for a week, Sergeant Tucker being the victor, with a score of thirty-three, made up in part of five successive "bulls"—one his sighting shot—at 200 yards.

The Fire Brigade, who have had nothing but practices during the summer, had a little real work again on Oct. 4, when shortly before six o'clock in the evening the alarm bell sounded, indicating the locality of the outbreak to be the Foochow-road, and simultaneously a glare appeared, so considerable as to lead to the supposition that the fire was of large proportions ; and the streets leading in its direction were soon thronged with people. The affair, however, proved to be of less importance than was supposed. The fire had originated in a small native cotton shop, in the Foochow-road, and soon enveloped the two adjoining shops. These were in full blaze when the police arrived on the scene with their extincteurs ; but it was apparent that the substantially built walls around the seat of the fire precluded all possibility of the flames spreading to any serious extent, and the volunteer engines having "coped with the flames" with their usual "praiseworthy promptness," the fire was speedily got under, the ONLY damage done being, as the local paper sympathetically puts it, "the destruction of the three shops mentioned, with their contents." It may perhaps be open to doubt whether the native proprietors or the insurance offices look upon the matter in quite so calm and philosophic a spirit. Another fire took place two days afterwards, namely, on Oct. 6—this time on the French concession, in a native shop facing the City moat, but this also proved to be of comparatively little moment, and seems to be looked upon as disappointingly insignificant. The engines were on the spot before the alarm bells had ceased to sound, and in a few minutes the flames were subdued ; and we are told, "the shop in which the fire originated was gutted, but beyond this little damage was done."

The report of the North China Insurance Company to be presented at the meeting to be held on Oct. 15, is as follows :—

The fifth half-yearly balance sheet and accounts to June 30 last are now presented to the shareholders, and the directors are glad to be able to congratulate them on the continued prosperity of the company. The total amount appearing at the credit of the company after bringing forward Taels 404,190.70 from the present Working Account is Taels 1,460,629.87, out of which dividends have been paid of Taels 200,000 on the shares, and Taels 205,429.77 on contributory premia, Taels 195,219.66 being placed to the Reserve leaving a balance of Taels 859,980.44, irrespective of the paid-up capital. Further dividends have since been distributed in pursuance of a resolution passed at the extraordinary meeting held on July 9, viz. :—

7th dividend Tls. 70 per share	Tls. 70,000.00
8th dividend 3 per cent. to contributors for 1875 ...	29,534.29

representing in the aggregate Tls. 147,319.24 ; the reserve fund being raised to Tls. 257,900.42.

The directors are precluded by the provisions of the deed of settlement from dealing with the reserve fund until after the expiry of the term ; but a further distribution of the money in hand will be made as early as practicable. An agency has been opened at Rangoon, under the care of Messrs. Todd, Findlay, and Co. In the absence of Mr. Rowley Miller, Mr. Augustus White has been appointed to audit the annexed accounts, in conjunction with Mr. Peter Maclean.

Reports of an exaggerated character having got abroad concerning the quantity of sycee being sent off to India, a species of panic appears to have taken place in the native Money Market. The incident by an unlucky printer's error or slip of the pen is rather curiously related in one of the local papers, which says :—"There was great excitement in the money market last week. The rate of native interest, which opened at 6 mace on Thursday, flew during the morning to 1m. 9c., and fell again soon after noon to 4m." The 1m. 9c., no doubt should be Tls. 1.9.0. The market in fact seems something like what the Irishman described his life to have been, "a great many ups and downs—principally downs."

The North China Herald states that the following changes are said to be contemplated in the Customs Staff:—Mr. Detring goes as Commissioner to Tientsin, and will be succeeded as Commissioner at Chefoo by Mr. Simpson. Mr. Simpson will be succeeded as Deputy Commissioner at Shanghai by Mr. Hughes. It is also rumoured, though we do not know with what truth, that Mr. Glover goes as Commissioner to the Paris Exhibition, accompanied by M. de Sombreuil as Secretary, and that he will probably be succeeded in Shanghai by Mr. Bredon.

From the above-named paper we take the following:—

H.B.M.'s Juno arrived from Japan on Oct. 8, and has taken up her old berth opposite the Custom-house.

The stern-wheel steamer Paokong, whose name has been prominently before the public in connection with two recent suits heard at the United States Consulate-General, is to be sold at public auction on the 5th proximo, under a decree of the Court of the United States Consulate-General. The Paokong, it will be remembered, was built last year by Messrs. Farnham and Co. for river traffic.

We commend, as an instance of Chinese civilisation, the case of one Li Urh-shun, reported in the Peking Gazette of Sept. 21. He was in prison awaiting trial as an accessory in a case of robbery, the apprehension of the principal in which had not been effected; and "his confinement had already lasted for a period of eight years! when he died, apparently of opium poisoning; and the Censor Keh Tsing thinks this a suspicious circumstance. Knowing what we do of a Chinese prison and of the propensities of Chinese gaolers, we should be rather inclined to wonder the man had not committed suicide before—to escape the misery, if he was poor, and the squeezing, if his family is fairly well-to-do. Rich they could not be, or his innocence would have been demonstrated long ago. But eight years of imprisonment awaiting trial! and he, after all, not accused as a principal. In England there is an outcry if an accused criminal is kept a few weeks in confinement untried.

The Shin-pao relates a rather important fray with salt smugglers. At a village called Shin-kia-too, on the common boundary of the districts of Tai-chow and Kiang-too, is a salt barrier erewhile presided over by an official of the relative rank of district magistrate, and guarded by a subordinate naval officer in command of five war junks. On the evening of the 27th ult. the said officer had already closed the barrier, when about ten smuggling boats came up, forcibly cut the ropes, removed the barrier, and passed on their way, a great number of smuggling craft following in their wake. Thereupon the gallant civil and naval officers led on their braves to arrest the vessels. But, unfortunately, the smugglers were too many for them, and, their weapons being ready to hand, made an effective resistance, as though they were actually engaged in warfare. There were men killed and wounded on both sides. The naval officer was killed, and the civilian dangerously wounded; the gun-vessels were destroyed, and some braves killed and wounded. The matter was reported with the utmost speed to the Yangchow authorities, who despatched a force of some hundreds of soldiers, who encamped about three miles from Shin-kia-too, and made reconnaisances to the effect that there were assembled at a place called Po-ho-kan, in the neighbourhood, upwards of one hundred smuggling craft, with from 2,000 to 3,000 men on board. They showed no signs of dispersing, and their intention could not be ascertained. The troops made no attempt to capture them, but the Salt Commissioner sent a speedy report to the Viceroy.

Another serious accident occurred on the river on Oct. 5, arising from the great strength of the flood tide. It appears that the Glenartney, with nearly a full cargo of tea on board for New York, was moored at the P. and O. buoy opposite the Hongkew Wharf, alongside of which were the blue-funnel steamer Ulysses and the French Mail steamer Ava. The flood tide came up in a bore, and the Glenartney broke from the buoy and lurched about half her length forward with the buoy about midships, and so situated as to prevent her swinging to her anchor, which was immediately lowered on the breakage taking place. A signal from her for a tugboat quickly brought her that assistance, and an attempt was then made to tow her stern free of the buoy. The tide, however, was so strong that she dragged her anchor and drifted towards the wharf. Alongside the Ulysses were three Ningpo cargo boats, two of which the drifting steamer sank, and it is said four of their crew were drowned. The mast of one of the boats fell on the Glenartney, and two of the crew attempted to save themselves by climbing up it to get on board the steamer; but just as they were nearing the top the mast fell into the water, taking the men with it, and they were not seen again. The Glenartney then struck the Ulysses, nearly amidships, fracturing the gunwale in two places and tearing away the deck railings from the gangway to the side houses. Bounding off the Ulysses, she next bumped heavily against the stern of the Ava, bulging in one of the plates, and starting several others. She was then made fast to the Ava, where she remained until the tide turned, when two tug-boats took her in tow below the shipping. The Glenartney herself sustained comparatively little damage, and it is thought that the accident will not delay her departure.

NINGPO.

A Ningpo correspondent of the Daily News suggests that it is not a little remarkable that port should have been exempt from cholera while the malady prevailed to a greater or less extent at all the other coast ports. Shanghai and Wenchow, with which Ningpo is in daily communication, each had sharp visitations, yet not a single case has hitherto been reported on the banks of the Yung. The exemption cannot be due to exceptional cleanliness; for Ningpo, though, perhaps, a good average specimen among Chinese cities, is not to be compared in this respect with Wenchow. This remark, however, exhausts all the news; there seems as little going on as usual in the most somnolent of foreign settlements, and the negative "news" of the absence of cholera is all there is to record.—North China Daily News.

WENCHOW.

The North China Daily News correspondent writes, under date of Oct. 4, as follows:—

The officials have found it convenient to intimate that 40 per cent. will be deducted from the total number of pieces, bales, catties, &c., in estimating the lekin tax to be paid. This brings the tax nearly to its old standing. The traders seem somewhat propitiated, and it is rumoured that orders will be sent to Shanghai, as before, and trade resumed. As the Calvinists would say, "The Lord grant it may be so, and all of contrary opinion consigned to perdition." The head lekin official has been recalled, but whether this means submission or stronger fight we can't say. Lekin is probably doomed, thanks to German and other national efforts, but I fancy a struggle will be made in articulo mortis.

Cholera did not stay long with us, and has now disappeared entirely. The maximum mortality was thirty-five per diem, and this only for two days. Had any sort of treatment been adopted I fancy our deaths would have been fewer by a good deal.

The Conquest leaves us, swearing she won't return for three months. This, I hope, is exaggeration, as the oranges will be ready for shipment in three or four weeks, and then the freight is likely to be good for a steamer; but it is necessary that one should be "on hand," so as to divert the trade from the old junk system. We hear on all sides hopes expressed that some steamer or the other will be here to take the fruit. Since lekin has been so oppressive all the merchandise (e.g. rattans, dates, &c.) has been shipped from Shanghai and Ningo by junk, as this taxation is either evaded by that course or so much modified as to amount to the same thing. It seems foreign contact is the grand excuse for lekin, and the moment this can be avoided the necessity for the imposition of the tax subsides. If there is a diplomatist in China who thinks, or who believes in past Treaties, one would surmise that this fact might call up much reflection.

This, however, must be essentially a tea port, and confident hopes are entertained that next season good tea will come here, either for sale or shipment for Shanghai. The tea growers are willing to take piece goods and opium in barter, and as these will go up under transit pass, and the tea come down under the same, lekin will not be able to interfere. It is said that foreign advent is likely to stimulate tea cultivation in this neighbourhood. Vous verrons.

The withdrawal of the regular steamer seems to have been inopportune, and to have aided the rebound from the healthy state of trade which she was gradually forming; but, of course, if immediate returns are possible, it is unnatural to expect merchants to pass them by and look to future contingencies, however energetic they may have been whilst these temptations were absent. I trust, however, that some steamer will be here to take the fruit exports.

FOOCHOW.

The Foochow Herald says:—

On Oct. 4 a medium-sized wooden mooring buoy was picked up by a fishing boat near the Middle Dog Lighthouse, and handed over to Mr. Southey, the chief lightkeeper, in whose custody it remains. There are no marks on the buoy to indicate the ownership, but it is probably the property of salvors, being of the description generally used in salving operations.

The pilot boat Marie had, it seems, a very narrow escape during the late bad weather on the coast. She was off Ockseu when the typhoon commenced, and losing her mainmast and rudderpost was in a disabled condition for some time. When the weather moderated, the lightkeeper at Ockseu was anxious to render assistance, but could not obtain a native boat for less than $400; his liberal offer of $50 was refused, but ultimately, when the Marie had effected temporary repairs and was under sail to Neichu, the fishermen offered to bring her in for $100, which offer was of course declined. Arrived at Neichu, the crew of the Marie applied to the district magistrate (Major Li) for assistance, which was promptly rendered. Major Li not only offered to send them under escort overland to Foochow, but also advanced $30 out of his own purse to defray their expenses. This handsome conduct deserves to be recorded, and we have much pleasure in giving the circumstances publicity.

We have been handed the following translation of a letter from the Rev. Sia Sek Ong, the Presiding Elder of the Hinghua District, in connection with the American Methodist Episcopal Mission :—"On the morning of Sept. 22, about daylight, a fierce tempest suddenly arose on the coast of Hinghua, accompanied with heavy rain ; the sea came up several tens of feet higher than its usual bounds ; boats that were moored along the shore were broken to pieces ; many houses were washed away or blown down ; men lost their lives ; and fields and gardens were in a few moments changed into barren ground. In Pwo-hia several tens of people were lost. Twenty-one of the inhabitants of Hung-le, on the island of Lamyit, were destroyed. No exact account can be obtained of the number of lives lost or the amount of damage done. On the morning of Sept. 22 there were cries of mourning and lamentation in all the villages along the coast, the sound of which nearly shook the earth. The fishermen have no boats with which to pursue their avocation, the farmers have no fields, the people are houseless. Their circumstances are exceedingly distressing. Alms have been sent from Hinghua, but the people do not know where they are to obtain a means of livelihood hereafter. I hear that the prefect of Hinghua has sent a deputy with several hundred taels to the distressed villages on the coast, with orders to investigate the needs of the people, and render them assistance. I think that the wealthy merchants and the gentry of all places, on hearing of this calamity, will exercise benevolence in behalf of the sufferers." The Pwo-hia preacher says that one of the members there was drowned in the sea, and nothing is known of the fate of two others who were at sea at the time. Over a dozen of the members have had their houses destroyed. The chapel was also blown down. The Teng-hu preacher says :—"The new chapel was blown down, also the chapel erected by Ling Ho-kauk (one of the members), and his own dwelling-house were destroyed, leaving only empty ground." The Lamyit preacher says :—"The wind blew off all the bricks and tiles from the roof of the chapel, only leaving about enough covered space in the preacher's room to stand on. Twenty-one persons were drowned, among them two brothers of church members. Over ten of the members had their boats and nets destroyed, and the grain in the fields washed away."

FORMOSA.

A correspondent under date of Oct. 10 writes :—

A few days ago, by order of the Tamsui Ting, twelve of the local mines worked by the natives in the Keelung district were closed up, and the miners prohibited from working them any further. Upon complaint of some foreign merchants, shipowners, and others engaged in the coal trade of Keelung, the American Consul, who happened to be on the spot, protested against this action of the authorities, on the ground that it had shut off an important part of the supply of coal which has hitherto been furnished by the Keelung mines, caused vessels to be delayed in loading, the price of coals to rise far above what it ever had been or ought to be, the capital of merchants and shipowners to lie idle, and they themselves either to fail in the fulfilment of their contract or execute them at a loss, and that its tendency would be to establish a monopoly in a production essential to commerce which had been built up mainly by foreign capital and enterprise, and had always remained open to competition. The Consul intimated that claims against the Chinese Government for demurrage and other damages might arise out of his action, and requested that the mines be kept open until the new Gouernment mining scheme could furnish a sufficient supply to meet the existing necessity for Keelung coals without material increase to price or delay to vessels. We are informed that the Tamsui Ting did not agree with the Consul as to the effect his order in closing up the mines would have upon the trade, so that the matter will probably have to be referred to Peking.

HONG KONG.

Dates by this mail extend to the 18th October; the French mail from London, Sept. 7, arrived out on the 17th October.

The old difficulty with regard to gambling-houses, which seems never destined to be eradicated in Hong Kong, has again attracted some public attention, though, to judge from the accounts in the papers, the only real difference now is that a little more attention is being directed to the matter, and consequently more cases are being discovered. It is stated that the police are doing their best to put down the houses, and also the sale of the Wai-Sing Lottery tickets ; while coolies who make use of the recreation ground at Taipingshan for this particular form of recreation are ruthlessly disbanded, and as many taken into custody as can be got hold of. Catching Chinese gamblers in this way, however, seems rather like catching sparrows by putting salt upon their tails, as no sooner does one of the blue-coated guardians of the peace put in an appearance than the birds are flown. A rather remarkable piece of simplicity is related in connection with this subject. It seems that a Chinaman, with his face cut and his clothes covered with blood, came to Mr. May, the Magistrate at the Police-court, and complained that a friend of his having won some money at a gambling-house the proprietors of that establishment refused to pay, so that he went to the house with his friend to try if he could not obtain the money, when they assaulted him and tore his clothes. The magistrate, as may be surmised, showed so complete a lack of sympathy with this misfortune as to tell him he was very glad that he had been punished as he had been, and to direct a constable to take him to the Captain Superintendent of Police, in order that they might find the gambling-house. Whether they did find the gambling-house or not the latest advices do not say.

The China Mail gives the following account of a typhoon experienced by the M.M. steamer Tanais on her voyage from Yokohama :—

The M.M. steamer Tanais experienced a severe typhoon on her voyage from Yokohama. She reports that her departure from that port was delayed until Oct. 9, by an accident to her machinery at the last moment. Experienced fine weather up to the 11th, when at 6.30 A.M. the wind became very violent, and the barometer fell rapidly. It was now evident that a typhoon was approaching, with its centre directed on the vessel. Everything was made secure, and at 7.30 the typhoon was raging in full force, the sea breaking freely over the bridge. One enormous wave at one time appeared to envelope the vessel on all sides, causing her to labour heavily. This state of things continued until 9.30, when the barometer began to rise, but the sea increased in violence. It was not until seven o'clock in the evening that the vessel was able to resume her course.

The British barque Merse, 629 tons register, which left Hong Kong for Newchwang on Sept. 30, struck on the north-west end of the Pratas Shoal on the night of Oct. 9, and the efforts to get her off proving fruitless, she was abandoned two days afterwards. The crew left in two boats, Captain Robertson, the commander, and the second mate and six others leaving in the first, and the chief mate, Mr. William Smith, and seven others in the second. The crew were able to save a portion of their effects, which they placed in the boats. The chief mate's boat arrived here on the afternoon of Oct. 11, and the captain's boat the next day.

We take the following items from the Daily Press :—

We hear that the population of Yow-mah-tee has increased so much of late that the Surveyor-General, having found after inspection that the accommodation for the police is too limited for the number of men required in that district, intends adding a wing to each end of the police station, and making other necessary alterations. It is also in contemplation to enlarge the stations at Tsim-tsa-tsui and Hong-ham, the Colonial Surgeon having found them by far too small for the number of men stationed there, only 360 cubic feet to a man having been provided. The alterations will not be commenced until Jan. 1 next.

The calendar for the Criminal Sessions contains the names of thirty-two prisoners. The number of cases is thirty-one, four of which are those against the man Hamilton for attempting to obtain goods by false pretences. The offences charged against the other prisoners include three of burglary, one of larceny from the person, one of robbery with violence, and one of purchasing a woman for purposes of prostitution. The remainder are chiefly larceny cases. Previous convictions are charged against fourteen of the prisoners. The papers in several cases which have been committed by the magistrates have not yet been sent in, so the already long list will probably be further augmented before the sessions are closed.

We understand that Mr. Cheung Leung, first Chinese Clerk in the Registrar-General's Office, has been offered and has accepted the post of Interpreter to the Chinese Embassy to Japan. Mr. Leung will shortly leave Hong Kong for Shanghai, where he will meet the Ambassador, and proceed with him to Tokio, where the Legation is to be established almost immediately.

It is stated that Captain Layard resigns his appointment as aide-de-camp to the Governor at the end of October.

We understand that the auction-room lately occupied by Mr. J. M. Armstrong, and which is now being pulled down, will be replaced by Chinese shops.

The following account, duly certified, of the average amount of bank-notes in circulation in Hong Kong, during the month ending Sept. 30, is published in the Gazette of Oct. 11 :—

Banks.	Average Amount.
Oriental Bank Corporation	$221,953
Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China	810,775
Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China ...	384,672
Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation...	1,623,887
Total	$3,041,287

Our Hong Kong Correspondent writes :—Oct. 18. The leading topic in Hong Kong continues to be the innovations and future policy of Mr. Hennessy. At a meeting of the Legislative Council, held a few weeks ago (it was the only one that had been held for several months), his Excellency spoke for about an hour in defence of his policy, quoting apparently overwhelming statistics to show that crime in the colony has been increasing during the last ten years. His Excellency also intimated his intention of introducing the system of separate confinement in the jail, of abolishing both branding and flogging, and of making some attempts to reform the criminal class here (or rather at Canton), and no doubt his statistics for showing an increase of crime were intended to be his excuse for these changes. No old resident in the Colony can possibly believe that crime has increased here during the last ten years, and one of the local papers has, I think, shown pretty conclusively why Mr. Hennessy's figures are not trustworthy. Sir John Smale (the Chief Justice) and the despatches of Sir Arthur Kennedy for years previous to 1876 bear witness to the decrease of crime here. Sir Arthur Kennedy alleges in his despatch for 1875 that crime had decreased here one-half in three years, and no doubt the increased efficiency of the police, the creation of new offences by ordinance, and possibly a different method of preparing the police returns, may account for the swelling of the criminal statistics. Mr. Hennessy is determined to have the authority of the Colonial-office for all the changes he introduces, and from what I have seen of his despatches to Earl Carnarvon I should say his Lordship must have a fearful opinion of the criminal state and administration of this colony, and be quite ready to sanction any innovations proposed. No doubt the separate system of confinement is the best, and if flogging is utterly abandoned it will probably become necessary, if security of life and property is to be maintained here. As it is, all residents here seem to be very well satisfied with the existing state of crime in the Colony, believing life and property never to have been more secure here than it is at the present moment; and as a good deal of money has already been wasted in prison schemes in Hong Kong, I am afraid that Mr. Hennessy's propositions will not be received with a chorus of approval. Certain it is that crime has not decreased here since Mr. Hennessy's arrival. The jail is said to be filling, and there have been more audacious robberies in the Colony during the last few months than I can remember in any similar period previously. Some discussion is now being excited by the fact that the estimates, which ought to have been disposed of months ago, have not yet been placed before the Legislative Council, and the assumption is that his Excellency is keeping them back for the purpose of introducing items for his fanciful innovations, which it is feared will be carried out at the expense of the Central School, and other popular schemes that have been formally approved.

CANTON.

The Daily Press correspondent writes under date of Oct. 13:—

A few days ago the authorities despatched several hundred soldiers to the Tsong-fa district, to the north of this city, and some three days' voyage from it. It appears that between two and three thousand rioters assembled in the above district, which is a well-known nest of robbers. Hearing, I suppose, of the approach of the military, the rioters fled to another place, but at last reports the soldiers were on their track, with the intention of dispersing them.

I understand that the grand triennial review of all the war vessels and junks will be held on Oct. 15 at Bocca Tigris. Orders have been sent to the commanders of all junks to be in readiness at the above forts. The Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, and the Tartar General and their suites will be on the spot to witness the review.

Notice has been given to all the native officials here, both civil and military, to replace their summer hats by winter head gear.

AMOY.

The Daily Press correspondent gives the following:—

A case involving the right of native pawnbrokers in China to hold property of an American citizen for advances made upon it to a native thief who had stolen the property recently came before the American Consul and the Chinese Taoutai at this port for adjustment, but these functionaries having failed to agree upon a decision the matter will, we are informed, be referred to Peking. The Taoutai claimed that according to Chinese law a licensed pawnbroker could retain stolen goods until money was paid which he had advanced upon them in good faith, without knowledge of the theft, and that this law should govern the case. Mr. Henderson, on the other hand, contended that this law was especial and peculiar to China, and opened the door to all sorts of robbery and collusion between thieves and persons doing business under a license as pawnbrokers; that its operation would be contrary to the spirit if not the letter of the Treaty between the two countries, and that such a law could not be accepted as a rule of decision in a case between an American and Chinese subject, any more than the vast body of Chinese laws which the Treaty had rendered inoperative in the settlement of disputes as to who are Chinese subjects and foreigners. The Consul at last demanded that the goods, consisting of a valuable silver cup and some personal ornaments which had been taken possession of by the magistrate at his request, be handed over to him pending a reference of the case to Peking, promising that they should not be delivered to the owner without security that he would pay the pawnbroker's claim if the case went against him. This request was refused by the Taoutai. Mr. Henderson, in conclusion, stated that he feared the action of the Chinese side of the Court in this case would have the effect of making foreigners believe that their only protection from native thieves was in their own hands, and that in future cases of the kind he himself would be disposed to consider it safest to first get possession of stolen property and let disputes about claims for assisting and encouraging thieves be settled afterwards.

I understand an important case is coming on at Swatow between Messrs. Williams and Co., owners of the new wharf and pier, and Messrs. Bradley and Co., involving the right of the latter to fill in the river to deep water above the property of the former, where such filling in will cause silt to accumulate about the wharf to such an extent as will render the pier useless. It is claimed by Messrs. Williams and Co. that the other parties have no title whatever to the tide-land which they are filling up, and that the mandarins on a former occasion had put a stop to the work. Messrs. Williams and Co., being American citizens, have applied to the United States Consul at this place for assistance in preventing the continuance of the injury, but the latter declines to interfere, as I am informed, on the ground that, according to the practice obtaining in such cases between foreigners of different nationalities in China, Messrs. Williams and Co. have a complete remedy, if any at all, against Messrs. Bradley and Co. through the British Courts without the interference of the judicial authorities of the United States, and that it would, therefore, be improper for him to interfere, at all events, until after the proper legal steps have been taken to obtain redress in the usual way.

MACAO.

Instructions have been received that the Macao battalion is to be ready to embark on Nov. 20, in the transport ship Africa, which is expected there in the early part of that month, with new commandant, officers, and soldiers for this station.

The late Colonial Secretary of Macao, Senhor Henrique de Castro, has been appointed Colonial Secretary for Goa.

The birthday of the Queen of Portugal was observed in the Colony. At noon the Royal salute was fired from the Monte Fort, and in the evening all the principal Government buildings were illuminated, the band, as usual, playing opposite Government House.

COCHIN CHINA.

SAIGON.

The Courier de Saigon contains the official notification of the arrival of Vice-Admiral Lafont, the new Governor, in the colony on Oct. 11, by the M.M. steamer Amazone. He entered on his functions on the 16th. Vice-Admiral Duperre has returned from Saigon by the present mail steamer.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

MANILA.

The Straits Times has the following:—

At the Manila lottery drawing the winning tickets of the $16,000 and $4,000 prizes were those numbered respectively 10,649 and 1,424. The Customs duties collected at Manila in September were $148,638.21, being $47,245.17 more than during the corresponding period last year. A Royal decree has been received at Manila, ordering that measures be taken to represent the Philippines at the approaching International Exhibition at Paris; 90,000 quintals of Government tobacco of the crop of 1876 are to be sold by auction at Manila on Oct. 20; the tobacco crop in the province of Union is estimated at 100,000 bales by the Comercio.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

The following is from the Siam Advertiser:—

The Princes and nobles of the land met at the H.S.M.'s temple the Wat P'ra-ka-eu, dressed in their Court attire, sparkling with their beautiful decorations of honour and jewellery, and plighted their allegiance to their King by drinking of the water that had been rendered appropriate for the ceremony by having had dipped into it numerous Royal swords.

Prince Kabkranockratn left Bangkok in the British steamer Celestial. H.R.H. is to visit British India. As the Prince is young and observing it is to be hoped he will acquire much valuable information that can be made available to further the progress of his country. One of the sons of H.E. Phya Mahahin, who was educated in one of the colleges in India, accompanies H.R.H. as interpreter on this occasion.

A valuable medal for distinguished merit and ability has lately been presented to Mr. R. L. Peters by the King of Siam. Mr. Peters, who is a native of Praze, has been about three years in Siam, engineer of some of the valuable gold mines, and by the able manner he performed his work attracted the attention of the King, with whom he is a special favourite, and frequently a guest.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The present French mail brings advices from this port to the 26th October; the French mail from London, Sept. 21, was received on the 24th October. We take the following items of intelligence from the Straits Times:—

We believe it is the intention of the Hon. Mr. Douglas to make arrangements for giving our new Governor, Sir W. C. F. Robinson, a suitable public reception upon his arrival here, but, unfortunately, the precise date of his arrival cannot with certainty be relied upon, and whatever preparations may be made may after all be rendered abortive. His Excellency is expected, or rather the Boreu, in which he is a passenger, is due, on Oct. 28, and that would be an inopportune day to offer a successful public reception. The telegraph line to Banjoewangie, too, unfortunately, is not in working order, and, owing to that, the day of his arrival cannot be ascertained with accuracy. However, in Mr. Douglas's hands, the best will be made of the situation. We believe the Chinese are anxious to take a prominent part in any public reception which may be given on the occasion.

Mrs. Anson and Miss Anson embarked on board the colonial steamer Pluto for Penang from Tanjong Pagar Wharf.

A deputation from the Chamber of Commerce waited upon his Highness the Maharajah of Johore to solicit his aid to put a stop to the adulteration of gambier, pepper, and other produce. The deputation consisted of Mr. W. G. Gulland, of Messrs. Paterson, Simons, and Co., Chairman of the Chamber; the Hon. W. Adamson, of Messrs. Gilfillan, Wood, and Co.; the Hon. J. R. MacArthur, of Messrs. Hamilton, Gray, and Co.; Mr. Martin Suhl, of Messrs. Rautenberg, Schmidt, and Co.; Mr. J. Brussel, of Messrs. Behn, Meyer, and Co.; Mr. I. Henderson and Mr. T. Cuthbertson, of Messrs. Boustead and Co.; and Mr. R. O. Bryce, Secretary to the Chamber. Fifteen Chinese towkays, interested in produce, were also present.

The clearest proof of the satisfactory manner in which the waterworks are being conducted is given by the fact that though rain has not fallen in any quantity for some time, and the season is unusually dry, the supply of water to the town from the works is sufficient for all purposes, and no complaints are made. We must, therefore, congratulate the community that the Herculean task which has cost so much trouble and money is now almost finished. We are glad to notice that some taste is being shown in making the neighbourhood of the works look presentable, by planting shrubs and trees. Among the latter are some plants of the famed Eucalyptus tree, which appear to be in a flourishing condition.

The rhinoceros skeleton in the Raffles Museum has been very neatly mounted, and will shortly be placed in position. A large boa constrictor (live) was presented by H.H. the Maharajah of Johore, and it is, we understand, intended to stuff it by way of affording visitors to the port an idea of the size of one of the "Straits residents." The insect cases we note are now completed, and persons interested in such or kindred matters will be able to obtain useful information from Dr. Dennys, the energetic Acting Curator, and his assistants. The Robber Crab in one of the cases is, we may note, a considerable curiosity, very few preserved specimens being found in museums. It is excellently mounted, and will repay a visit of inspection.

The Hon. C. J. Irving, Acting Lieut.-Governor of Malacca, is to act temporarily as Magistrate of Police and Commissioner of the Court of Requests.

A sale by auction of a number of Town Allotments in Klang (Pengkalan Batu), Salangore, is advertised to take place on Nov. 12 at the Public Offices, Klang.

Messrs. J. F. Van Leeuwen and Co. have been appointed agents of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China, at Padang.

Market Reports.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—Cotton Fabrics and Yarns: A quiet tone had prevailed, and only Yarns were saleable to any extent, and a slight advance had been established, low and medium qualities of 16/24 and 28/32 attracting more attention than other spinnings. Of Shirtings small sales are reported at low prices, quotations being nominal. For T-Cloths and Drills there was no inquiry: Turkey Reds and Taffachelass were declining, whereas of Velvets fair deliveries are reported. Yarns were quoted:—No. 16 to 24, $28.50 to 32.00 per picul, No. 28 to 32, $32.75 to 35.25 per picul. Woollens: The market had been very quiet during the fortnight, and with the exception of Figured Orleans and Plain Black Orleans, which had been sold at slightly better rates, prices remained as before. Italian Cloth continued without demand, whilst Mousselines de Laine attracted more attention, but so far without quotable improvement in prices. A fair business had been transacted in Unions, Pilots and Blankets. Quotations:—Plain Orleans, 40-42 yds. 32 in., $5.60 to 7; Figured Orleans, 29-30 yds. 31 in., $4.25 to 5.50; Plain Moustelines de Laine, 30 yds. 30 in., $0.16½ to 0.18; Cloth Pilots, 54 in. to 56 in., $0.45 to 0.55; Union, 54in. to 56 in., $0.60 to 0.80; Blankets, scarlet and green 6 to 8 lbs., $0.40 to 0.45 per lb. There was less business doing in Metals, but prices were unaltered. Small lots of Bar Iron had been sold at $2.80 to 3.50. Lead had also been quitted to small extent at $7.50 to 7.55 per picul.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Business during the interval had continued much on the same scale as previously reported, the demand being still almost entirely confined to the lower grades, prices for which were again somewhat dearer. In all grades above fine there appeared to be no demand whatever, and it was impossible to form an opinion as to what natives would be disposed to accept. Settlements were estimated at about 6,000 piculs, and as arrivals had been very small, stocks were again reduced; 3,544 lbs. had been exported to London, per P. and O. steamer Sunda, on the 2nd Oct. Quotations:—Common, $10 to 11 per picul; good common, $12 to 14; medium, $15 to 17; good medium, $18 to 21; fine $22 to 24 per picul. Exports from May 1 to date:—To New York 4,609,914, to San Francisco, 1,726,457; to Boston, Chicago, &c., 1,936,038; England, &c., 71,538. Total 8,343,947.

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Westall, Galton and Co.'s Weekly Letter of Oct. 13 says:—Considerable transactions have taken place during the past week, and the market, since the arrival on Oct. 10 of the Australian Mail, which brought up several orders, has continued active. Congou: Flavoury kinds, of which but few remain on offer, maintain former values. At the commencement of the week, purchases of common and good common were made on more favourable terms, but since the operations for the Colonies commenced, as mentioned above, prices for these grades have again advanced. Souchongs have been taken on more favourable terms. Oolongs have been taken for America on a basis of Tls. 13¾ for fair cargo grades, whilst it is also reported that the Tong Mow, and Tong Lee chops have been settled at Tls. 24. Flowery Pekoes: Only one small chop has changed hands. Scented teas remain unchanged. Quotations are:—Congou, flavoury, 11½d. to 1s. 1¼d.; good common to flavoury, 8¾d. to 11d.; dust to common, 6½d. to 8¼d. Souchong, good, 1s. 2¼d. to 1s. 3½d.; common to fair, 8¾d. to 1s. 1¾d. Oolong, fair cargo, 11¾d.; good cargo, 1s. 0¼d.; Tong Lee and Tong Mow, 1s. 4½d. Flowery Pekoe, good, 2s. 0½d. Scented Caper, common, 1s. 0¼d. to 1s. 2d. Scented Caper, common, 1s.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Great excitement had prevailed in the market, a very large business having been done at daily advancing rates, in consequence of better news from the European markets. The greater part of the transactions had been in Hank sorts, and the advance on these was much larger than on other descriptions. Stocks had been greatly reduced. The reported settlements had included large quantities of silk, which were still in foreigners' godowns awaiting inspection. Bad weather had, no doubt, interfered with the examination of purchases, but on the other hand there was less anxiety to buy at the close, and it may therefore be expected that a good deal would be rejected. Settlements had been 1,600 bales of Hanks, 500 bales of Oshius and 100 bales of Filatures, making a total of 2,200 bales. Arrivals had been 1,200 bales and Stocks consisted of about 600 bales. The total export since July 1 to date had been 5,860 bales, against 13,947 bales for same period last year. Quotations were:—Hanks, best No. 1 and 2, 21s. 3d. to 21s. 11d.; good No. 2. 20s. 6d. to 20s. 11d.; good all round No. 2½, 19s. 10d. to 20s. 2d.; medium No. 3, 18s. 10d. to 19s. 6d.; common to inferior No. 4 and 5, 17s. 6d. to 18s. 6d. Oshius, best, 20s. 2d. to 20s. 6d.; good and medium, 18s. 6d. to 19s. 6d.; Hamatski, good to best, 17s. 2d. to 17s. 10d.; common to medium, 16s. 1d. to 16s. 9d. Kakeda, extra, 21s. 11d. to 22s. 7d.; best, 20s. 11d. to 21s. 7d.; good, 19s. 10d. to 20s. 6d. Filatures, 21s. 11d. to 27. Silkworm's Eggs: Arrivals had been 1,097,000 cards and sales about 180,000 cards. The supply had been greater than the demand, and consequently prices had receded. Best Oshius were worth 40 to 80 cents, and other sorts 15 to 30 cents per card. Only a few choice cards had been bought at $1.50.

SHANGHAI.—The North China Herald report says:—Another small excitement has taken place in Silk since the English mail left, and rates paid have again gradually hardened, until we are now some Tls. 15 to 20 over those ruling at the opening of the new season. Demand has been principally confined to buyers for the Continent, and native speculators appear to be satisfied with their present interest, which is said to consist of nearly one-third of the silk in stock. Settlements are about 1,600 bales for the outgoing steamer, the market closing very quiet but firm at the following quotations:—Blue Elephant, 20s. 10d.; May-fong Elephant, 20s. 8d.; Beautiful Woman, No. 2, 20s. 1d.; Buffalo Chop, No. 2, 20s. 1d.; Dragon Chop, No. 4, 19s. 8d.; Mountain Chop, No. 1, 19s. 5d. to 19s. 9d.; Pah-hoe and Pah-ling, 18s. 6d. to 19s. 2d.; S.S.S. 18s. 9d.; Vun-loh and Sze-loh 17s. 6d. to 18s. 9d.; Van-shen and Chay-shen 18s. to 19s. There has been a moderate demand for Kahings, and nearly 100 bales of rereels have changed hands at about Tls. 20 per picul advance. Arrivals have hardly kept pace with settlements, and the unsold stock is about 16,000 to 16,500 bales. Including shipments by this mail steamer the export adds up to about 10,500 bales, against 50,500 last year, 37,000 in 1875 and 45,000 in 1874.

MR. JOHN MORTON BEAUMONT, M.R.C.S.—Many an old "Guy's" man, and many an old China resident, will hear with great regret of the death of Mr. John Morton Beaumont, at Foochow. A member of a highly talented family, the son of an eminent preacher, he entered Guy's as a student in 1854. As an able and brilliant debater at the Pupils' Physical Society, and as enthusiastically devoted to music, he will be long remembered by his contemporaries. In 1858 he went out to China as surgeon in the P. and O. Company, and while there settled at Foochow, in practice, in 1859. Here he remained till 1865, when he returned to England for two years, applying himself during his stay to the study of his profession, especially in the Eye Clinique, at Guy's Hospital. He returned to Foochow in 1867, and, in addition to ordinary professional work there, established and vigorously carried on a large native hospital, till his death on Oct. 1, 1877. Fitted by intellectual power to fill the highest position in his profession, well skilled in his professional work, socially warm-hearted, cordial, and hospitable, a most accomplished musician, he will be an irreparable loss to the society which he led and adorned. Such a man would have become great as a teacher, had his lot so fallen, and he will long live in the memory of those who surrounded him, and upon whom he never failed to exert an elevating and wholesome influence. Direct in expression, and scorning untruth or concealment, a faithful and careful adviser in his profession, his life has carried its lesson well. Though he remained a simple M.R.C.S., he carried the highest powers of one of the highest class of minds into his daily work, and the lives of such men stand out as "beacons" or "beckoners" for all to attempt to follow.

Ita vita est hominum quasi cum ludas tesseris,
Si illud quod est maximè opus jactu non cadit,

BY SEA TO SIBERIA.—Sir Allen Young, of the Pandora, attended a recent meeting of the Dutch Arctic Committee at the Hague, and addressed the meeting. A sum of fl.32,000 (nearly £3,000) has been collected or promised, and it is stated that only fl.10,000 more are required. It was resolved to proceed immediately to the building of a small sailing vessel of eighty tons, and Sir Allen Young pronounced his opinion that not only was a craft of that calibre perfectly fit to undertake the expedition proposed, but that the dangers attending an Arctic voyage were not so great or so many for a comparatively small vessel as for a larger craft. Sir Allen Young said he had no doubt of the success of the expedition, since he had learnt to appreciate the Dutch officers upon whom would devolve the command. Several naval officers volunteered their services after the meeting, and the expedition was definitely fixed for May next year.

AN extraordinary loss of treasure has occurred in the course of transmission from Australia to Galle. A box containing 5,000 sovereigns, one of six forwarded by the Oriental Bank at Sydney, was put on board the Avoca at that port on Aug. 3, and transhipped into the China at Melbourne. On the arrival of the China at Galle it was discovered that the box had been broken open and the gold abstracted.

THE Archbishop of Canterbury has conferred the degree of Bachelor in Divinity on the Rev. William Henry Gomes, of St. Andrew's Mission, Singapore, on account of his distinguished missionary services.

Literature, Science, &c.

The Christmas publications are beginning to attract notice, and upon the whole the collection seems to be good, notwithstanding the adverse prognostications. Among other works announced, is one by Macmillan, which, in a series of short volumes, will give the biographies of the leading English authors. Captain Burnaby is about to produce another work. He has left in order to investigate affairs in Bulgaria and to penetrate as far as Plevna. Cobden's speeches and writings are shortly to be published by the Club bearing his name. Among recent literary on dits it is worthy of note that the Queen is reported to have recommended "Edgar and I, the Story of a Home," for the perusal of the Empress of Russia. In his valuable work, published two years ago and entitled "The Language and Literature of China," Professor Douglas, of the British Museum and occupant of the Chair of Chinese at King's College, London, mentions a vast encyclopædia in that language, a copy of which, in spite of its extreme rarity, happened to be then procurable, and which he hoped might find its way to the shelves of our National Library. This hope will shortly be realised, and the department under Professor Douglas's charge will be enriched with this colossal work. This Encyclopædia of Literature, of the editio princeps, of which the Trustees, by a great stroke of fortune, having secured a copy, is entitled "Koo kin too shoo tseih ching;" or, "A Complete Collection of Ancient and Modern Books, with Illustrations." During the reign of the Emperor Kang-he (1661-1721) it occurred to that Monarch that, in view of the gradual alterations which were being introduced into the texts of works of interest and value, it would be advisable to reprint such from the old editions. He therefore appointed a commission and directed them to reprint, in one huge collection, all such works as they might deem worthy of preservation. A complete set of copper type was cast for the undertaking, and when the Commissioners brought their labours to a close, they were able to lay before the Emperor a very palpable proof of their diligence, in the shape of a compilation consisting of 6,109 volumes. The contents they divided under thirty-four heads, embracing works on every subject contained in the national literature. Only a small edition was printed off in the first instance, and before long the Government, yielding to the necessities of a severe monetary crisis, ordered the copper type employed to print it to be melted down for cash. Thus only a few copies of the first edition are in existence, and it is but rarely that one finds its way into the market. It so happened that one was offered for sale at Peking, and of this the Trustees are fortunate enough to have become possessors. It will be a treasure of literature of the greatest value, even among the many valuable Chinese works already at the British Museum, and which elicited so much surprise and admiration from the Chinese Ministers. An important collection of Hebrew manuscripts has also recently been brought to London, and the question of their purchase is now being considered by the authorities of the British Museum. They are forty in number, and come from Sana and Yemen. Thirteen of them are Biblical. Some are in book form, some are scrolls.

The last number of the Osszehasonlito Irodalomtörténelmi Lapok contains a short account of the tragic death of George Browning, the author of Footprints, and of several translations and other studies from the Edda and the Icelandic sagas. He died in a fit of delirium at Sáromberke, the country seat of Count Teleki. Among the poetical contents of this journal are a couple of folk-songs in the dialect of the Transylvanian gipsies. Mr. Butler is continuing his translations from Vörosmarty, and contributes a very close rendering of "Szep Ilonka," as well as a shorter piece by Carl Szász, the critical writer.

The Anti-Slavery Reporter for the present month takes notice of Colonel Gordon's difficulties. It appears from a communication from Mr. Arthur Arnold to The Times that he expresses his surprise that with all his power of life and death he cannot suppress the slave-trade. There are no more of the great caravans in which slaves were passed down from Upper Egypt in droves; but Colonel Gordon says that little batches of four or five continue, and will do so unless he can find some remedy which he cannot as yet see. Mr. Arnold holds that nothing but a total abolition of forced labour will put an end to the difficulties.

On the 9th inst. a lecture on China was delivered by T. Jenner, Esq., in the Rooms of the British and Foreign School at Long Milford, near Sudbury. The lecture was illustrated by numerous views of scenes and events in China, as also specimens of the literature and a variety of other objects. The lecturer gave specimens of the marvellous power of a special adaptation of Stokes's Mnemonic System for Memorising the Chinese Characters. A Chinese ballad and other varieties illustrative of the manners and customs of the people enlivened the occasion; and the lecture concluded with a brief account of the introduction of the Bible into China, the meeting having been called in the interest of the British and Foreign Bible Society. On the motion of Mr. A. Wylie, Agent of the Society in China, seconded by Mr. J. G. Steed, a hearty vote of thanks to the lecturer was passed by acclamation.

At the first ordinary meeting of the session of the Institution of Civil Engineers, held on Nov. 13, Mr. George Robert Stephenson, President, in the chair, the paper read was a "Review of the Progress of Steam Shipping during the last Quarter of a Century," by Mr. Alfred Holt, M. Inst., C.E., of Liverpool. In the interval referred to it might be broadly stated that British carriage by sea had been transferred from sailing vessels to steamers. The production of steamers had been greatly fostered at the commencement of the period by the remunerative nature of the transport services during the Crimean war. Three changes of construction had rendered this extension possible. They were—the screw propeller, the iron vessel, and the compound engine. The peculiar merits of the screw propeller were, that it was equally effective at varying drafts, that it was indifferent to rolling, and that it was capable of being used either for low or high powers. By the construction of iron vessels much greater carrying capacity, in proportion to the power required for propulsion was possible than could have been attained with wood. The process of lengthening the vessel, for the purpose of arriving at the greatest displacement with the least resistance, had gone through several interesting phases. Probably the most economical vessels were now somewhat of the following proportions:—Length $7\frac{3}{4}$ times the beam, and depth $\frac{2}{5}$ to $\frac{3}{5}$ thereof. These vessels had engines of one nominal horse power to 10 tons of gross register tonnage, and realised an average speed of $8\frac{1}{2}$ knots per hour. The compound engine was merely an application of long-enunciated ideas to appropriate purposes. The three properties of steam—direct pressure, expansion, and condensation—could, no doubt, be utilised for the production of power more economically in one cylinder than in two or more; but the circumstances suiting such application rarely presented themselves afloat. A long stroke, a deliberate movement of parts, and an arrangement of valves admitting great range of expansion, and, therefore, complicated in details, were necessary. The first and second were not practicable, and the third was inadmissible, in a screw steamer; but where these could be obtained, as in the walking-beam engine of the American paddle-wheel boat, the duty performed for the fuel consumed approached very nearly to that of the best compound engines, although the pressures were much less. Mr. Holt availed of the opportunity of condemning the system of postal subsidies.

At the meeting of the Zoological Society, held on the 20th inst., Professor Flower in the chair, a paper from the Marquis of Tweeddale was read on the "Ornithology of the Philippines," from data supplied to his lordship by Mr. Everett, who is engaged in exploring the naturalistic treasures of those islands. It appears from Mr. Everett's discoveries that there are seventy-eight known species of birds there. Most of the birds obtained by Mr. Everett were got near some coal mines in the country, where Tanygnathus luconensis and cacatua hæmaturopygia were flying in flocks. There was also another cockatoo similar to the latter, but with a red splash on the breast. Several of the species discovered possessed peculiar interest, such as the oriolus assimilis, a representative form of the remarkable O. Steerei of Negros and Basilan. Xantholaima rosa, hitherto beyond Java and Sumatra only known from Negros. Four rare specimens of birds from Cebu were passed round for examination by the Fellows present. A paper was also read by Professor Garrod on the "Anatomy of the Chinese Water Deer, Hydropates inermis," first discovered by the late Mr. Swinhoe on the Yangtsze. He pointed out the difference between these animals and the true cervidæ, these deer having no antlers and long canine teeth, and a different formation of the skull.

At the Astronomical Society, on Nov. 9, Dr. Huggins, President, in the chair, Lord Lindsay read parts of Mr. Gill's Reports to the Society respecting his expedition to Ascension. The observations for determining the parallax of Mars extend from July 31 to Oct. 3. Satisfactory observations had been obtained on thirty-two evenings and twenty-five mornings, and altogether 327 complete measures of distance had been secured. Duplicate copies of the original observations accompanied the Reports. The Astronomer Royal read a paper "On the Inferences for the Value of Mean Solar Parallax and other Elements deducible from the Telescope Observations of the Transit of Venus, Dec. 8, 1874, which were made in the British Expedition for the Observation of that Transit." He stated that the paper was supplementary to his official Report laid before Parliament, and that the result for the sun's parallax was 8″·754. Professor Adams gave an account of his paper "On the Motion of the Moon's Node in the Case when the Orbits of the Sun and Moon are supposed to have no Eccentricities and their mutual Inclination is supposed to be indefinitely small."

On the 21st inst. the British Archæological Association held the opening meeting of the present session in its Rooms, 32, Sackville-street, Piccadilly. The chair was taken by Mr. George Godwin, F.R.S., F.S.A., V.P., and there was a large attendance of members and visitors to hear a lecture on "The Obelisk known as Cleopatra's Needle," by Dr. Birch, F.S.A., Keeper of the Oriental Antiquities in the British Museum. The Chairman having introduced that gentleman as the greatest of our hieroglyphical scholars, and therefore the most competent to instruct us on the subject, Dr. Birch, in the course of his address described more particularly the Alexandrian obelisks and their inscriptions.

The Bollettino of the Italian Geographical Society contains, among other matter, a description by M. Schouw-Santvoort of his journey across the island of Sumatra in March and April of the present year, and a sketch-map showing the route taken by Carlo Piaggia in 1876 from Duflé to Lake Capechi.

At the Conference on the Reform and Codification of International Law, which was lately held at Antwerp under the presidency of Lord O'Hagan, a report was presented on the intercourse of Christian with non-Christian races. It is stated that Kuo Ta-jen, the Chinese Ambassador, has had this report translated into Chinese for the information of his Government.

From a recently issued report of the committee formed to promote the institution of a Celtic Chair in the University of Edinburgh, we learn that the available fund now amounts to £10,355 19s. 10d., which, as subscriptions continue to flow in, is expected to reach £12,000. Amongst the recent donations is one of £100 from the Duke of Westminster.

Dr. George Macdonald, the author of "Alec Forbes," and many novels and poems, has been awarded a pension of £100 a year on the Civil List.

Professor Brewer has resigned his Professorship of English Language and Literature at King's College, London.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, NOV. 20.

During the past week, in want of actual occurrences relating to the general political situation, rumours about renewed endeavours of a mediation have circulated, of which we only find it necessary to take notice, as Germany was to have a predominant part in it. It was said that the Porte had demanded Prince Reuss, the German Ambassador at Constantinople, to use his influence upon his Government for a mediation from the side of the latter, but that the Prince had denied this demand by advising the Porte to address herself to the Emperor of Russia direct. This rumour, though in more than one view appears utterly incredible and unfounded, the more so as Austria not at all had been taken notice of in this combination. On the other hand, some perhaps too anxious politicians again see clouds arising on our political sky, on account of the failure of the renewal of the Customs treaty between Austria and Germany; they are of opinion that the relations between the two named Governments are fast getting slack, and mean to perceive a decided nearing to France of those Austrians which are unable to forget the years 1864 to 1866. At the same time, rumours are about that against the custom of past times energetic efforts are made at Rome and otherwise to make Cardinal Ledochowski the follower to Pius IX. If this really should be the case, the clerical combat, which at present appears to be somewhat abating, of course would soon again be in full flames, as the former Archbishop of Posen and Primat of Polonia, when bearing the tiara, certainly would try all possible means to take his revenge on the German Government, which deposed him from his bishopric and banished him from his original country. The situation in France is regarded as the third factor in the new problem which, if it should prove true, indeed, would display very dark aspects for the future. But fortunately Prince Bismark is still alive and, although enjoying his holidays, still on the alert, and it is beyond doubt that the great diplomate in time will find the means again to disperse these clouds, which fortunately as yet are hardly visible.

Prince Bismark's stay at Varzin will probably be prolonged until Christmas. Last week, Herr van Friedenthal, the Minister ad interim for Home Affairs, paid him a visit at his tusculum to consult the Chancellor on the administrative reforms, to which the latter has been in objection of late. At the same time some officials have been at Varzin, sent by the Postmaster-general, in order to show the Prince the newly-invented telephone, which pleased him so very much that this instrument is now working between the Prince's estates in Pommerania and Berlin.

The Prussian Diet has held no session of interest during the past week, nearly the whole topic of its debates being the budget for the period 1877-78. On the 15th of this month the Grand Duke of Baden opened the Stendekammer at Karlsruhe personally.

The emigration to trans-Atlantic ports in direct passage, or via Hamburg, during the first ten months of the running year shows a continued decrease against former years, as to be seen below. From 1st Jan. to 31st of Oct. have been shipped from our port, or via Hamburg, 1872, 65,151 persons; 1873, 62,765; 1874, 39,285; 1875, 29,275; 1876, 26,257; and 1877, only 20,345; during the month of October 2,383 emigrants left our town, against 2,404 in 1876, 2,873 in 1875, 5,242 in 1874, 8,467 in 1873, and 11,715 in 1872.

On Thursday last the Chinese Embassy arrived at Berlin, and have taken up their residence in an elegant mansion hired for this purpose. Five other mandarins are still expected to come from the Celestial Empire.

On the 14th inst. at Berlin a treaty of commerce has been signed between Germany and Roumania, founded, as it is said, on the basis of mutual allowance of the rights of the most favoured nations. In the form of the treaty the acknowledgment of Roumania as an independent State it is said has been avoided, so that the identical declarations of the Northern Powers of Oct. 20, 1874, at Constantinople, had not been surpassed. Notwithstanding this there is much talked about this event at Berlin.

A telegram from Berlin of Sunday last, announced the arrest of a Polonian of the name of V. Lyskowski, who had come to Berlin on purpose of assassinating both the Emperor and Prince Bismark. The culprit afterwards was recognised after a photography as a falsifier of the name of Sugowski, belonging to a small place in one of the Eastern Provinces, after which recognition he declared his first confession of the intended double murder as utterly untrue and totally invented. The case appears not to be of great importance.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Some articles have been in good demand during the past week, and rather considerable transactions have been made. The prevailing animation may be considered as a consequence of the lowering of the discount rate by the Imperial Bank as well as of the more energetic operations of the Russians, which latter are taken as a view of a more speedily finishing of the war. Money remains very abundant.

COFFEE was quiet early in the week, and later on the enhanced positions of the Austrian Customs tariff induced buyers to take for Austro-Hungary suitable lots at an advance of 2c. to 3c. per lb. In addition to this other qualities went also higher in value, and the market closes very firm to-day. Quotation for Java quality is unchanged at m.1.05 to 1.50.

SUGAR.—Transactions of first-hand parcels are not reported. Quotations are:—Manila, brown, clayed, m.24½ to 26½; do., unclayed, m.18 to 20; Mauritius, brown, m.18 to 24; do. yellow, m.26 to 28; Batavia, white, m.31 to 32½; do. yellow and grey, m.26½ to 29½; do. brown, m.18 to 24½; Siam, Benares and China, white, m.29 to 31; Zanzibar, brown and yellow, m.20 to 29; China, brown and yellow, m.18 to 27 per 100 lbs.

RICE.—Sales of dressed as well as of raw quality have been of no importance, and natives had therefore partly to submit a reduction.

TEA is unchanged in tendency; of first-hand parcels 226/8 boxes Congou and 100/4 boxes Java found buyers.

COTTON.—In addition to some parcels of American Provenience 75 bales Oomrawutte have changed owners at 51c.

SPICES.—Ginger: Bengal quiet, at m.24 to 24½; African neglected, at m.25 to 26; Cochin, in good demand, at m.64 to 85; Nutmegs are inquired for at m.2.80 to 3.20; Mace at m.2.20 to 2.30; Cloves: Amboina are wanting; Zanzibar rising, quotation for the latter, at m.143 to 145; do. Stalks, firm, at m.40 to 41; Pepper quiet; Singapore quality, at m.36½ to 37; Batavia and Penang, at m.34 to 34½; White, at m.65 to 75.

STOCKS AND SHARES.

The tendency on the various markets has been flat during the past week, and the only stimulating feature was the issue of the new Russian loan on Thursday last, which has found a good reception on all German markets. The full amount of the loan has not been taken, but nobody can be surprised by this fact if he takes in mind the existing political circumstances in the East. In addition to the new loan some other investment papers came forward, and show partly a remarkable advance. The reported fall of Kars has given a new stimulus, and the week closes rather firm.

SHIPPING.

Although much impeded by the late [illegible] fearful gales, the trade on the river side has still been well supported. A good many arrivals [illegible] as well as departures have taken place, and the harbour by no means appears lonesome. Of arrivals from the Far East we have to report the Soukar, Renant, from Rangoon; Saturnus, Shade, from Flint Island; Ka Moi, Rakemann, from Ilo Ilo; of departures: Galatea, s.s., Boehme, for Penang, Singapore and China; Indra, Wilder, for Penang; Bonito, Wesenberg, for Chefoo; Elizabeth Childs, Lindberg, for Hong Kong (since put into an English port in distress); and A. H. Wille, Haeveker, for Rangoon. At Bremen arrived: Nelson, Faithful, from Rangoon, and Eleanor, Paukhorst, from Bassein; sailed: Andreas Rickmers, for East India. Of vessels on the berth for Eastward we can name: Christian, for Penang and Singapore; Pandur, for Manila, and Otto for Hong Kong. As regards shipping up the Baltic, it appears that the Russian ports, especially Cronstadt, Reval and Riga, the three principal ones, for the present year are much more favoured by nature as many years back. In former years these ports in general at the beginning or the middle of November were totally blocked by ice, whereas now daily five or six degrees of warmth is reported, and shipping to the benefit of the country going on as fast as ever.

HOLLAND.

AMSTERDAM, NOV. 21.

The Second Chamber reassembled on the 19th inst., after six weeks' recess. The Minister of the Home Department, Mr. Kappeyne Van de Capello, said that a Ministerial programme would be quite superfluous. Everyone knew the principles of the new Cabinet, and what the Ministers intended to do. They began their task by retracting no fewer than twelve Bills that were laid before the members by their predecessors, and amongst these the most important is the measure which proposed to regulate the lower-class educational system. To morrow the Chamber will deal with the East India Budget, and as soon as the budgets are discussed Mr. Kappeyne will lay before the members a new Lower Class Education Bill. It creates a good deal of dissatisfaction that Mr. de Ros van Alderwerelt persists in maintaining his position as representative of Leeuwarder in the Second Chamber. The other Ministers who were members have all resigned.

According to a circular published by the newspapers, the Sumatra expedition has given satisfactory results. The funds which were raised are, however, insufficient, and additional contributions are asked for. Doubtless these will be forthcoming. A good deal of interest is awakened in the new expedition to Nova-Zembla, with reference to which a meeting was held some days ago at Haarlem, and amongst those present was Sir Allen Young.

On 'Change great dulness prevails, and general distrust is the prevailing feature. The Money Market is well provided, and the rate of discount has remained unaltered. About the market for Colonial produce there is nothing to be said. There is no speculative demand whatsoever, and the business done has been very limited in extent.

LONDON: MONDAY, NOV. 26, 1877.

THIS MAIL'S NEWS.

Some efforts, but certainly of a most inadequate description, are at last being made by the Peking officials to alleviate the distress which it is now recognised must inevitably arise during the coming winter from the famine in the north of China. A censor has written in the Gazette an eloquent and touching description of the sufferings last year, and the Peking officials are taking steps to erect a refuge at the south-west gate of the city, but nothing is said as to inaugurating any general measures of relief, which are urgently needed, seeing that the suffering will certainly not be by any means confined to the neighbourhood of the Imperial City. Probably, while acting for themselves, the authorities at Peking have intimated to the provincial authorities that they will be expected to take the like steps; but it is to be feared that nothing short of some organised Government action at the capital can prove in any way adequate to the occasion, and this it is hopeless to look for, on account of the peculiar manner in which each district is held individually responsible for its own affairs in China. Matters at Wenchow continue to wear a more hopeful appearance. The mandarins, finding that by the heavy lekin duties they had imposed they were completely strangling the foreign trade, thought it advisable to reduce it in the peculiarly Chinese fashion of estimating the number of pieces in a bale of goods as 40 per cent. less than they actually are. It also appears that the lekin is only levied on goods in foreign steamers, and that those conveyed in junks are free from it. The correspondent who mentions this fact significantly observes that "if there is a diplomatist in China who thinks or who believes in past treaties, one would surmise that this fact might call up much reflection." Cholera had entirely disappeared from Wenchow, where its effects only lasted seriously for two days, and might have been reduced had there been any medical attendance obtainable. A new temperance hall has been established at Chefoo. At Shanghai the Municipal Council were engaged in new improvements, and the Markham Road Extension and Improvement of the Yangkingpang schemes were being pushed forward. Two fires occurred (but neither of a very serious character), the one in the English and the other in the French Concession. The steam-washing scheme was progressing.

In Hong Kong the subject of gambling was again attracting some attention. Some new police stations were to be erected on the Kowloong side. Complaints are made of delay in bringing forward the Estimates, and it it surmised that funds which have been voted for the new central schools may be diverted from that purpose to carry out some of the new Governor's favourite schemes.

The news brought from Japan by the present mail is somewhat meagre, the papers being chiefly filled with details concerning the late rebellion, the main bearing of which has already been long known. The cholera, despite of efficient sanitary measures taken, still continued, but in Yokohama the epidemic was of a singularly mild type. The first serious collision since the establishment of railroads in Japan took place on the line between Osaka and Kobe on Oct. 6, and resulted in the deaths of several persons, and the injury of others.
local papers, but no official explanation as to the cause of the disaster has yet been forthcoming. Sir Harry Parkes had left Yokohama for an excursion in the north.

From the Straits it is reported that the new Governor, Sir William Robinson, would probably arrive at Singapore on Oct. 28. Admiral Duperre, Governor of Saigon and French Cochin China, is a passenger by this mail to Marseilles, having been relieved by Admiral Lamont. The new waterworks are working well. The succession to the Moar State had not been determined, but the Maharajah of Johore was in possession. A deputation waited on the Maharajah, complaining of the adulteration of produce.

From Bangkok it is announced that the Prince Kabkranockratu had left for a tour in British India.

RAILWAYS IN CHINA.

If, in lieu of expending vast sums of money in the erection of arsenals and in the purchase of warlike material, the Chinese directed their resources to the development of internal improvement, there can be no doubt that they would find at once a more worthy and a more useful means of expending their funds. We hear almost simultaneously of the proposed closing of the Woosung Railway and of fresh orders for KRUPP guns; and cannot but feel regret that so much more pains are being taken to adopt from foreign nations the arts of war than the arts of peace. And yet the last news brought from China strongly demonstrates the necessity under which China labours for improvement in the former direction, and more especially the advantages which she would gain by the introduction of railways. We read of the probability, nay, almost the certainty, of renewed famine in the North, of increased highway robberies actually near the capital, of the stoppage of the junk traffic on the Yellow River, of grave fears of discontent and rebellion among the people—all matters which the iron road would beyond question to a great extent, if not entirely, alleviate. It is very noticeable that the recent famine in the north of China resulted only from the failure of the rice crop in certain districts, while in others there was abundance; so that improved means of intercommunication would undoubtedly have greatly reduced the suffering. As to the highway robberies these would of necessity give way before railways, while the increased security and material prosperity which they would produce would be the best guarantees against outbreaks and rebellion. Yet the official classes obstinately set their faces against these improvements, and seem bent mainly upon obtaining means of opposing other nations—which may only prove a temptation to them to go to war with some foreign Power—a course that would assuredly lead to failure and disaster.

The advantages of railways in China have been so often expatiated upon that it is almost needless to enter upon them again in detail; but the present seems a suitable opportunity to review them in their main bearings, especially as, if we may judge from one of the native papers, the Chinese trading and working classes have recognised the benefits to a great extent themselves. Apart from the direct commercial advantages which railways would produce, they would be of great importance in China as a means of centralisation, and would, beyond question, add materially to the strength of the Imperial Government. The same remark, it need hardly be said, applies with more force to the telegraph; but railways would also greatly conduce to this result. It is mainly upon this very ground that the mass of the officials oppose their introduction. They have no desire to see their power curtailed by their being placed in too close accessibility to the capital. But this is a good reason why the Imperial Government should use its influence in their favour; and there can scarcely be any doubt that it could be successfully exerted, if they set about the matter in earnest. In regard to the collection of the inland duties, the railway would be the very best means of insuring their being levied in a regular manner. This could be done in precisely the same way as the Octroi dues are raised at the different railway stations in France; and were the railway once established in China, an opportunity would be obtained of doing away with the vexatious system of irregular and capricious barrier dues which hamper trade without proportionately benefiting even the Provincial exchequers, and without any direct benefit to that of the Central Government. All these considerations are likely to impress the Chinese authorities somewhat more than ordinarily at the present time; and it is to be hoped that they will be urged upon them by our Representatives and by the European advisers in the Imperial Maritime Customs and elsewhere to whom the Chinese officials are disposed to listen. The great bug-bear that the railway would tend to diminish other traffic, which had so much influence at one time even in England, has been proved by the Woosung Railway to the satisfaction of the Chinese themselves to be groundless; and there is no doubt that the general feeling in China is at the present time much more in favour of this improvement than it has ever been before, and that the most serious opposition is likely to come not from the trading and working classes on the one hand or the Imperial Government on the other, but from the provincial and local officials. If, however, these can be made to see that the railway will not really interfere with their revenues, and that it will be a means of increasing the prosperity of their districts and averting the likelihood of discontent and consequent disturbance, they will be less inclined to continue the opposition which they have unfortunately so long been able to exert.

TEACHING CHINESE NAVAL OFFICERS.

THE letter which we published in our last issue with reference to receiving Chinese officers on board our ironclads, with a view to instructing them in naval science, suggests a view which, upon the surface, undoubtedly deserves some attention, and which we observe is shared by a writer in the Army and Navy Gazette, who notices the inconsistency of our receiving Chinese in order that they may become proficient in the latest details of our fighting machines, while foreigners are being ruthlessly expelled from the Chinese arsenals. It certainly does seem, as our correspondent suggests, to be going a little too far in international courtesy to show the naval officers of a nation so likely to use its navy against ourselves our best vessels, and to give them valuable information regarding the details of the service, such as they cannot fail to observe while undergoing their terms of apprenticeship. There are, however, two reasons of an opposite character, which materially detract from the force of this reasoning. On the one hand, it is not likely that our Naval Authorities will let the Chinese or any other foreign officers see all that we are able to do, so that the information they can obtain is not so valuable as might at first be imagined; and on the other hand, what they do see ought, if they have any common sense, to make them less inclined than ever to come into contact with us. They may see what our ironclads are and how they are worked; but it is another thing to find the means to obtain the vessels, and still more difficult to obtain men to work them. On the whole, though at first sight the contrary view would seem to be the correct one, it is probable that the Admiralty is well advised in the liberal policy which it adopts in this matter. Admiral KEPPEL is reported to have said he was delighted to hear the Chinese were obtaining gun-boats and other men-of-war, as there would be something to take when we next went to war with them; and perhaps the Chinese naval officers by similar reasoning in the opposite direction, may, as they become acquainted with what our naval resources actually are, be inclined to advise their Government to give up as useless such hopes of contending successfully with the outer barbarian as in the absence of this information they might be conceited enough to entertain.

THE OPENING OF CHUNGKING.

A SOMEWHAT interesting point has, we are informed, arisen in connection with the suggested opening of Chungking, the chief trading mart in the important and rich province of Szechuen, in the south-west of China. It seems, according to the Chefoo Convention, that upon the matter being mooted the Chinese authorities stated they would be willing to open Chungking to foreign trade when steamers could reach it. As many of our readers are aware, this has been considered for some time past problematical, on account of the rapids in the Upper Yangtsze, and it would, therefore, appear that the Chinese authorities were disposed to be liberal in their promises, under the impression, which would be natural to those imperfectly acquainted with steamers, that the navigation must be an absolute impossibility. In this, however, it would now seem that the Chinese have somewhat reckoned without their host, as it has been ascertained, almost beyond a doubt, that steamers can be constructed which would pass the rapids, and we understand that a firm is desirous of trying the experiment. It is stated that the representative of the Chinese Government here has definitely expressed his opinion that the opening of Chungking could not be permitted; but this need hardly be taken as a final reason for concluding that a refusal will be made by the Imperial Government, should the matter be brought before them, as the Minister here was, according to recognised Chinese ideas, almost bound to give a negative to any such suggestion unless he had received definite instructions to the contrary from his Government. It may be hoped, therefore, that the subject will be further pursued, and that at all events permission will be obtained to make the experiment of navigating the Upper Yangtsze by a steamer, should any enterprising persons be willing to undertake it. There is no doubt that the opening of this great commercial centre to foreign commerce would be of the very highest importance, and would give a greater impetus to the trade in manufactured goods than anything that has been done since we have been connected with China. Indeed the best judges are of opinion that this one concession would be of more value than all the others which have been made in the Chefoo Convention put together, so that the question is well worth agitating, and might possibly be dealt with before the Chefoo Convention is finally agreed to. In a political point of view, the opening of Chungking would be of scarcely less importance than in its direct commercial bearing, as nothing would form a better security against the possible encroachments of France from Cochin China, which has long been a subject of dread to the Chinese Government, and apparently not without good reason, than the establishment of a Treaty port at which foreigners would be permitted to reside and trade in this direction. The effect of this would be at once to give all other foreign nations a right to protest against any encroachments which might be made by any one Power, and this would be the best security which could be devised for the integrity of the Empire in the south-west. Slow as the Chinese Government generally is to seize the bearing of anything more than the hand-to-mouth policy of opposing foreigners step by step on principle, there is reason to believe that they are alive to this particular point, and that their being so is in fact the secret of the willingness which they displayed to open up the Yangtsze as far as Ichang by the Chefoo Convention. The probability, therefore, is that if the matter were judiciously pressed upon the Peking Government something might be done towards obtaining the desired concession, which would doubtless be advantageous alike to foreign trade and to the best interests of the Chinese Empire.

PROFESSOR AMOS has been lecturing about China, and it will be seen from the report given elsewhere, taken from The Times, that he "detailed in forcible language the evils arising from opium eating." Unfortunately for this part of the Professor's argument, no Chinaman ever thinks of eating opium, any more than a European thinks of eating tobacco. He smokes it. It is from overlooking this obvious distinction that nine-tenths of the misapprehension on the opium question in the minds of a section of the public has arisen. Sir EDWARD FRY, whose article in the Contemporary Review on the Opium question will be remembered, on account of the peculiar error he fell into in connection with the Lekin duties, has also delivered a lecture on the subject.

THE Gazette contains a notification that the Board of Trade have received through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs a copy of a Portuguese Government notice declaring the ports of Japan infected with cholera morbus since the 25th ult.

WITH reference to the resignation by the Rev. Mr. LAMONT of the Ministry of the Union Chapel at Hong Kong, we learn that the question of his successor is now under the consideration of some of its members now in London.

MEMORIAL TO THE EARL OF DERBY IN FAVOUR OF THE RATIFICATION OF THE CONVENTION WITH CHINA.

My Lord,—We understand from the Correspondence presented to Parliament in August last that the Convention concluded at Chefoo with the Chinese Government still awaits ratification, and that it has been referred to the Government of India for their opinion. From the nature and contents of the Convention it is clear that the Indian Government, if it opposes the ratification, will do so on account of the proposed arrangement in regard to opium stated in clause 3 of section III. Our object is to urge upon your Lordship that ratification should not be withheld on this account, but, on the contrary, that this clause should be carried into effect under any circumstances. Our reasons will be best given in a brief review of the relations of the British and Chinese Governments to the opium trade.

Digitized by Google

In India the opium trade is carried on by the Government as a source of revenue. In China, until 1860, the importation and use of opium were alike illegal.

After our first war with China, which was intimately connected with this illegal traffic in opium, the treaty signed at Nanking in 1842 made no provision for the suppression of the trade. Sir Henry Pottinger proposed to the Chinese to legalise it, but the Emperor refused. Six millions of dollars were exacted from the Chinese as compensation for opium which they had confiscated and destroyed.

After the second Chinese war Lord Elgin inserted a clause in the tariff of the Treaty of Tientsin, which obliged China to admit our opium at a low rate of duty.

In 1869 the Chinese Government made an earnest appeal to our Government that this obligation to admit opium should be removed. They alleged that it is notorious that opium is "most injurious" to China, and that the officials and people of China generally "believed that England supported the opium trade in order to work out China's ruin." This appeal was disregarded; but in the Convention agreed upon by Sir Rutherford Alcock the duty on opium was raised from 30 to 50 taels per chest.

Her Majesty's Government, in deference to the opinions of the Chambers of Commerce, refused to ratify this Convention. We cannot but express our regret that, while Great Britain has twice imposed treaties upon China by force of arms, the only Convention between the two countries which was the result of peaceful negotiations was thus summarily cast aside.

At present the Treaty of Tientsin is in force. Your Lordship is aware that by that treaty China is not allowed to exclude Indian opium, and that the import duty was fixed upon the basis of about 5 per cent.; but that opium is dealt with in the tariff as an exceptional commodity. The British merchant cannot carry it into the country, he may only sell it in the port. When once imported, the Chinese Government are under no restrictions as to their dealing with it, whether in the way of taxation or otherwise.

The clause in the Chefoo Convention which is now under consideration is as follows:—

"3. On opium, Sir Thomas Wade will move his Government to sanction an arrangement different from that affecting other imports. British merchants, when opium is brought into port, will be obliged to have it taken cognisance of by the Customs, and deposited in bond, either in a warehouse or a receiving hulk, until such time as there is a sale for it. The importer will then pay the Tariff Duty upon it, and the purchasers the likin; in order to the prevention of the evasion of the duty, the amount of likin to be collected will be decided by the different Provincial Governments, according to the circumstances of each."

The value of this clause to the Chinese Government consists in its facilitating the collection of the likin upon opium, by the prevention of that local evasion of this Duty which has been so fruitful a source of complaint at the open ports. This fact alone in our judgment justifies and necessitates the new arrangement proposed by Sir Thomas Wade.

The other clauses of the Convention refer to a variety of complicated circumstances which require special and local knowledge. We do not pass any opinion upon their merits, but beg to draw your Lordship's attention to an important consideration. It is plain upon examination hat the Convention is a contract of the nature of a compromise (we are glad to see that by his Excellency the Chinese Envoy it is styled an "equitable compromise"), in which each party makes certain concessions to the other. The Chinese Government has already discharged loyally and in good faith those portions of the Convention which it devolved upon them to execute forthwith; the proclamations have been posted, the four new Treaty ports have been opened, and the indemnity of Tls. 200,000 has been paid. The provisions of the Convention are so far accomplished facts. What remains is for the British Government on their side to fulfil the obligations undertaken for them by their Plenipotentiary. Seeing that at the time of negotiation the British Minister Plenipotentiary distinctly require that the agreement should be dealt with "as a whole," if, after the Chinese Government has fulfilled its part of the contract, ratification should be refused by the British Government, we are seriously of opinion that the refusal would wear in Chinese eyes, and not in theirs alone, the appearance of bad faith.

We would respectfully remind your Lordship that at a time when so many countries are establishing tariffs which jeopardise our commercial interests, the Chinese Government shows perfect willingness to carry out in its relations with us a very liberal fiscal policy. English manufactures are admitted into China on payment of import duty calculated at about 5 per cent., and an additional transit duty of 2½ per cent. frees the goods to all parts of the interior, as against about 50 per cent. which is levied here as import duty on Chinese tea. The present fiscal demands of the two Governments on opium will not bear comparison. The British Government say in effect to the Chinese, you shall admit our opium at an insignificant rate of duty, which, with the addition of the likin, only yields you about one million sterling per annum, though the necessities of our Indian Exchequer oblige us to exact as our share in the traffic over six millions sterling, or about 70 per cent. of the value of the trade. Under these circumstances we submit that it would be unreasonable and unjust to refuse to China the ratification of the clause relating to opium in the Chefoo Convention. We are not forgetful of the pressing needs of the Indian Exchequer, but refuse to believe the necessity of doing injustice to China in order to augment Indian revenue.

In conclusion, we base our argument upon the broadest principles of international equity. We do not all of us take precisely the same view of the past history of British relations with China, nor do we all entertain exactly the same expectations of the future conduct of the Chinese Government. But China has now taken her place in the comity of nations, and we are unanimous in earnestly desiring that for the future she should receive from Great Britain fair and equitable treatment, such as will bind the two nations together in peaceful relations, and promote the interests of both.

We have the honour to be,

Your Lordship's obedient Servants,

The foregoing Memorial was forwarded to the Earl of Derby on behalf of the Memorialists by the Earl of Shaftesbury in a letter in which his lordship expressed his opinion that "the question is assuming very large proportions, and is, indeed, well worthy of your attention, as bearing with heavy weight on the character and welfare both of India and of England."

Foreign Office, Nov. 16, 1877.

My Lord,—I am directed by the Earl of Derby to acknowledge the receipt of the Memorial referred to in your letter of the 9th inst., in which the Memorialists state their reasons for urging the ratification by Her Majesty's Government of the Agreement concluded by Sir Thomas Wade with the Chinese Government at Chefoo, on Sept. 13, 1876, and I am to state that the Memorial shall receive due consideration by Her Majesty's Government.

I am also to inform your Lordship that in compliance with your request the names mentioned in your letters of the 9th and 10th inst. have been appended to the Memorial, together with that of the Rev. Dr. Abbott, as requested by Messrs. Turner and Chesson in their letter of the 10th inst.—I am, my Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,

The Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G., &c., &c. TENTERDEN.

THE OPIUM TRADE AND OUR WARS WITH CHINA.

On the 19th inst., Professor Sheldon Amos delivered the second of a course of lectures on "War and Commerce" to the working classes, under the auspices of the Trades Guild of Learning, at the Chelsea Vestry-hall, the subject of this lecture being "British Commercial Wars with China." Dr. Richardson, F.R.S., presided. The lecturer commenced by saying that twenty years ago the relations of China with England formed the great political topic of the day, for at that time the House of Commons was debating the question whether or not this country should go to war with China. That war was resolved upon, but against it, Mr. Disraeli, the present Prime Minister, protested; the late Lord Derby, a former Prime Minister, protested; and Mr. Gladstone, the late Prime Minister, also protested; so that the question of our relations with China was not in any way a party question. If any were to be arraigned for the action of the past towards China, they were the constituencies of the whole British people and the House of Commons before the Reform Act of 1867. These constituencies were now things of the past, but it was profitable, he contended, to recur to the circumstances of those times in order to gain a moral lesson for the future. He then proceeded to show by the last return on British trade with foreign countries that the opium trade with China amounted in round figures to £10,000,000; while the tea trade of China with England amounted, also in round figures, to £11,000,000. The history of the import of opium into China was traced from the days of the East India Company, and the action of Lord Napier in advising that treaties should be forced on the Chinese was also related, with the Duke of Wellington's answer—"That it was not by violence that his Majesty meant to establish commercial relations between his Majesty's subjects and other countries." The lecturer proceeded to relate the action of the British Government in pressing by arms the opium trade on the Chinese, and said that it was a "Palmerstonian policy" to force on the traffic. The whole history of the Arrow difficulty was narrated, from the speaker's point of view, and he described the wars which ensued as cruelties inflicted upon a feeble people simply to gain the ends which Lord Palmerston declared he had in view—the pressing of a commercial intercourse upon the third of the human race. The gains in treaties from these wars, the lecturer declared, were from an unwilling people, and were extorted only at the point of the bayonet. In conclusion, he urged that our action towards China in forcing a commodity upon that country was an entire perversion of Free-trade principles, and contended that it was the duty of the English people to help China to obtain justice. The Chairman, in speaking upon the subject of the use of opium as a drug to produce narcotism, said that this use of it had very greatly diminished among Europeans of late years, and any one who desired to know what were the effects of the drug in Europe had now to go to the worst parts of London and see its operation upon the Asiatics, as Charles Dickens witnessed it. In forcible and striking language he detailed the evils which arose to the human race from the practice of opium-eating, saying that it not only poisoned the people themselves so that life was insupportable, except in sleep obtained from the drug, but it actually brought a changed race into existence, a race of lesser power than that not influenced by narcotics, a race without desire for industrial pursuits, and in every way deteriorated.

On the 21st inst., at a meeting of members of the Society of Friends, held in their Meeting-house, St. Martin's-lane—Mr. J. Bevan Braithwaite in the chair—Sir Edward Fry gave a lecture "On China and England," having especial reference to the opium trade. Dr. Macartney, secretary of the Chinese Legation and Chinese interpreter to the Legation, Mr. Henry Richard, M.P., Professor Leone Levi, and a few other visitors were present. Sir Edward Fry said that at the present moment questions of great importance respecting the opium trade were pending. He thought the real burden of England in the matter was that for years past this country had exerted a continuous pressure upon China to force this trade upon her, and that by acceding to the Convention of Chefoo we should be relaxing this pressure to some extent. England had succeeded to that monopoly in the growth of opium which had belonged to the Mogul Emperors, and the Indian Government were growers and dealers in opium. Altogether in English and native provinces about a million of acres of the best land in India were occupied with the growth of opium, and a revenue of about eight and a half millions per annum was derived from it. There was some difficulty in seeking for the abolition of the traffic, owing to the probable loss of so much revenue, but seeing that a million of acres of the best land would be set free for other crops this would not be all lost. The Chinese Government expressed the greatest desire to put down the use of opium in the country, and he thought them sincere. The trade appeared to be the main cause of ill-feeling against England. He regretted that the Christian communities had not taken this matter up earnestly, but he thought the Society of Friends ought to stir in such an important question in a moral point of view. Some other gentlemen having spoken, including Mr. Richards, Mr. Thomas Hanbury and Professor Leone Levi, a Chinese gentleman, Lo Fong-lo, member of the Legation from China, as English secretary to the Chinese Educational Mission, was called on to make a speech. He said: Before making a speech before such a public meeting, I must beg all of you to excuse me for the bad skill in the grammar of your language. When I was in China I read so much about your country, so I pretended myself to know about England more than anybody in China. The question has often been put to me—they ask me, why do they import opium to China so as to ruin our people? and I have scarcely an answer to that. Since I was told by our Ambassador that a society was formed—an anti-opium society. Although I was told so I did not witness personally the intentions of the people of that society. This evening late, at half-past six o'clock, at the Legation, a secretary told me there was a lecture at such-and-such a place, and our Ambassador was invited to attend, but he felt unwell, so he appointed me to come. I did not know that the lecture was upon this very subject. Now, after all, I find that England is really a moral nation. (Laughter.) I should say they are more Confucius than I myself am. (Laughter.) So I feel very grateful for what the lecturer says; and I hope it will be carried into effect so as to promote the relations between England and China.

A memorial to the Earl of Derby in favour of the ratification of the Chefoo Convention, and against the continuation of the trade, was adopted, and it will be presented to his lordship by a deputation.

ADULTERATION OF SILK FABRICS.

The Times says:—Our attention has been called to a rema kable adulteration of silk fabrics, which it appears has developed into a widely-extended trade that threatens to recoil on the entire silk industry with disastrous effects. It is commonly supposed that silk tissues have deteriorated of late years through a practice of mixing silk fibres with jute; but this, it seems, is an error. The flimsy qualities of rich-looking black silks are not produced by any mixture of other fibres, but by means of dyes. It seems that silk manufacturers of Lyons have invented and carried to great perfection a method of mixing gelatinous and weight-giving substances with the dye, and loading the fibres of silk with them to almost any extent. By this means what look rich, strong silk tissues are made and palmed off upon the market and sold by dealers at "immense sacrifices," to the serious injury of the silk trade in general. We have been shown samples of these adulterated fabrics, which to the inexperienced eye looked fine heavy silks, but which when stripped of the dyestuffs by which the threads had been loaded proved to be the merest gauze. Considerably more than half their weight was dye, and of course these stuffs begin to cut and become greasy almost the first time they are worn. Judging by advertisements which we have seen, the trade in these spurious silks seems to be at present a very flourishing one, and is not confined to mere second-class warehouses. The profit on this class of goods is, indeed, too much for the honesty of many merchants, especially when the public will insist on running after a cheap article, whether it be genuine or not. Every one of these spurious fabrics which are advertised at prices which are described as a "sacrifice" yields a clear profit of not less than 50 per cent. to the sellers, and the force of the temptation which this gives is driving sound English and French goods almost out of the market. The English silk weaving trade has been almost destroyed by this inroad of bad silks, in the manufacture of which Lyons appears to beat the world. It is a perilous kind of triumph, however, and we may soon expect to see the entire silk weaving industry of France suffering from this dishonest manufacture. Silk goods, good or bad, will come to be discredited more than they have ever been, and something very like general ruin must overtake an already overburdened industry unless some effort is made to return to honest practices in time. The public in this country should, at all events, take warning, and know that in buying rich-looking cheap silks they may be buying goods three-fourths silk and one-fourth dye.

THE CHEFOO CONVENTION.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—I have read with some surprise the remarks in your last issue regarding the Chefoo Convention, and am at a loss to comprehend how anyone can construe the wording of this agreement to mean that manufactured goods are to be placed in a worse position than under the present Treaty. As, however, the matter is of great importance to merchants and manufacturers in this country it occurred to me to seek information at headquarters, and I am now glad to state that H.E. Kuo, the Chinese Minister, has authorised me to state that no increase of any sort of tax on manufactured goods is contemplated under the Chefoo Convention by the Chinese Government, and that foreign merchants under that Convention will continue to enjoy the full privileges of the transit pass system accorded to them by the Treaty of Tientsin.—Yours faithfully,

Ashburton House, Croydon, Nov. 22. THOMAS HANBURY.

THE CONSULAR SERVICE.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—I trust that the attention which has been directed to the Consular Service in China and Japan may lead to the subject being more carefully considered by the Home Government than hitherto. From time to time the Foreign-office has found leisure to make some general inquiries into the matter; but I do not think they have ever been conducted with sufficient system to lead to really useful and practical results. The Government here have, as it seems to me, really lacked the data which are requisite in order to enable them to provide for the actual wants of the Service, and I think it would be well if they took the matter in hand and obtained the opinions of some who are qualified to judge on the subject as to the manner in which the arrangements for the service should be made, for the benefit alike of the Government and its employés.

It would be tedious to enter upon all the points at which reform would be desirable; but I may as an old China resident be permitted to call attention to one of a very obvious character, with regard to which it is surprising to me that action has not yet been taken—I mean in reference to the house accommodation, or rather the absence of house accommodation, for the juniors. I can only speak from personal observation with regard to Shanghai; but there it always seemed to me there was a great want in this respect. The Consul, Vice-Consul and Senior Interpreter have houses provided for them, all separately, but the unlucky juniors have to get along as best they can, upon incomes that are very small for the place, and with difficulties in finding suitable accommodation which people at home can little appreciate. Lodgings and apartments—such as every large city swarms with in Europe—are almost unknown, and a man who cannot afford to keep a house of his own is commonly obliged to join in with some friend who will arrange for him to live and mess with him, or to resort to an hotel. I can well remember some of the discomfort which juniors in the service had to put up with in my time; and it always seemed to me a matter of regret that some arrangement for a Junior Consular Hong, where the younger members could mess together, had never been made; especially as the means of doing so are ready at hand. The Consul and Vice-Consul may, no doubt, like to have separate establishments; but this is hardly necessary for the Senior Interpreter. If he be an unmarried man, it would certainly suit him better to have arrangements in common with the juniors in the service; and even if, as is occasionally the case, he be married, this need not interfere with the arrangements any more than one of the partners in a merchant's hong being married ordinarily interferes with arrangements there.

Why, then, should there not be at Shanghai a Junior Consular establishment, presided over by the First Interpreter (or Chinese Vice-Consul), and composed of all the juniors in the Consulate, and, if need be, the Supreme Court? This plan would be in accordance with what it is found necessary to adopt in most of the mercantile houses; and it would certainly be the means of raising the status of the service, while diminishing the temptations which young men are subject to in all places, and especially in China, where they have not such arrangements and such society as to make their own places of abode attractive.

It might be a question whether any arrangement which the Government might make should make it necessary for juniors to join a common mess, should any individual not desire to do so. Indeed, a freedom of choice in this respect might be desirable upon many grounds; but they ought at least to have a common place of residence, with their quarters assigned to them.

—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, EXPERIENCE.

CHINA AND KASHGAR.

A letter from St. Petersburg, dated the 12th inst., says that intelligence has been received from Tashkant stating that Mr. Kamensky, the pioneer of Russian commerce in Central Asia, has entered into a contract with the Chinese general invading Kashgaria to supply him with food and stores to the extent of 965,000 roubles, to enable him to carry on the war. The first caravan of corn, conducted by Mr. Kamensky in person, has arrived at Manas, where Tsan-tsoun-tsan was encamped short of supplies, and he has arranged with the grain dealers of Semo, Palatinsk, and Kulja to forward further convoys as he requires them. Mr. Kamensky has already led several commercial expeditions to Kashgaria, being in each instance heavily subsidised by the Governor-General, and is therefore well acquainted with the district which will become the scene of his commissariat operations. Advices from Kashgar report that the Bek-kooli-Beg, after ridding his capital of the Kirghiz nomads, and leaving behind a sufficient garrison to guard the place against further attacks, has set out with every available soldier to meet the Chinese. The latter have left Tourfan, and are marching slowly forward to receive him.

Application has been made to the Stock Exchange Committee to allow a special settling-day and quotation for the Straits Settlements (Singapore, Penang, and Malacca) Government Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Debentures for £150,000, which were allotted last week.

The Bankruptcy Court has been occupied with the case of Mr. Henry Drakeford, a silk dealer, of Great Winchester-street-buildings, and Park-green, Macclesfield, who passed his examination without opposition on a statement of affairs which showed unsecured debts amounting to £4,079, with assets consisting of furniture £25, and surplus from securities in the hands of creditors £187.

Advices from Java report that a forgery has taken place by a Chinaman, by which one of the Discount Companies are the losers. This further loss is to be regretted in connection with the recent failures.

The directors of the Luckimpore Tea Company have declared an interim dividend of 5 per cent. on account of 1877.

The Directors of the Borelli Tea Company have declared an ad interim dividend of 5 per cent. on account of the crop of 1877.

There has been some discussion in financial circles connected with the East as to whether the time is not approaching when the India Council will have to resume its drawings, which have been suspended since Sept. 19, when the weekly drawings were reduced from 26½ to 20 lakhs. It will be remembered that to relieve the pressure of these drawings upon the Indian treasuries when the requirements connected with the famine were taxing the Government very heavily, a sterling loan of three millions was raised in this country on Oct. 9, the proceeds of which must now be becoming exhausted. It is, therefore, felt to be probable that the Government will shortly have to decide upon some steps to replenish the treasury here.

The Tea market during the past week has continued as unsatisfactory as ever. The large export buying has stopped, and no new feature has arisen to counterbalance this falling off in demand. The clearances, however, continue to be very heavy, and aggregate larger totals than have ever been known, so that if latest reports of a diminution in supplies to the extent of 15,000,000 lbs. be confirmed, a materially enhanced range of prices after the turn of the year seems inevitable, Indian Teas notwithstanding. The only noticeable feature with regard to Green Teas is a marked drop in Pingsueys, which have been arriving in rather too heavy quantities.

For the week ended the 17th inst. the total quantity of tea delivered from the bonded warehouses in London was 3,796,412 lb., being 170,857 lb., or 4½ per cent. less than in the preceding week. The amount taken for home consumption was 2,337,638 lb., while 824,502 lb. was removed coastwise; 521,458 lb. was exported, 108,752 lb. was sent coastwise for exportation, and 4,062 lb. was for ships' stores. The amount received as duty was £58,441, against £59,707 in the previous week, a decrease of £1,266, or 2⅛ per cent.

In Silk there has been a better demand, and prices generally are firmer, no Tsatlees being obtainable under 17s. per lb. The deliveries have been fair, and are in total good.

In the Produce Markets extreme dulness continues to prevail. The market for Coffee has improved, owing to the satisfactory result of the Dutch Trading Company's sale, and Plantation Ceylon is 1s. to 2s. higher. The Sugar Market is without improvement; sales of unclayed Manila have been made at a further reduction in value. Rice is steady, although quiet. Japan Wax has also been in steady demand. Black Pepper has been in fair inquiry at the previous value, but White has been dull of sale at a decline of 1-16d. per lb. Japan Ear Shells have realised an advance of £15 to £20 per ton. Spices have been quiet, Cloves being slightly dearer, but other Spices unaltered in price. Gambier is again lower. Sago, Sago Flour and Tapioca are steady. Tin exhibits a declining tendency; Straits is quoted £68, Banca £71 to £71 10s. per ton.

The want of life in the Piece Goods markets in China consequent on the famine is still felt in the corresponding markets this side; notwithstanding that the exports have been 60,000,000 to 70,000,000 yards less than at corresponding period last year. Prices in Manchester ought not, therefore, to go much lower, especially in view of the short supplies of cotton.

There have again been considerable fluctuations in the price of Bar Silver; rising to 54⅜d. at the beginning of the week, it has gradually fallen to 54¼d. to 54⅜d. The demand has been principally for Spain, as owing to the decline in the value of money in India, and the fall in the Exchanges, there appears to be but little inclination to make purchases for the East. Mexican dollars have been sold at 53¼d. per oz.; the price, although without alteration, is weaker at the close, in sympathy with the decline in Bar Silver.

The P. and O. Company's steamer Hydaspes, which arrived at Southampton on Nov. 25 with the heavy portion of last inward mail, brings £562,127 in specie, of which £329,093 is in sovereigns, and £160,051 in bar gold from Australia. The remainder consists of £45,866 in mixed coin from Yokohama; £17,419 in gold and silver coin from Hong Kong; £3,930 in bar gold from Shanghai; £1,430 from Alexandria; and £4,338 in bar silver from Sydney.

We learn from Messrs. Page and Gwyther's Circular that the total shipments of bullion and specie to India and the Far East during the present month have been as follows:—To Calcutta, silver £39,000; to Bombay, silver £198,200, to Hong Kong, Mexican dollars £22,218; to Shanghai, Mexican dollars £25,000. The total shipments of specie from 1st January to 31st October have been to Ceylon £282,138; to Bombay £8,704,456; to Madras £149,225; to Calcutta £2,995,822; to Singapore £1,506,931; to China £1,943,285.

TEA.

Messrs. Arthur Capel and Co.'s Circular says :—There is no improvement to notice in the tone of our market; the amount of business by private contract continues to be on the very limited scale lately noticed, notwithstanding the smaller quantity brought to auction without reserve. Prices for common Teas have been well maintained, but in all other kinds they have ruled easier; at the auctions fair to good medium Red-leaf kinds have sold at very easy rates. The demand for Indian Teas seem also to have fallen off for the time, and a large proportion of those printed for sale this week have been bought in. Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings sold at auction from 5⅞d. to 6½d. per lb., being rather lower, common at 7d. per lb., fair to good common 7⅛d. to 8d. per lb., fair kinds from 9d. to 10¼d. per lb., medium from 11d. to 1s. 1½d. per lb., being all easy rates, except for common, which are fully last week's prices; privately all the better kinds are difficult of sale. Pak Lin kinds remain much as before. Black-leaf kinds: Siftings sold at auction from 5½d. to 6¼d. per lb., fair common 7¼d. to 7½d. per lb., good common 7⅞d. to 8d. per lb., being fully previous prices; privately they have also been in good demand. Medium kinds went at sale from 11d. to 1s. 0½d.; medium to good and fine kinds sell only slowly by private contract, and unless where Teas have special point it is difficult to get bids. Prices remain nominally without change. New-make kinds: Common from 7½d. to 8d., show no alteration, fair kinds from 8½d. to 10d., and good from 11d. to 1s. 2d.; fine, 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5d., remain as last week. Oolong sold from 9½d. to 11½d. per lb. at auction for common to good medium kinds; privately there is no alteration to quote. Souchongs: Fair kinds sold from 10⅛d. to 11¼d. per lb., being previous rates; good to fine are in moderate demand. Scented Teas: Common kinds are still in request; fair to good are very dull of sale even at a further slight decline; fine to finest are rather better maintained. Orange Pekoes: Common to fair short-leaf kinds are in fair demand. The Macao kinds are almost unsaleable—long-leaf kinds remaining without change. Foochow Capers and Orange Pekoes remain much as before, the demand being limited. Green Teas: Pingsuey kinds have sold at 1d. per lb. reduction. Moyune kinds have been steady, Young Hysons being most in request. The public sales have comprised 12,891 packages, the whole of which have been sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week as compared with last year are as follows, viz. :—

Coastwise	760,141 ...	877,355

Messrs. Layton and Co. report as follows on the sales of Thursday: 3,465 packages were sold without reserve on the day of sale as under: 130 chests Congou at 9d. to 9½d., 2,083 half-chests ditto at 7⅞d. to 1s. 2⅜d.; 114 half-chests and cases Moyune Gunpowder, 8⅜d. to 1s. 11½d.; 22 half-chests imperial, 6½d. to 1s. 1½d.; 178 ditto Young Hyson, 6½d. to 1s. 5d.; 61 ditto Hyson, 8d. to 1s. 4½d.; 36 cases (each two boxes) Gunpowder, 2s. 7d. to 3s. 5d.; 26 ditto Imperial, 1s. 6½d. to 1s. 7½d.; 68 ditto Young Hyson, 2s. 11d. to 3s. 0½d.; 20 ditto Hyson, 1s. 11d. to 2s. 11½d.; 574 boxes Pingsuey gunpowder, 10½d. to 1s. 5d.; 72 half-chests ditto, 9½d. to 9½d.; 81 ditto Young Hyson, 8d. to 8½d. per lb.

SILK.

The tone of the market has undergone an improvement during the last week, and rather a large business has been done at advancing rates. There is not so much doing at the close, but prices are firm. Deliveries from 1st to 21st inst., inclusive :—China, 1,382 bales; Canton, 491; Japan, 499; Bengal, 29; total 2401 bales.

COFFEE.

The market has remained in a flat state until towards the close. Supplies of Plantation Ceylon have been much in excess of the previous year, a large portion consisting of grey and undesirable qualities, which have been dull of sale, and prices have further declined. At the close, however, the favourable result of the Dutch sale—referred to below—has imparted a decidedly firmer tone to the market, the demand has improved, and prices have recovered 1s. 6d. to 2s., and rather more for really fine, which is scarce; middling closing at 105s. to 106s., and fine at 113s. to 114s. Native Ceylon has been dull of sale at 85s. for good ordinary, and supplies in auction have been mostly bought in. The closing prices of Plantation are, triage 74s. to 90s. 6d., common grey to fine coloury small 91s. to 99s., low middling 101s. to 102s., middling 103s. to 107s., good middling to fine middling 107s. 6d. to 111s. 6d., fine bright 113s. to 114s., bold 116s. to 119s., fine ditto 127s. 6d., peaberry 108s. to 115s. 6d. Of other East India the only sale has been 89 bags Singapore, picked Bally at 77s. 6d. to 78s. At the close 294 bags Singapore, picked Bally offered were bought in at 77s. to 80s. per cwt.

The Dutch Trading Company's November public sale, being the last of the year, was held on the 21st inst., in Amsterdam; 98,477 bags Java were offered, and with a good demand prices ruled generally 1 to 1½ cents above valuations, good ordinary Java selling at 53 cents against 52¼ cents in October, and 53 cents at the September sales. Subjoined is the result in detail:—

ACONITE.—7 cases Japanese bought in at 42s., wormy 40s.

COTTON.—Fluctuations in American have again been continual, closing prices being slightly dearer than a fortnight ago. Little interest attaches, however, to the movements in East India descriptions; transactions have been on a small scale, and prices show a slight decline, good fair Tinnivelly selling on the spot at 5¾d. to 6d., and afloat at 5¾d. The closing prices on the spot are: Tinnivelly 5¾d. to 6¼d., fully fair to good; Western Madras 5¼d. to 5⅝d., fair to good; Coconada 5⅛d. to 5 3-16d., fair; Scinde 4⅞d. to 5⅜d., fair to good; Bengal 4⅞d. to 5¼d., good fair to good; Rangoon 4 15-16d. to 5 3-16d. good fair to good; Dhollera 5 5-16d., good fair; China 6½d.

CHINA STRAW PLAIT.—At auction 281 bales met a better demand, and fully 170 bales found buyers at full prices; White at £11 to £13 15s., good to fine narrow £15 10s. to £18 15s., with cord edge, coarse £7 5s. to £10, good common wide to medium £12 5s. to £15 5s., good qualities £16 to £18 15s., wide Bedford sort at £7 17s. 6d. to £8 12s. 6d., 2 lots £12 to £14 5s.; Mottled £9 to £10 10s., good (including cord edge) £13 to £14 5s., fine £16 5s.; Black and White, rustic £11 to £11 10s. per bale.

CHINA PRESERVES.—360 cases Ginger (Chyloong) bought in at 7¾d., 18 cases Stem ditto and 15 cases Cumquats withdrawn.

COCOANUT OIL.—The demand exhibits little activity, and there are sellers of Cochin at £43 10s., and of Ceylon in pipes at £38 15s. In public sale 264 casks Ceylon were bought in at £38 15s. to £39 or withdrawn, except 16 hogsheads, which sold at £40 to £40 5s.

GALLS.—2 cases Japan, partly small and broken, sold at 53s. per cwt.

GAMBIER.—At auction 1,315 bags cubes were bought in at 29s. to 31s., except about 550 bags damaged, which sold, first class slightly blocky, at 27s. 6d.; 50 tons have also been sold at 18s. 7½d. ex-ship arrived. For arrival 200 tons, December-January shipment, have been sold at 18s. 6d. ex ship all faults, being again lower.

GUMS.—Copal: 523 bags Manila were bought in at 24s. to 30s. or withdrawn. Damar: 100 cases fine pale Batavian were partly sold at 79s. per cwt.

HEMP.—The market for Manila is very quiet, and with less demand, only a limited private business has been done during the past week. The auctions this week included no Manila, and were unimportant.

INDIA-RUBBER.—At auction 66 cases Borneo were bought in at 1s. 3d. per lb.

JAPAN TALLOW.—531 packages sold, fair to good yellow 38s. to 38s. 6d., dark to rather dark 36s. 6d. to 37s. 6d., mixed colours dregged 35s. 6d. to 36s. 6d.

JAPAN WAX.—The demand continues steady, and business by private contract has been done at previous rates. At auction 240 cases squares were mostly bought in at 48s. to 49s. 6d., saucer 52s. Of 46 bags Carnauba 7 bags fine bright yellow sold at 90s., the remainder being bought in at 60s. per cwt.

PEPPER.—Black: Privately 500 bags Penang have been sold at 3¼d. Singapore has also been inquired for, and about 400 bags have been sold at 3 9-16d. to 3⅝d. At the public sales Singapore was steady, but Penang dull of sale; only 570 bags were offered, and chiefly sold. Of 270 bags Penang 150 bags sold at 3¼d., damaged 3⅛d. to 3¼d.; 300 bags Singapore sold at 3⅜d., one lot fine 3½d. White: Large supplies at auction went off slowly, and prices declined 1-16d. per lb. Of 1,216 bags Singapore about 570 bags sold, common, import 1875, at 5⅜d., good fair bold of fresh import at 6¼d. Of 99 bags old Penang 20 bags sold at 5¾d. After the sale 70 bags of the Singapore sold, fair at 6 1-16d.

PLUMBAGO.—At auction 310 barrels Ceylon met little demand, and barely 80 barrels found buyers, common small lump at 9s. 6d., dusty chip at 8s., ordinary dust 7s. 3d. to 7s. 9d., the remainder bought in, chips 11s. 6d. to 13s. 6d., dust 8s. to 10s. 3d. per cwt.

RICE.—Although the market remains quiet business has been done in soft grain, both on the spot and afloat, at about the previous value. On the spot 10,000 bags Bassein, per Janet Court, have been sold at 10s. 3d., and a parcel of Rangoon has been sold, consisting of 6,000 bags, per Ophelia, at 10s. 4½d. The floating cargo, per Stella B, 1,246 tons Rangoon, off coast, has been sold at 10s. 3¾d. for Bremen. At the close 5,000 bags Bassein, per Mornington, arrived in the river, have been sold at 10s. ex ship, and the floating cargo per Dominion, 1,815 tons Necransie, off coast, has been sold at 9s. 6d. for Antwerp.

RATTANS.—At public sale 15,481 bundles (70 tons) went off flatly, and only about a fourth part sold, Cotu £23 5s., Penang £28 10s., Singapore £12 10s. to £13 2s. 6d., damaged £13 5s. to £17. Bassein damaged £17 15s. to £23 5s. per ton.

SUGAR.—Prolonged depression is observable in the market, and with few inquiries, no business is reported in refining kinds, but further sales of unclayed Manila have been made at again cheaper rates. Subjoined is an account of the week's transactions in East India descriptions:—On the 16th in auction of 3,365 bags good grocery crystallised Penang 1,170 bags sold, sound at 27s. to 27s. 6d., chiefly washed at 26s. to 26s. 6d., the remainder bought in at 27s. 6d. 4,302 bags fair clayed Manila were bought in at 18s. 6d. Of 264 bags China 174 bags sold at 16s. to 16s. 3d. By private contract 1,400 bags brown China sold at 14s. 6d., and 100 tons Zebu unclayed Manila at 15s. On the 20th, in auction 7,563 bags China, brown Swatow kind were bought in at 16s. Privately the following sales were made:—500 bags clayed Manila at 17s. 6d.; 280 tons unclayed Ilo Ilo at 15s., and 410 tons unclayed Zebu Manila at 15s. On the 21st privately further sales of unclayed Manila were made at 14s. 6d. to 15s., viz., 450 tons Ilo Ilo at 15s., and 500 tons Taal at 14s. 6d. On the 22nd 300 bags yellow crystallised Penang sold at 27s., and in auction 13,890 bags fair clayed Manila, per Carl Ritter, met scarcely any offers, and were bought in at 17s. 6d. per cwt.

STICKLAC.—Of 246 boxes Siam offered, 90 cases low mouldy block sold without reserve at 32s., rising to 36s. 6d., the remainder bought in, fine at 50s. per cwt.

TIN.—There has been some pressure to sell during the week, and quotations have again shown a tendency towards decline. Quotations are: Straits on the spot £68, afloat £68 to £68 10s., Banca £71 to £71 10s. Billiton £68 per ton.

SHELLS.—The periodical sales were held on the 20th and 21st inst., with the subjoined results:—Tortoise: Large supplies offered, but nearly the whole was disposed of, pale mottled and light shell at a decline of 1s., but dark mottled and heavy at an advance of 1s. per lb., Sydney and East India selling readily at the advance named; 5 cases Singapore sold, ordinary shell 11s. 6d. to 12s. 6d., middling 14s., fine at 21s. Mother o'Pearl: Most descriptions met a good demand, but Manila were only partly sold at previous rates, Macassar were 20s. higher. Of 365 cases 6 baskets 4 barrels Manila only 70 packages sold, middling to good bold at £8 7s. 6d. to £9 2s. 6d., part defective at £8 2s. 6d., small and chicken at £8 10s. to £8 15s., pickings at £4 7s. 6d. Of 37 casks 100 cases Macassar 32 casks 50 cases sold, fair bold at £11 to £11 5s., part defective at £10 to £10 15s., defective £8 7s. 6d. to £8 10s. Green Snail Shells: 1,240 baskets met an active demand, and about 900 baskets sold at an advance of 2½d. to 3d. for bold, and ½d. for medium small; bold sizes selling at 9½d. to 10½d., medium and small at 4½d. to 5d., small and very small at 2d. to 3d. each. Of 8,141 Japan 2,300 sold at 11s. 6d. per cwt. Ear Shells: The extraordinary demand noticed at the previous sales was fully sustained, and 473 cases 538 bags 2 tons loose Japan were nearly all sold with spirited competition, resulting in a further advance of £15 to £20 per ton, untrimmed as follows: Medium and small, more or less defective, at £40 to £48, bold, ditto, from £51 to £60 5s., good bold and medium at £70 15s., good bold clean of fresh import at £85 to £87; trimmed, part defective at £95, fair to good at £111 to £130, one lot at £145 per ton. The next public sales were fixed for the 15th January, 1878.

SPICES.—Cassia Lignea: In auction 1,200 boxes unworked were chiefly bought in at 45s., only a few lots finding buyers at 44s. Cinnamon: 210 boxes China rather course quill partly sold at 5¾d. to 6d. Cloves: Of 55 cases Penang offered 35 cases sold at about previous rates for common to fair, but ½d. dearer for fine; fine selling at 2s. 2d. to 2s. 2¼d., fair at 1s. 11d., ordinary to middling rather dark and part headless at 1s. 8½d. to 1s. 10d. Ginger: 90 cases Japan flake bought in at 90s. Nutmegs: The small supplies at auction sold at steady rates, 5 cases Java, 97's at 2s. 8d., 129's at 1s. 11d., 170's at 1s. Mace: Of 4 cases 9 boxes Penang, &c., import 1872 and 1873, 2 cases fair sold at 2s.

SAGO.—In auction of 889 bags offered about 400 bags sold at steady rates, good bright small at 18s. 6d., one lot 19s., fair medium at 18s. 6d. to 18s. 9d., the remainder small pearl bought in at 17s. to 19s.

SAGO FLOUR.—Of 520 bags Borneo about 140 bags sold at 18s.

TAPIOCA.—959 bags Singapore went off slowly, and only about 350 bags sold at previous rates, good and fine at 2¾d. to 2⅞d., very fine bold at 3⅛d., the remainder bought in; 317 bags fine Penang were sold before sale at 2¾d. Pearl: 40 bags bullets bought in at 30s.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

Business in the Manchester market on the 17th and 19th inst. continued on a slow and limited scale, without alteration in prices. On the 20th the market opened with a quiet tone, and very moderate inquiry for Yarns and Goods only at low prices, but as the day progressed there has been rather more demand for yarns, resulting in slightly increased business, and the market closes with a hardening tendency. Offers for goods being much below sellers' views, very few transactions took place. The market has daily become stronger since the 20th, though the actual business done has been of but moderate amount, owing to the unwillingness of buyers to pay the full quotations. On the 23rd the tone was very firm, and the tendency of prices still upward. Considerable offers were put forward but only at low prices, to which producers will not submit. Practically values were 1½d. to 3d. dearer than last week, though only limited transactions took place at the advanced prices.

TONITE, OR COTTON POWDER.

THE SAFEST, STRONGEST, AND CHEAPEST OF ALL EXPLOSIVES.

Recommended to MINERS, PIT SINKERS, QUARRYMEN, and CONTRACTORS as the MOST EFFICIENT and ECONOMICAL BLASTING AGENT ever invented.

Results of practical experience show a saving of from 15 to 20 per cent. over the strongest explosives previously in use.

It saves labour in drilling holes, as a less number of holes are needed.

It does not require thawing, but is ready for use at all temperatures and in all climates.

It can also be advantageously used in breaking up boulders, extracting stumps, removing wrecks, exploding torpedoes, and for submarine purposes in general, as well as for signal lights and fog signals for ships.

UNCOLOURED, UNSWEETENED, PURE OLD BRANDY.

BOTTLED AT COGNAC, FOR MEDICINAL AND DOMESTIC USES, AS ANALYSED

 We call the attention of all readers to the following extracts from the Analysts' Reports and Opinions of the Press :—

"Laboratory, 39, Duke-street, Grosvenor-square, London, W., May 26, 1877.

"I have procured several cap uled Bottles of MESSRS. PELLISSON AND CO.'S UNCOLOURED AND UNSWEETENED BRANDY from three of their Agents in the ordinary way of business, and without allowing it to be known that they were purchased for Analysis. The Analyses shows that they have attained a quite exceptional purity and quality in every essential. Such Brandy may therefore be used with the greatest confidence when stimulants of the best Cognac type are recommended.

"H. C. BARTLETT, Ph.D. F.C.S."

"Laboratory, Gresham House, 24, Holborn Viaduct, London, E.C."

"This Brandy is a pure grape spirit, remarkably rich in fragrant ethers; contains a large amount of tannin, derived from storing in oak casks, which imparts to fine old Brandy one of its valuable medicinal properties, and will be of the greatest value to the physician in those numerous cases where pure French Brandy is the most useful of all medicines.

"EDMUND R. SOUTHBY, M.R.C.S., F.C.S."

The only two qualities shipped, "seven and ten years old," can be had in One Dozen Cases.

SELECTIONS FROM THE NUMEROUS OPINIONS OF THE PRESS WILL APPEAR REGULARLY.

PUBLIC HEALTH.—"Many persons ordered the use of Brandy made only are too careless as to the character of the article they procure, and the consequence is biliousness and injury to the stomach by the use of raw fiery spirit sweetened and coloured to deceive the eye and palate. The requirements for a Brandy likely to be of any medical use are all present in that supplied by Messrs. Pellisson and Co."

COURT CIRCULAR.—"The medicinal virtues of Brandy are now widely known, but to be efficacious as a medicine, or beneficial as a stimulant, it must be pure. A Brandy is introduced to public notice by Messrs. Pellisson and Co., of Cognac, possessing all the essentials of good Brandy. A Brandy so highly recommended should be tried by all who are interested in obtaining so essential a commodity in a pure state."

The Uncoloured, Unsweetened, Pure Old Brandy, as described above (see Analysts' full Reports, and extended opinions of the Press), can be obtained of the following Wholesale Agents in India, &c.:—

Where all applications for sole Agencies abroad will be received for places where Agents are not already appointed.

More than twenty years ago, and before Pure Light Wines were so generally appreciated as they now are in this Country and the Colonies, E. J. BRAND and CO. first exported their PURE, NATURAL "CROWN" WINES, which they have since continued to ship, in Cask and in Bottle, with such marked success, in contra-distinction to the usual stronger and coarser qualities. Besides their specially selected "Crown" Wines, protected by their Registered Trade Mark, they supply as well every other description of Wines, Spirits, and Liqueurs, either direct from the places of growth, or from their Bonded Stocks, at the lowest market rates consistent with genuineness, age, and quality.

EXPORT ORDERS are shipped as may be required, either f.o.b. at the ports of growth, or from London or other ports, prepared expressly to suit the different foreign markets where E. J. BRAND & Co.'s shipments are well known, and meet with the highest approval. Their Bonded Stock consists of first-class Wines, &c., the higher qualities being of great age and character, are specially recommended to those who supply Connoisseurs.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Mr. J. T. COOPER,

In his celebrated TRAVELS IN CHINA, published in 1871, says:—

"I had with me in my travels a quantity of "Holloway's Ointment. I gave some to the people, "and nothing could exceed their gratitude: and, in "consequence—milk, fowls, butter, and horse-feed "poured in upon us, until at last a teaspoonful of "Ointment was worth a fowl and any quantity of "peas, and the demand became so great that I was "obliged to lock up the small remaining stock."

This fine OINTMENT is invaluable in the cure of BAD LEGS, BAD BREASTS, OLD SORES, wounds, ulcers, gout, rheumatism, and all skin diseases.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

PEKING.

The Peking Gazette of Sept. 28 (says the North China Daily News) contains a memorial from the heads of the Peking Customs, showing a large deficiency in the collections, owing partly to the famine, partly to commercial difficulties occasioned by the high price of silver at Peking, and partly to the fact that "upon foreign imports, which all pay Customs duty at Tientsin, the Peking Customs are debarred by regulations from levying any further charge." It is gratifying to learn that they are so debarred, but inasmuch as duties upon foreign goods never have been legal, and, consequently, never can have been estimated as a source of revenue, it is difficult to understand why the prohibition should be put forward as a reason for the falling off.

In the Gazette of Sept. 29 the Governor of Kweichow reports the result of a trial held in a case of riotous conduct on the part of certain candidates at the provincial examination. The unruly character of these gentry is proverbial, and we had recently, at Wuchang, an instance of what blackguardism they are occasionally capable. The trouble at Kwei-yang arose from a man named Hwa Kia-jui trying to push into the Hall out of turn, and becoming so riotous and abusive when checked by the sentry that he had to be arrested; whereupon his comrades forced their way into the guard house, and proceeded apparently to wreck the place. The chief culprit is sentenced to a hundred blows and banishment for three years, and the others are to be deprived of their degrees.

YUNNAN.

The North China Herald states that a memorial in the Peking Gazette, from the Governor of Yunnan, mentions for the first time that the Government of that province also has been desirous of contracting a foreign loan. The idea was, it believes, mooted about eighteen months ago, but was of course preposterous at the time; and even now the description given of the financial condition of the province is hardly such as to tempt capitalists, unless the security be very fully endorsed at Peking. "Owing to the impoverishment caused by the long continued state of warfare, the total amount of revenue collected from land-tax and lekin is but Tls. 600,000; and the spectacle of the distress under which the population labours makes it clear that no increase of taxation is possible." The subsidies ordered to be sent from other provinces have not been forthcoming, and as the copper mines cannot be worked without money the Governor can only sit down with folded hands.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 19th Oct.; the P. and O. mail from London, Aug. 31, was received on the 12th Oct.

Digitized by Google

Up to the date of the mail's departure nothing was known as to the intentions of the Chinese with reference to the Woosung Railway, and speculation was rife concerning it. The year of existence which was promised by the Chinese authorities on taking it over expired on Oct. 21, and a report was current to the effect that the Viceroy was himself coming down to Shanghai, presumably about this business; but either he was marvellously reticent, or his people maintain a silence quite unusual with Chinese. A report that the Paoshan Magistrate has been ordered to obtain a list of the employés of the railway was the only straw that could help to show the direction of the wind. It is satisfactory, says the North China Daily News, to know that the line is doing an excellent business in the meantime, and adds that amid all that has been said anent the Woosung Railway one remarkable feature in connection with the enterprise seems to have been lost sight of. It was predicted by the Mandarins that all sorts of ills would occur; but the case of suicide and the trouble in regard to coolie labour are the only instances in which their prognostications have been realised; the former, too, being at best at very questionable case; while the other was the result of the rapacity of a village tepao. At last, however, a genuine mishap, arising from the working of the line, has occurred; and from the interest at present centring in the railway, perhaps there has been a tendency to overestimate it. A spark from one of the trains set fire to a native house, close to the rails, about two miles below Kiangwan. The driver and passengers in the train apparently were not aware of what had happened, and went on. The house, however, was burnt to the ground, and a quantity of rice and straw was also consumed by the flames. When the train returned to the place, from Woosung, a crowd of natives, numbering about five hundred, stood on the line and barred its progress. Learning what had occurred, the officials in charge of the train promised that Mr. Morrison should come down to investigate the matter; and the train was then allowed to proceed, and all excitement abated. The matter has since been thoroughly inquired into by Mr. Morrison and Chinese official, and the damage done made good. A superstition is said to prevail among the Chinese, to the effect that bad luck follows persons who have lived in a house which has been on fire, until a shower of rain falls; and in consequence, the six inmates who were burnt out in this instance could not find shelter; nobody would take them in, and they had to pass the night in the fields. The day after the accident, however, they were made comfortable by gifts from the Taoutai and the managers of the line; and, in fact, they probably were better cared for than they had been for some time.

A meeting of shareholders in the North-China Insurance Company was held on Oct. 13, the report to be presented at which was published in our last. The Chairman, in proposing its adoption, remarked that the amount of the premia earned was the largest yet reached, and exceeded by Tls. 70,000 the amount collected in the previous half-year. Attention having been called to the amount of losses experienced (Tls. 265,000), it was explained that these did not exceed 30 per cent. of the premia collected, which is a very moderate average.

From the North China Herald we take the following items:—

Mr. Davenport returned on Oct. 17 from his visit up the Yangtsze, and has resumed charge of H.B.M.'s Consulate.

A motion was heard at the United States Consulate-General on Oct. 17, before the Hon. G. W. Wells, Consul-General, for a new trial in the case of Groom v. Jenkins. When the case was tried, it will be remembered that judgment was given for the defendant, and plaintiff now asked for a new trial, on the ground that additional evidence had been obtained in the meantime, which might lead to a reversal of the judgment. The Court held that sufficient reasons had not been advanced to warrant a new trial, and dissolved the attachment in this suit on defendant's pontoon. In the same Court an execution was granted in the case of Malcolm v. Jenkins on defendant's pontoon, and the Marshal was directed to proceed with its enforcement.

Besides the approaching changes in the customs service which we mentioned last week, we hear that Mr. Drew is appointed Commissioner at Ningpo, and Mr. M'Leavy Brown Commissioner at Canton. The latter will be succeeded at Chinkeang by Mr. Daae from Keelung, and Mr. Lay, now acting Commissioner at Foochow, will go to Formosa.

The U.S. war-sloop Ranger arrived on Oct. 14. This is her first visit to Shanghai, she having only lately come out from America.

The gale on Oct. 10 and 11 was experienced by all the steamers that arrived from the South. The Amoy and Yungching left Hong Kong within a few hours of each other on the evening of the 6th, the day before the mail steamer Nizam and the blue-funnel steamer Deucalion, with a fresh monsoon and fair weather. On the night of the 7th the Yungching had to anchor, on account of bad weather, in the Namoa Straits, and on the night of the 10th she anchored in the Chusan Group at six P.M. The same night the Amoy, having had fair weather to Tongting, sought shelter in the Chinsan passage, but, dragging her anchor, she proceeded at three A.M. the following morning, while the wind was still blowing a stiff gale. She arrived at Woosung the same evening, while the Yungching had to anchor a third time off Gutzlaff. The gale was from the N.W. throughout, and the barometer registered 30·22. The Nizam and Deucalion both experienced a strong N.W. gale for the latter part of the passage, and the C. N. Company's steamer Foochow, on her voyage from Amoy, anchored under Bonham Island on the night of the 10th. None of the vessels, however, sustained any damage.

The Celestial Empire has the following:—

The first meeting of the members of the North-China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society for the winter session was held at the Society's Rooms in the Ngaomen-road on Oct. 14, Mr. Kingsmill, the President, in the chair. After the conclusion of the usual routine business Dr. Macgowan exhibited a diminutive brass bottle containing a dose of very pungent snuff, which the learned doctor informed the Society the well-to-do natives were in the habit of carrying, as an antidote against a sudden attack of cholera. The snuff was a not unpleasant preparation of various ingredients, the chief of which was hellebore, calculated to stimulate the snidereal nerve. When other remedies, such as fomentations and stimulants, fail to reanimate the patient, this violent irritant to the olfactories is found to succeed. By an ingenious mechanism, pressing the bottle injects the contents into the nose, and the powder will rouse a man when all other remedies have been tried in vain. The doctor also handed round photographs of the Solfataras in North-Eastern Formosa, upon which Mr. Taintor had already read a paper before the Society—also of a very remarkable building, specimens of which are found in the wild districts of Fokien province and other remote parts of the empire. The style is annular, the building being in the form of a ring crowning a height or crest of a hill; the ring is divided into apartments occupied by different branches of the family; the cattle and farm implements being corralled in the centre. The doctor also mentioned that letters had been received from the Russian explorer Peschewalsky announcing his having shot more than one specimen of the wild double humped Bactrian camel.

A very strange story reaches us respecting that extraordinary being, M. Paris, who, as our readers are aware, has got it into his head that he should be the Emperor of China. He recently determined to proceed to Peking, to take possession of his throne, having made arrangements to send for a countryman directly he was settled, to act as his Prime Minister. He started up river, taking with him ten Chinamen; and at Hankow took it into his sapient head to address the multitude. Accordingly, having selected a favourable stand, he commenced, but so remarkable were his words, that he was arrested, lodged in a jail, and narrowly escaped being deprived of his head. The authorities, however, bethought themselves that it would be safer to communicate with the French Consul, and ultimately he was handed over to that gentleman. By him he was sent down to Shanghai, and now he is being taken care of, preparatory to his deportation. What has become of his Chinese attendants we are not informed.

The Grand Lodge of England has constituted the North of China a new Masonic district, of which Bro. Cornelius Thorne is to be first R. W. District Grand Master. The late District Grand Lodge of China has ceased to exist, Hong Kong having been erected into a district by itself. R. W. Bro. Thorne is a very old Past Master of Shanghai, and a worthy Mason, and his elevation to his present high rank will doubtless be regarded with satisfaction by the craft.

HONG KONG.

Dates by this mail extend to the 25th October; the P. and O. mail from London, Sept. 14, arrived out on the 21st October.

Complaints were still being made in Hong Kong when the last mail left with reference to the delay in the publication of the estimates for the coming year. It was stated that they had been already for a long time under the consideration of the Finance Committee, and that the time which has been lost will leave only two months in which to discuss, approve of, send home, obtain sanction for, and receive back—the Budget for the Colony.

The arrival of twenty of the new police from Glasgow on Oct. 18 is noted. They are said to be stalwart men, but will require some time before they can be expected to outwit the rascaldom of China as represented in the Colony.

It is stated that salving operations are again about to be undertaken at the wreck of the Dunmail, a vessel which it may be remembered was sunk about five years ago in Kowloong Bay. A portion of her cargo was recovered by the divers of H.M.S. Ocean, but there still remains a quantity of lead, which it is thought may be got up. The schooner Coeran has been moored over the wreck, and if practicable operations will be commenced immediately.

From the China Mail we take the following:—

A short time since we noted that a very handsome donation of 1,000 guineas had been given to the Indian Famine Relief Fund by the Grand Lodge of Freemasons in England. We now learn that the members of the Masonic Fraternity in Hong Kong are bestirring themselves on behalf of the same patriotic object. According to a Subscription List just circulated by order of the Right Worshipful the District Grand Master (Mr. T. G. Linstead), the brethren are called upon to make their individual contributions to this worthy cause. W.-Bro. Edwin Tobin, who has consented to act as Treasurer to the Fund, will receive any subscriptions from those who may not have an opportunity of seeing a list. Lists are lying at the Freemasons' Hall and at Messrs. Lane, Crawford and Co.

We understand that intelligence has been received here of the death of Madame De La Forrest, wife of the late French Consul at this port, on the voyage to Sydney in July last. The deceased lady is said to have died from cholera, two days this side of Somerset, on the 4th of the month in question. Her body was taken to Somerset and buried at Albay. The letter conveying the intelligence appears to have been in the Normanby; hence the delay in arrival. The news has, we believe, been received here only by telegraph from Saigon up to the present.

Latterly vegetables and cattle have been exempted from duty at the Cap-sui-moon and Cheong Chow stations, but we hear it is contemplated to re-impose that on cattle, inasmuch as, we believe, the complaint from the Colonial Government through H.B.M. Consul referred to vegetables only, and the Customs Station officers are determined to have their perquisites in all cases where no specific objection is taken. In summing up in a case relating to two men charged with stealing the sum of 4,500 cash in the Central Market, his Lordship said this was the first time that any shopkeeper in this Colony had ever been charged with robbing another. This, he thought, was much to the credit of the Chinese.

We understand that the French man-of-war which we reported as being ashore a few days since was the corvette Bourayne. She got ashore one day during the first week in October, on the Balat Banks, at the entrance of Balat River, coast of Cochin China, and was successfully floated on the 10th inst., owing in a great measure to the valuable assistance rendered by the s.s. Albay. We are glad to learn that the Bourayne sustained no damage by her mishap. She was safely anchored at Haiphong when the Albay left that port.

We learn that Captain Layard (28th Regiment), acting A.D.C. to H.E. the Governor, who has resigned his appointment, will eventually be succeeded by Major Palmer, R.E.

A Court of Inquiry has been held concerning the loss of the British barque Merse, of London, which was totally wrecked on Oct. 2, by striking on the Pratas Shoal. The finding is as follows:—1. We find that the British barque Merse of London, official No. 13,777, 629 tons, left Hong Kong on the 29th ult. in ballast, bound to Newchang, and that about eleven P.M. of the 2nd inst. the vessel struck on the N.W. corner of the Pratas Shoal, where she was abandoned on the 11th inst.

2. We find that the weather was fine, but that from the absence of the sun the position of the ship at noon on the 2nd inst., and subsequent to that hour, was uncertain.

3. We are of opinion that the master, Robert Robertson, No. of whose certificate of competency is 33,015, acted imprudently in trying to pass to windward of a well-known dangerous reef in the China Sea.

4. We find that the ship being on the reef, the master for nine days did his best to get her afloat again, but without success; but we consider that, although there was no apparent prospect of getting the vessel off the reef, it would have been better had the master remained by the ship until she had begun to sustain such damage as would have put it beyond doubt that she could not be floated.

We are of opinion that the master, Robert Robertson, was guilty of an error of judgment, but we do not think it sufficient to necessitate the suspension of his certificate.

CANTON.

The correspondent of the China Mail writes under date of Oct. 18:—

Last month's rains in Canton have just caused the death of a native of Tzang Hong-lane, in the older part of Canton City. The poor man, accompanied by his little boy, set out to get his day's provisions from a grocer's shop, when one of the shop walls, which had been undermined by the rains, collapsed, and fell upon the father and son. The boy was luckily got out without serious injury, and when a rush was made to dig out the father, the poor man was still alive, and encouraged the good people, thanking them for their kindness in coming to his aid. Unfortunately he died before his body could be extricated. It is astonishing that in the absence of proper drainage so few walls collapse in this great City of Canton.

Gambling is again rife in the vicinity of Canton. The description of Chinese lottery known as Shan-piu is the favourite game. It consists of a big prize, varying from $5,000 to $10,000, according to the number of tickets purchased at 1 mace each. Much has already been done by the authorities to shut up this royal road to fortune, which is trod by so few; but at present the lottery business is getting quite brisk in several villages near Canton, there having been three "drawings" during the last month.

Poverty appears in all its gauntness and attendant misery in the same neighbourhood. Canton city swarms with beggars. To the floods of the past six or eight months this wretchedness is chiefly attributable, as the poor people not only lost their crops but in too many cases their houses and homesteads. The eligious festivals are now being held, and the beggars form one of the saddest features of the exhibitions now going on.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The present P. and O. mail brings advices from this port to the 2nd November; the P. and O. mail from London, Sept 28, was received on the 28th October. We take the following items of intelligence from the Straits Times:—

The event of the week has been the arrival of our new Governor, Sir W. F. C. Robinson, from Australia. His Excellency and Lady Robinson arrived by the Bowen on Oct. 29, and met with a hearty reception. Johnston's Pier, the place of landing, was elaborately decorated, bunting was liberally displayed, evergreens lent a refreshing appearance to the scene, and his Excellency was received with heartiness and respect. After the usual introductions of the heads of departments were gone through on the pier, his Excellency drove to, and was sworn in, in the Town Hall, which was crowded by residents, and he afterwards received and replied to addresses from the members of the Chamber of Commerce and an influential deputation of the Chinese community. The proceedings wound up with cheers generously given for Sir William and Lady Robinson, and there is a general hope that our new Governor, so well welcomed, will prove true to the general expectations. His appearance and bearing impressed all favourably, and we trust fervently that his reign, so auspiciously begun, will be an era of prosperity and good government in these Settlements.

Two meetings of the Legislative Council have been held during the fortnight, and on both occasions the hon. member for Penang put several questions regarding affairs in that Settlement. In reference to judicial matters a reply was received from the Colonial Secretary to the effect that the Colonial-office had approved of the appointment of three judges to these settlements, "with equal and concurrent jurisdiction," and the iniquity of which we so persistently complained in these columns of the want of the judges has thus been remedied.

Colonel Anson and his family, who, socially, have been popular here and have dispensed hopitality liberally, have held a garden party by way of bidding farewell to Singapore. The party was attended by almost every resident, and went off very happily. While Colonel Anson's diplomacy in regard to the Moar State has not been viewed with an eye of approval, his anxious desire to advance matters in the Colony—notably in the instance of the Waterworks—has been appreciated, and his family have been particularly fortunate in making themselves popular, socially.

PENANG.

We take the following from the Penang Gazette:—

A severe thunderstorm passed over the south of Province Wellesley, on Oct. 22. The house of Mr. Koh Boohan, in Niebong Tabal, was struck by lightning during the storm The sight is described by an eye-witness as being terrible; the house seemed to be enveloped in a sheet of flame at the instant of the flash. The lightning appears to have struck the house at the two opposite ornamental points on the roof, and entered at two spots also opposite each other in an upstairs room by the windows, then through the floor, and finally through the open shutter of a window to the ground, in its passage hurling a Malay who was standing near the shutter into the street, rendering him insensible for some time. Fortunately, Mr. Booan's family were not in the house at the time of the accident, or the result would have been more disastrous. The lightning appeared to have chosen the iron-barred windows for its ingress and egress, stripping off the plaster of the walls, slightly displacing the bricks, and splintering the window frames. The rain is said to have come down in bucketfuls.

Mr. Gottlieb delivered judgment in the Police-court at Butterworth in the great opium and treacle case. Our readers will recollect that the Opium Farmer commenced proceedings against Tien Teck and Leang Heang, on June 14 last, and after sundry postponements, adjournments and days of hearing, the Magistrate was at last enabled to give his decision on the above day, or nearly five months after the institution of the case, the result being that Tien Teck was fined $500 and his co-defendant was acquitted. Permission for an appeal was immediately applied for and granted, and as the results are not likely to be declared till about the end of December the parties concerned will be able to deplore the fact that they have had to wait eight months for justice to be tardily measured out to them.

We regret deeply to have to announce the death of one of the most influential and respected Chinese inhabitants in the Settlement—Mr. Lee Pee Chuan—after a long and painful illness. Whether as a merchant or private individual, he had the esteem of all classes of the unofficial community, and the Government demonstrated their appreciation of his worth by appointing him alone, out of the whole Chinese community, a Justice of the Peace and Magistrate when the new Commission of the Peace was issued under the Courts Ordinance of 1872.

The news from Perak is anything but satisfactory. We are told that the new Resident is applying the shears in the most unlimited manner, as regards establishments, and retrenchment is the only policy he has as yet managed to inaugurate. Great dissatisfaction is felt throughout the whole Perak Government service at the almost unscrupulous manner in which officers have been treated of late, and if rumour is to be credited, Mr. Low will, in all probability, outdo Pope Hennessy in his Labuan reputation. Mr. Low might do well to remember that his aim should be to develop the resources of the country as much as to show a favourable balance-sheet.

It is satisfactory to be able to state that the P. and O. Company have instructed the commanders of their vessels to consult with the agents at this port regarding the time of their departure, and we are further informed that it is the desire of the Company that six hours should be the minimum duration of their stay at this port unless the steamers owing to accident or other causes happen to be behind time.

Mr. Birch, the Collector of Land Revenue, proceeds to Malacca to act for Mr. Isemonger, and Mr. Hill, the Acting Inspector-General of Schools and Hospitals, is to succeed Mr. Birch here. Mr. Kynnersley has, we are glad to say, so far recovered his health as to be able to take his seat on the bench. Rumour says that there is every probability of Mr. Gottlieb going on leave, owing to failing health.

The Hon. Walter Scott has proceeded to Singapore to take his seat in the Legislative Council.

Market Reports.

IMPORTS.

Tientsin.—Business generally had been of a limited description, there being but little demand for any class of goods.

Hankow.—The business had been quite nominal, and the market was very dull. Grey Shirtings: Sales had been confined to 750 pieces best at 8¼ lbs., Cloth at Tls. 1.8.1 to 1.8.3.5 per piece; T-Cloths and Woollens: No change and no business reported. Metals:—Lead, Tin, and Quicksilver: Quotations unaltered, and nothing doing.

Newchwang.—American Drills had been in some request, as also common Shirtings. There had been a small business in English Drills. American heavy Shirtings had secured better prices, but there had been but little business doing.

Chefoo.—Messrs. Cornabe and Co.'s Circular says:—Cotton Goods: For good quality 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings and 7 lbs. T-Cloths we have had a fairish inquiry, but the demand has now subsided. Low class goods have been unsaleable. American Drills have been, and are still, wanted at about the equivalent of Shanghai values, but for the English fabric there has been no demand. Metals: The dulness reported in our last still continues, and as further supplies both of Lead and Iron have been received, prices have declined.

Shanghai.—The business of the interval had been extremely dull and unsatisfactory. Sales of Grey Shirtings privately had become all but impracticable, and at length there had been even difficulty to find sufficient buyers at auction to take off the goods at their own prices, eagerly forced on them by holders. Dewhurst Eagles, which had not been offered publicly, were still worth Tls. 1.80 per piece when wanted, and the last sale of Horse-jockey was quoted at Tls. 1.65 per piece. A small business had been done in Heavy Shirtings, Dewhurst's at Tls. 2.42½ per piece. Drills were still saleable, but recent inquiry had run upon American fabrics, selling from Tls. 2.80 to 2.87 per piece. English Drills, the usual 14 lbs. had found buyers to a smaller extent at Tls. 1.82½ per piece. In T-Cloths a small business is reported at unchanged prices. White Shirtings and other Cotton fabrics were neglected, and quotations were nominal. Woollens, the usual auctions had continued, and Camlets had been sold at a small reduction on previous rates. Other Woollens were in quiet demand at about previous quotations. Coals: The market has remained very quiet since my last report, but with few arrivals rates have retained last quotations. There had been but a small business in Metals. The Chinese were only buying in small lots for actual use. In Lead there had been nothing doing; prices were quoted at Tls. 5.35 to 5.40 for L.B. Nail Rods: Quotations nominal. Sales of Belgians at Tls. 1.50 to 1.60.

Hong Kong.—The market had been very inactive during the fortnight, but Yarns had been in slightly improved demand, and common Mexican T-Cloths had been dealt in to fair extent. Yarn.—Nos. 16/24's.; a fair business transacted in the common qualities at about former prices. Ne-Ke's Red Dog ticket, $85.25; Magpie, $83.50; Red Buffalo, $86.00 to $86.50; 16/18's Red Dog, $83.00. For better makes no demand existed. Nos. 28/32's in very small supply, and rates slightly improved. Ne-Ke's Red Joss, $100.50; Moon, $98.00. Nos. 38/42's.: Demand subsided. Grey Shirtings: Quite neglected; no transactions to record in any weight. White Shirtings: Common qualities in some request for Canton, but owing to scarcity, transactions restricted to 500 pieces, 48-reeds, at $1.62½. T-Cloths: Six lbs. ordinary had experienced some attention; sales reported of Elephant chop at $1.17½ and another chop 1.15. Mexicans: 7 lbs. in fair request; settlements of Ne-ke's Two Red Dragons, at $1.98½; Bull Head, $1.90; Silver Pheasant, $1.52½; Mendel's Hand and Branch, $1.77½; Lion, $2.35; 8 lbs. in good demand, Tai Wo's YX mark, $1.80, VV, $2.37½; Ne-ke's Buffalo, $1.81½. Woollens and Worsteds: Camlets, fair inquiry; SS assorted changed hands at $15.25; HH assorted at $16.25 to 16.10. Long Ells, slightly better; UU Scarlet taken at $8.90. Lastings also experienced some attention; CPH Lion assorted quitted at $14.20. Spanish Stripes receded 1 to 1½ cents per yard; HH 75 to 76 cents Scarlet and Green, and 74 cents Violet. Metals: Iron, Nail Rod, no change in the position of the market. Sales exceedingly difficult to effect at reduced figures. Lead: Weak, and rates lower. Sales of Hole chop, in small quantities, $7.00.

Canton.—Lead continued in small demand, and prices were again lower. Quotations: $7.45 to 7.50 for L.B., and $7.55 to 7.60 for W.B. and Hole Chop. Quicksilver had declined to $62 to 63, but had again advanced to $65 to 66 per picul.

Amoy.—Yarns: A small business done, principally in Bombay quality, at about previous rates. A few sales of Grey Goods reported without any improvement in value. Metals: Tin and Lead, no alteration. Quicksilver: $86 per picul. Quotations:—Yarns: English 16-24s, best spinning, $95.00 to 103.00 per bale; ordinary, $90.00 to 94.00 per bale; 28-32s, best, $108.00 to 110.00 per bale; Grey Shirtings 8.4 lbs. 8⅝ lbs. $2.25 to 2.53 per piece; 7 lbs., $1.70 to 1.80; T-Cloths, 6 lbs. ordinary, $1.20 to 1.35; 6 lbs. Mexican, $1.70; 7 lbs. ordinary, $1.65; 7 lbs. Mexicans, $1.90 per piece.

Formosa.—At Tamsui best Grey Shirtings were worth $2.50; 7 lbs. T-Cloths $1.85; 72 reed White Shirtings $3; Scarlet Camlets $18.50; Scarlet Long Ells $10. At Takao there was very little doing, and no alteration in rates.

Bangkok.—The cool months being at hand there had been some demand for Blankets and Woollens, and Grey Goods also were in fair inquiry. Yarns were not wanted while the peasants are mostly engaged in their paddy fields. Fancy prints were in fair demand at Ticals 3.50 for favourite patterns to Ticals 3 for common goods. With the exception of a fall of Ticals 5 per bale 18.24s in Grey Yarns and T. Red Twist and a rise of Ticals 5 in the value of Orange, there had been no change in quotations, but business all round was somewhat brisker.

Singapore.—At the commencement of the fortnight there was a fair demand for some of the principal staples and a moderate business was done, afterwards the inquiry fell off, but there was again more animation in a few articles at the close; rates had been steady, and there was hardly any change in quotations. Stocks in first hands were moderate. The principal sales reported are 19,500 pieces of Grey Shirtings, 8,000 pieces Grey Supers, 60,000 pieces Grey T-Cloths, 28,000 pieces White Shirtings, 57 cases White Cambrics, 190 bales Grey Yarn, 120 bales T. R. Yarns, and 125 bales Coloured Yarns.

Penang.—The demand for Cotton Goods generally continued limited. Sales had been small, and in some instances lower prices had been accepted. Grey Shirtings: Small transactions in 6 lbs. at $27 to 27½, 7 lbs. $30, and 8¼ lbs. $33 to 43 according to quality; a sale of 45-inch 9 lbs. at $44. Grey Supers: Small sales of 5 lbs. at $34, and 6 lbs. at $36½. Grey T-Cloths: Limited sales of 6 lbs. at $22 to 23.50, and 7 lbs. at $27 to 28.35; also of Mexicans 6 lbs. at $29½, and 7 lbs. at $32. Grey Yarns very dull; small sales of No. 40 at $99 to100.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

Hankow.—The business had been confined entirely to Russian buyers, their settlements amounting to about 1,500 chests at Tls. 8 to 8.60 for Tungshans, Tls. 8 to 9 for Oanfas, and Tls. 8.80 to 11¾ for Sungyangs and Taisapings. Shipments to Shanghai on native account amounted to 1,500 chests, and the stock was reduced to something under 2,000 chests. The amount still to come was variously estimated at 5,000 to 10,000 chests. Total export to date, in lbs. (including re-exports):—1877, 65,011,868 lbs.; 1876, 71,373,835 lbs.; deficiency, 6,361,967.

Shanghai.—Messrs. Evans, Pugh and Co.'s Market Report says:—Black: We have had a steady market throughout the fortnight, but although the amount of business transacted has been larger than for some weeks past, quotations generally do not show any material change. On some purchases of the commonest grades a decline of 5 mace per picul is apparent, the low qualities of Hohow and Oonam having sold at Tls. 11½ to 12 per picul, equal 8½d. to 8¾d. per lb., but other kinds have realised fully former rates. Average prices paid for Oopacks and Ningchows range from Tls. 13 to 15 per picul, equal 9d. to 10d. per lb. One small chop of Ichang Tea has been settled at Tls. 33 per picul, equal 1s. 8¼d. per lb., and two parcels from the Kut-oan district are reported sold at Tls. 35 to 38 per picul, equal 1s. 9¼d. to 1s. 11d. per lb. Settlements have been in excess of arrivals, and the unsold stock is reduced to 20,000 chests, leaving an inferior selection. The following settlements have been reported during the fortnight:—Oopacks, 3,871 chests at 8¼d. to 10d. per lb.; Oonfaas, 4,871 chests at 8¼d. to 1s. 3d. per lb.: Oonams, 1,721 chests at 8¼d. to 8½d. per lb.: Ningchows, 6,689 chests at 8¼d. to 1s. 1¼d.; Hohows, 1,774 chests at 8¼d. to 11d.; total 18,926 chests. Stock, 20,000 chests, against 32,400 chests in 1876. Total settlements from commencement of the season to date are 215,599 chests. Green: There are now no steamers loading for New York, and the demand for Green Tea has slackened very considerably. Values of finest Moyunes continue firm, but are weak for all other grades, though as yet no quotable reduction in prices is apparent. Small settlements of Pingsueys have been made at former rates. The settlements are:— Fychows, Teenkais and Moyunes 25,488 half-chests at Tls. 18 to 41 per picul; Pingsueys, 3,126 half-chests at Tls 14¼ to 31 per picul; Shanghai packed, 458 half-chests at Tls. 18½ per picul; total 29,072 half-chests, stock 100,810 half-chests.

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Olyphant and Co.'s Circular says:—Congous: A steady busines has been done for some time past, and although purchases show more or less irregularity in value we cannot quote any material change in prices the better grades, however, have slightly advanced, but as the stock is principally composed of grades running from preferable to good common downwards these are selling as before. Souchongs of low quality have been sold on rather easier terms. Ooloongs: A few parcels have found buyers for England at Tls. 19.8 to 21.8 for medium in boxes and for the States two fine strings, "Tonglee" and "Tongmow," aggregating 7,910 half-chests, have been taken at about Tls. 26.8 o.b., or say 7 taels under last season, also 2,400 half-chests of fair to good cargo at Tls. 16.55 o.b. The market is quiet at the close. Scented Teas have met with a fair demand at unchanged values.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co.'s Market Report says:—A fair demand has continued during the past fortnight, and prices are without material alteration. Congous: Settlements have been made to a smaller extent; fine and finest teas command high terms, but the lower grades could be bought on rather cheaper terms, prices asked are, however, too high to induce much business. Considerable shipments have been made from Macao. Scented Teas: A fair business has been passing in Capers, the medium grades being chiefly in demand; prices for these, as well as for finer kinds, have been rather easier; in common teas no transactions are reported. Pekoes have been in small inquiry, and few settlements have been made; former prices have been maintained, but at the close teamen appear more willing to accept somewhat lower rates; the transactions of the fortnight have been confined to "long leaf" teas. The following is a summary of the fortnight's business:—Congou, 4,400 boxes, at Tls. 22 to 27 per picul; Scented Caper, 20,000 boxes, at Tls. 17 to 27 per picul; Scented Orange Pekoe, 4,300 boxes, at Tls. 21 to 32.

AMOY.—There had been an active demand for all cargo grades, both of Formosa and Amoy, at gradually hardening rates, and a firm market at the close. Formosa Oolongs: On teas costing up to $30 duty paid an advance of $1 to $2 was quoted, but the higher grades had not participated in this, and for such Teas quotations were not altered. Settlements comprised 25,000 half-chests, of which about 17,000 half-chests averaged good to superior, and cost $27 to 30¼, and 7,000 half-chests fine to choice, costing $31 to 43½. The stock on offer amounted to 20,000 half-chests, and further supplies from Formosa would possibly reach 40,000 half-chests before the season closed. Amoy Oolongs: A similar rise noted on all grades, and common teas (of which supplies had mainly been composed) had been freely taken at an advance of $1 to 2 per picul. Amoy Congous: Some 2,000 half-chests common to medium teas taken at $16.50. The stock left on offer was of common quality, and attracted no attention.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The advancing tendency in the market, reported in our last issue had continued. Towards the close a very good foreign demand had been current, large quantities of Silks had been offered by wire in London and Lyons and accepted. At the close quotations showed a rise in values of Tls. 25 to 30 per picul during the fortnight. Tsatlees: A strong demand had set in for medium chop and common to good No. 5, best silks remaining without inquiry. The principal part of the settlements had been made by Continental buyers, some favourite parcels having been taken at a further advance of Tls. 10 to 15 (and in one instance Tls. 35) advance over those paid for last mail. Quotations:—Blue Elephants, 20s. 9d.; Pagodah Chop 2, 20s. 9d.; Buffalo 2, 20s. 6d.; Dancing Bear 2, 20s. 6d.; Pah Hock, 19s. 2d.; Vun Seng, 18s. 8d.; Commonest, 17s. 4d. Keahings in improved demand and considerable settlements reported at the following prices:—Ching-yung-shings Gna Ling, 20s. 6d.; Kin Ling, 19s. 7d.; Foong Ling, 18s. 8d.; Market No. 1, 18s. 8d. to 18s. 11d.; Common, 15s. 6d. to 15s. 11d.; Taysaams taken in small quantities at 13s. 2d. to 13s. 8d. for Nos. 1 and 2 Long Reels; 12s. 9d. to 13s. 2d. for fair 9 to 12 Moss; 11s. 4d. to 11s. 7d. for Market Skeins. Rereels still neglected and prices without change.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co.'s Circular says:—After the departure of last English mail, more favourable advices were received by wire of the London market, and latest telegrams quote No. 4 Tsatlee 13s. per lb. These advices caused an excited market here, and considerable settlements have resulted at daily advancing prices for all classes of Tsatlee reel; nearly 600 bales changed hands during the first week of the period under review, but since the departure of the French mail the firmness of natives has impeded business, and only about 150 bales are reported settled. The quotation for No. 4 Tsatlee a fortnight ago was $370 per picul, and to-day, offers are said to have been made of $405 per picul, or 14s. 1d. per lb. It is still premature to give any accurate information regarding the sixth crop. Long-reels have been in fair demand, and 120 piculs and 40 bales are reported settled for this mail. Re-reels have been in fair request, and contracts are reported as 532 boxes, at about the quotations given in our last circular; rates are now asked which are much too high to induce further operations.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HANKOW.—A small lot of Rhubarb purchased at Tls. 22. Gall Nuts: In small stock and firmly held. Tobacco: New crop Tungchow freely offered but was of inferior quality. Musk: Dealers were asking high prices. China Grass: Fair business at firm values; Oopack white Tls. 8.5.0 to Tls. 11, Szechuen Green, Tls. 8 to Tls. 8.40. Hides: Firm and advancing being quoted Tls. 8.30 to Tls. 8.40.

CHEFOO.—Messrs. Cornabe and Co's. Circular says:—Sugars: Stocks have been replenished by arrivals from Amoy and Swatow, and inquiry has subsided. Supplies have likewise been re-exported from Newchwang to this. Export produce is still scarce, and prices are very unsteady. We cannot look for any decline in value for some time, as a number of vessels are expected to load. The new crop of Teas will be arriving to market towards the end of the month.

HONG KONG.—Sugar: Owing to more favourable advices from England rates had become somewhat stronger, and the business reported had been confined almost entirely to native dealers. The market closed firm at the following quotations:—Chui Chow, White, $7.30 to 7.40; Brown, $4 to 4.10; Shekloong, White, $7.40 to 7.50; Brown, $4.20; and other kinds, $3.70 to 3.80 per picul. At Swatow there was nothing doing. Camphor was in small supply: Japan being worth $20.75, and Formosa $17 to 17.50 per picul. Gamboge was almost entirely out of stock, and was quoted at $53 to 55 per picul, nominal. Vermilion closed at $36 per picul.

CANTON.—Cassia: With increasing stocks and a limited demand, the market was weaker, and a further decline of 20 to 30 cents per picul had been established. Settlements had been on a somewhat larger scale, viz., 2,500 piculs, 2,000 for Europe, 400 for India, and 100 for America. Galls Nuts: Unchanged. Fresh supplies had not yet come to hand, but were daily expected. Turmeric: Some demand for native consumption had had the effect of raising prices.

MACAO.—About 350 piculs of Aniseed Stars, new cargo, had been received, and the quality was very good. Holders were asking $24 per picul. A small business had been done in Essential Oils, and at the close Cassia Oil and Aniseed Oil were quoted $91 and 180 per picul respectively.

SINGAPORE.—The market generally had been steady throughout the fortnight, and there was very little change in quotations; a fair demand had prevailed for most articles, and an average business is reported. Gambier: A large business had been done, the contracts during the fortnight amounting to 2,800 tons, the bulk of which had been taken at $4.40 per picul, closing firm. Cube Gambier without alteration. Tin had been in more active demand and quotations had risen. Pearl Sago had been scarce owing to continued drought stopping the manufacture; the price was firmer. Sago Flour had advanced about 1,500 tons had been bought. Most descriptions of tapioca were lower in value; a fair demand had prevailed, 250 tons having been taken up. Supplies of Coffee had been large, amounting to about 7,000 or 8,000 piculs, of which 1,500 piculs of Bonthyne had been placed at $21.70 to 21,62½, the demand at the close was quiet.

PENANG.—A fair business had been done in Tin during the fortnight, and transactions in Black Pepper had been on a moderate scale. In other articles the business done had been limited. There had been a good demand for Tin for England, and a moderate inquiry for India. Speculators had also taken a small quantity. Prices commenced at $18.80 and had advanced to $19.30, holders at the close refusing to accept that figure.

PASSED SUEZ CANAL.—Nov. 30, Cyphrenes, London for Singapore, &c.; Dec. 1, Glenfalloch, London for Singapore, &c.; Nov. 27, Conrad, Nieuwe Diep, for Batavia.

CASUALTIES.—Falmouth, Nov. 29, the Minna, reported 25th inst., from London to Hong Kong, is reported leaky. Glasgow, Nov. 28. A telegram reports that the Astarte, from Glasgow to Singapore, had put into Penarth Roads, about Nov. 22, with decks swept and loss of anchor and chain.

RUSSIA AND CENTRAL ASIA.

According to an official report upon the trade of Russia which has just been issued, the commercial relations of the country with Central Asia are constantly increasing, despite the war against Turkey. Caravans to the extent of 60,000 camels are by no means of infrequent occurrence. The import of cotton from Khiva and Bokhara is of special importance, for within three months about one million poods have been imported thence, and the Orenburg Railway has forwarded a total of about 1,150,000 cwts. of cotton. Russia, on the other hand, has already exported to Khiva and Bokhara manufactured cotton goods to the value of three millions of roubles. Russian manufacturers—the report says—are thus on the way to make themselves independent of the fluctuations of the American market and of the competition of English manufacturers.

THE GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY.

At the meeting of this society, held on the 26th ult. at the Hall of the University of London, Sir Rutherford Alcock, president, commented briefly on the want of exploration of South America, which continent was, he said, as little known in some respects as Africa. A paper, entitled "Notes on Bolivia," was then read by Commander G. C. Musters, R.N., who said the Republic of Bolivia was one of the least known of the States which were formed after the final overthrow of the Spanish vice-regal Government in South America. It occupied a vast and irregular area, which previous to the year 1825 was known as Upper Peru. It occupied the heart of the great continent of South America, and included roughly 13 deg. of long. and 16 deg. of lat. The most important territories of the Republic were comprised in the Altaplanicie, or table land of the Andes, and the spurs and valleys of the Eastern Cordillera. The immense outlying savannahs and forest land to the north and east were chiefly occupied by wild tribes of Indians, and awaited the progress of the future for development. Commander Musters, who had resided in the city of Sucre, the capital of Bolivia, gave an interesting account of the physical features of the country, its mountains and valleys, offering respectively the extremes of cold and heat, its productions, and its population. According to altitude, Bolivia produced sugar, coffee, tobacco, vanilla, custard apples, &c., oranges, vines, maize, and all European cereals and fruits. In no other country had the anthor of the paper witnessed so much drunkenness amongst the lower classes, both Indians and half-breeds, especially the latter. He rarely arrived at a small town or mine without finding the greater part of the people the worse for liquor. The population had been computed at 2,526,000, distributed over an area of 53,228 square leagues. The chief cities, situated on the Eastern Cordillera, were, in the south, Sucre (called after Bolivar's famous general, who became the first President of the new Republic), Potosi, Cinti, Tupiza, and Tarija; in the north, La Paz, Cochabamba, and Oruro; and to the east in the lowlands, Santa Cruz de la Sierra. Sucre commonly retained its ancient name, Chuquisica, or Gold-Bridge. Bolivia was rich in vegetable produce, but her mineral riches ought to be her mainstay—gold, silver, copper, tin, antimony, bismuth, &c., existing almost all over the country. The revolutionary spirit of the people was the real cause of the poverty of Bolivia, and failing remedial measures, it was probable that sooner or later the Republic would be disintegrated, and her territories parcelled out amongst the neighbouring States. Mr. C. R. Markham then read a paper on "The Still Unexplored Parts of South America," and a short discussion followed, in the course of which Mr. Matthews gave an account of his travels in the region principally under review.

CONSULAR REPORTS.

A further batch of Consular reports have been issued, some of which contain information of interest to those connected with the Far East.

EGYPT.

Mr. Consul Perceval reports on the trade of Port Said for 1876 as follows :—

During the year 1876 the total number of vessels under all flags, including ships of war, transports, and yachts, which availed themselves of the Suez Canal as the highway between the east and west, reached the sum of 1,461, with a tonnage of 2,095,870 tons net register. Although this amount of shipping falls short of the number which passed through the canal in 1875 by thirty-one vessels, still, an increase of 76,375 tons will be observed, thus showing that, on an average, the vessels will have been of larger capacity. The number of Government ships and yachts was sixty-six, with a tonnage of 109,172 tons, and the amount of trading vessels reached 1,395, tonnage 1,986,698 tons, to which England contributed 1,510,198 tons.

Notwithstanding the decrease in the total number of ships, 1,092 vessels under the British flag, amounting to nearly 75 per cent. of the whole traffic, with a tonnage of 1,578,238 tons net, passed through the Canal during the year, being an increase both in ships and tonnage of 31 in the former, and 100,492 in the latter.

I have been informed that the total receipts of the Canal Company during the year 1876 amounted to the sum of f.30,728,925, equal to £1,229,157 sterling, of which amount f.29,974,998, or £1,198,999, was derived from transit dues of ships, the remainder was realised by boats' transit dues, sale and rent of land and houses, water rates, sale of material, &c., and shows an excess over the receipts for the previous year of £24,770.

The Canal has been kept in good working order, and the requisite depth of water maintained, with the usual amount of dredging, and the company have faced the banks in various places with stone to prevent the sand falling in. This work is still being carried on, and, eventually, it is probable that nearly the whole extent will be stone faced.

The breakwater of Port Said having been completed to the distance intended, the works have been confined to repairs necessary to counteract the damages caused by the action of the waves.

During the latter part of the year H.M.S. Fawn has been employed in completing the survey of the coast from the Damietta mouth of the Nile eastward, and the entrance to the harbour of Port Said.

Of the trade of Port Said there is not much information to give, especially as I have never been able to obtain any statistics.

The coal trade, which is very important, shows a slight increase, the amount imported being estimated at 260,000 tons, of which 222,483 tons reached this place in British vessels.

The other imports are ship chandlers' stores, wine, provisions, cattle, timber, stone, &c., for the requirements of the inhabitants.

Some improvements have taken place in the condition of the town, the principal one being the introduction of gas, the streets being now well lighted, and I am happy to be in a position to record a great improvement to the moral atmosphere of the place, murders and outrages having become much less frequent than formerly.

Mr. Consul West reports on the trade of Suez as under :—

The year 1876 was throughout Egypt one of commercial stagnation and distress, the reasons for which are too well known, and their effects too widely felt, to require special notice here. The trade of the Red Sea, in connection with Suez, except as regards the pilgrim traffic, has fallen off.

In imports there has been a reduction of about 12 per cent. on those of the preceding year, although the imports by British and by Austrian vessels have increased.

In addition to the goods brought direct from ports in the Mediterranean to Suez a number of small open vessels now bring fruit and other produce from the coast of Syria, some of them coming from Port Said only, at which place duty is levied prior to such produce being allowed to enter the canal.

The trade between Suez and the ports on the western coast of the Red Sea has been interrupted, if not permanently checked, by the attempted operations of the Khedive in Abyssinia.

The quarantine establishment, or lazeretto, for the return pilgrims has been withdrawn from El Wedge in consequence of the dreaded short supply of water, no heavy rains having fallen towards the end of last year (1876), and the artificial means of supply being of too precarious a nature to be depended upon. The roadstead and village of Tor, on the peninsula of Mount Sinai, is the site fixed upon for the detention of the pilgrim-carrying steamers, and it is preferable to that of El Wedge, both as regards the anchorage for the steamers and the water supply.

The quantity of coals delivered at Suez in the course of the year 1876 was considerably larger than that of the preceding year, being as much as 34,000 tons, equal to an increase of 90 per cent., which is to be accounted for by the additional demand caused by the Egyptian expedition to Abyssinia.

PERU.

In the report by Mr. Consul March on the trade of Peru the following reference is made to the subject of Chinese labour :—

The rise in the value of sugar and the increasing demand for nitrate have somewhat ameliorated the condition of the country, but until there is labour the improvement will not be great. Efforts have been made during the past year to attract Europeans to this country, but the result has not been encouraging. It is to China that the planters look for the special kind of labourers they require, and there is every probability of their expectations being realised in the contract just made between the Peruvian Government and an English commercial house at Hong Kong. By this contract the latter undertake to establish a line of steamers between China and Peru for the express purpose of conveying Chinamen to the latter country, under the terms of the recently concluded treaty. Agents are also at work at San Francisco with the same view. In a letter circulated among the sugar planters, the agent of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company at Callao points out the facilities afforded by the company's steamers for conveyance of these people. He calculates the cost of the passage from San Francisco to Callao at $50 in American gold, or 105 sols direct from China.

CHINESE IMMIGRATION.

The Daily Telegraph has a well considered article on the above subject based upon the well-known discussions which have taken place with regard to it in the United States. Referring to the question of introducing Chinese labour into this country, it says :—

As regards Great Britain, we have no wish to encourage the advent of race whose presence in any considerable numbers could not fail to cause irritation to the working classes, and who have no prospect of blending with us. On the contrary, we devoutly wish that the relations between employers and employed—whether in private families, or in the trades of the country—may become so satisfactory that the introduction of rival labour from China may be indefinitely postponed. But should England ever become to any extent the residence of Celestials, it is to be hoped that we may eschew the extreme measures adopted by Queensland, in which colony the recent treatment of Chinese immigrants will perhaps be regarded twenty years hence differently from the view taken respecting it now. It rarely happens that Chinamen living among whites resort to violence without provocation. As a rule, they are singularly patient, amenable to courtesy, and not usually disposed to obtrude themselves upon the society of those who claim to be their superiors. Although the objection is sometimes urged against them, as residents, that they hoard their earnings instead of spending them, this is not an accurate statement of the case. They invariably acquire the habit of using certain articles of food and clothing which they are compelled to purchase in the land of their adoption ; and in the Pacific States, if not also in Australia, an increasing proportion of them are gradually taking root in the soil, and assimilating more and more to Western modes of life. Should this ancient, ingenious, and secluded race eventually migrate from their fatherland to foreign fields of industrial and commercial enterprise in unprecedented swarms, it is perfectly compatible with the duty Western nations owe to themselves, that the strangers should not be repulsed, but rather encouraged to advance in the path of civilisation.

INTERNATIONAL TELEGRAPH CONGRESS.—It is announced that the International Telegraph Congress will meet on July 1, 1878, in London. Among other subjects, it will discuss the reduction of charges for telegrams sent considerable distances, and an increase for short distances. As to the system of assessing charges, England, Germany, and Austro-Hungary are in favour of counting by words, Belgium by groups of words, while France has not yet communicated her view.

Legal.

CHANCERY DIVISION.

WILLIAMSON V. BARBOUR.

The hearing of this case, which affects the legality of alleged customary charges between principal and agent in the Manchester trade, was concluded on the 28th ult., when the Right Hon. Sir George Jessell, Master of the Rolls, delivered judgment. His lordship said he was glad in a case of such magnitude, involving as it did not only the fortunes but the reputations of merchants of high position, that the responsibility of any mistake or wrong conclusion on his part could be corrected elsewhere on appeal. The action was in form brought for the rectification of settled accounts. That would be done either by entirely opening the accounts or by an order to surcharge and falsify, and if errors were shown amounting to fraud, whether arising out of mistake or otherwise, the Court would adopt the former course; and in cases where a single fraudulent entry had been shown in accounts between principals and agents or trustees and cestui-que trusts, they had been reopened, though extending over a greater number of years, and closed for a longer period than in the present case. The substance of this case was an accusation by the plaintiffs that from the beginning of their connection, the defendants in all commission transactions of buying and forwarding goods to Calcutta had made gross and fraudulent overcharges to a very large amount. But proof of a sufficient number of errors and to a sufficient amount would necessitate the opening of the accounts. Upon the first question of fact, were the plaintiffs merely charged the prices paid by the defendants, there was no contest, for the defendants themselves admitted making overcharges, which they sought to justify on various grounds, on almost every item in the invoices. In executing orders from Calcutta for "white goods," for instance, the defendants not only habitually took a considerable discount from the bleachers, but added a large percentage to the gross sum charged to themselves. Further, it appeared that the defendants themselves speculated in grey cottons with which they executed orders from Calcutta, charging a higher price than they had themselves paid, at the highest price of the day. It was also alleged that they had retained large discounts, in some cases amounting to 50 per cent., obtained by them from manufacturers, and had largely overcharged in matters incidental to packing and shipping. Then it appeared that the plaintiffs transmitted bills to the defendants in payment, 5 per cent. being charged on whichever side of the account the balance lay. Goods were so invoiced by the defendants, that interest was charged before they had been actually paid for, and not only did they discount the bills forwarded at an earlier period than authorised, but they failed to debit the proceeds at once, as they should have done, and finally charged an increased discount against their principals. These accusations were admitted by the defendants, and were only sought to be justified on the ground of "custom of trade," the first defence raised being that, though they were acting as plaintiffs' agents in buying, they were principals as regarded the making up and packing. But an agent did not cease to be so simply because he was allowed to earn a fair profit in one direction; for instance, in the common case of an auctioneer who was also a surveyor, he might charge not only for his services in sale, but also for surveying the property. Principal and agent was therefore clearly the relation of the parties. As to the overcharges on bleaching the grey goods, the evidence established, contrary to the defence raised, that the defendants had written to the plaintiffs a letter in which they stated that they did not, as some houses did, add anything to the charges, but only charged the actual amount paid. Those, therefore, were proved overcharges, and fraudulent in the view of a court of justice. It was impossible for a judge to dive into the minds of men to ascertain their motives, or to see how far their moral consciousness had been corrupted by a long course of practices; but when an agent was found buying goods at one price and invoicing them at an increase to his principal, he must be taken to have known that he was doing what was wrong, and was simply, in breach of his duty, taking money out of the pockets of his employer. The fictitious insurance accusation was very grave indeed. The defendants had admittedly charged premiums on the misrepresentation that insurances had been effected in regular offices, and they must have known that was wrong. So the Court must hold, at all events, no matter how many gentlemen connected with the trade might say it was frequently done. It was no answer for a firm to say they were wealthy and responsible; for if they chose to take the risk because the vicissitudes of trade were notorious, and a tornado might in a few hours cause losses which it would be impossible they could meet. For an agent to expose his principal to such a risk was a plain breach of duty, and, in any case, the defendants had no right to charge premiums as paid to somebody else, that being really the representation where the insurances were only partially effected in regular offices. Then, with regard to the charges on the white goods, it was said the plaintiffs knew perfectly well the custom of the Manchester trade, and that they were fair charges; but there was no proof of actual knowledge, and casual conversations professed to be recounted after the lapse of twenty-six years were valueless in such a case. But the knowledge of a delinquent or acquiescing partner, even where proved, would not affect his firm. The cross-examination of Mr. Graham on his affidavit supporting these "customs" must have been very humiliating to a gentleman in his position, and it was quite clear that his trade and mode of conducting it was very different from the defendants. There was evidently no such custom in Manchester as had been set up, and nothing like it, and Mr. Graham's experience of half a century might be unhesitatingly accepted, viz., that the great bulk of the business houses conduct their trade honestly, and his lordship was glad to consider this as an exceptional case. For instance, when that witness insured for his customers he mentioned the fact in his invoices, as also the charges he made, making special arrangements with the people he might be dealing with. Williamson, it had been said, must be fixed with knowledge of what was quite notorious in the trade, but the answer to that was that some of the defendants' own witnesses of longer connection with Manchester knew nothing of the alleged custom, the most they spoke to being a net charge to their correspondents of payments made, with the addition of ⅜d. per piece for their services in producing white goods, and then 5 per cent. interest on the gross amount till paid. It was impossible to acquit the defendants of knowledge of what was being done, and that it was wrong. Mr. Williamson swore distinctly that it was arranged between them that the plaintiffs should have the benefit of all discounts, and the defendants had not proved the bargain to the contrary which they had alleged. Certainly there could be no excuse for discounting for their own purposes bills which had been placed with them for safe custody; but, having done so, what justification could there be for not crediting the plaintiffs with the proceeds? That obligation could not be discharged by a reference to some obscure passages in the correspondence. On those grounds the defendants had failed to show that the accounts ought not to be opened, and it was unnecessary to go into the other matters alleged. When the accounts were taken in Chambers the Court would see justice done between the parties by allowing remuneration where it was due, though not charged in that character, and by disallowing overcharges, of which fourfold more than enough had been proved already to justify a decree in the plaintiffs' favour that the accounts be taken in the usual way. The defendants must pay the costs, and would be declared jointly and severally liable for the respective periods of their membership of the firm.

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.—

SWIRE AND OTHERS v. FRANCIS.

This was an appeal from the Supreme Court of China and Japan. The facts were briefly as follows:—The appellants, who were plaintiffs in the Court below, were general agents for the China Navigation Company, an English Joint Stock Company, having its head office in London, and had a line of steamers running between Shanghai and other places. The appellants, as agents for the Company, were accustomed to make advances to Chinese merchants on cargoes for shipment. The respondent traded as "R. Francis and Co.," and residing at Shanghai, he only occasionally visited Kiukiang, where his business was conducted by a Mr. W. H. Shaw, who signed the firm of R. Francis and Co., per procuration. In March, 1876, the Kiukiang agency was transferred from R. Francis and Co. to R. Anderson and Co. At the same time Mr. Shaw entered the service of the latter firm, but continued to represent R. Francis and Co., which firm went into liquidation. In the final accounts of the agency from R. Francis and Co., signed by Mr. Shaw, Messrs. Butterfield and Swire were debited with Tls. 6,073 as advanced to shippers, and Tls. 57 as brokerage. Shaw, in the name of R. Francis and Co., drew upon Messrs. Butterfield and Swire a draft for these amounts, and the draft was duly honoured. Subsequently, however, Messrs. Anderson and Co. discovered that the money represented to have been advanced had not been advanced, nor had the brokerage mentioned been paid; and upon investigation the only inference to be drawn was that Shaw, who had left China, had appropriated the money to his own use. Shaw was subsequently apprehended, and on confessing the misappropriation was sent to jail. The question for the Court to determine was the liability of the defendant to refund the deficiencies of his subagent, and on the case being heard in Shanghai judgment was given against the appellants for the advances, amounting to Tls. 5,880, on the ground that Shaw acted without the scope of his authority in obtaining the money. From this Messrs. Butterfield and Swire appealed in the present case. Mr. Gainsford Bruce argued the case for the appellants, and the other side was not represented. Sir Robert Collier, in giving judgment, lucidly reviewed the facts. Their Lordships held that the respondent was liable for the acts of Shaw for the misappropriation as agent, and they reversed the decision of the Court below, with costs, holding the respondent liable for Shaw's conduct as his agent.

TRADE MARKS.

The case of "Robinson v. Finlay" has been heard in the Chancery Division before Vice Chancellor Sir James Bacon. The question raised in this suit was whether, when a trade-mark has been used upon goods sold in a foreign market by exporting merchants on account of a manufacturer, the trade-marks used upon those goods belong to the manufacturer or to the exporting commission-merchant through whom they have been exported. The manufacturer, as owning the goods, claimed the trade-mark as his, the commission merchant claimed it as having invented the trade-mark and superintended the marking of the goods. The action was commenced in June, 1877, by George Robinson and Co., of Manchester, who exported cotton cloths to Rangoon until 1877 on account of the defendant Ward, with certain tickets and trade-marks on them. In the beginning of 1877 Ward ceased to supply the plaintiffs with cloths, and began to ship to the Burmese markets, through the defendants Finlay and Co., white shirtings bearing substantially the same tickets and marks as were formerly affixed to his goods by the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs, George Robinson and Co., claimed damages from the defendants for the use or imitation of the trade-marks, and asked for an injunction to restrain such user for the future. Ward thereupon instituted a cross action against George Robinson and Co. to restrain them from exporting white shirtings bearing devices so placed as to imitate the devices used on the shirtings formerly exported by Ward through George Robinson and Co. George Robinson and Co. claimed these devices as their sole property, and denied that Ward had any right to use the same or had any interest in them. They contended that all the trade-marks placed upon Ward's goods were, according to the course of business between them, placed upon the goods by the direction of the defendants, the exporters of the goods, and Ward had nothing to do with the marking of them. The particular device placed upon Ward's goods by George Robinson and Co. was a combination of marks consisting in part of the private crest of the firm, in part of certain letters, which Ward said were devised for him by Messrs. Robinson, as his agents, and in part of designs called the Burmese Lion and the White Elephant ticket, as to the property in which there was some conflict of testimony. Witnesses were called as to the existence of a custom in Manchester that if the exporter allowed a trade-mark to be affixed to a maker's goods exported by him such trade-mark became the property of the maker.

Vice-Chancellor Bacon said that custom was out of the question. The exporters were the persons dealing with the market at Rangoon, and the trade-mark was their property. Whether it was expressed or understood only that the design should be lent to Ward for the purpose of marking his goods was not clear upon the evidence, but it was proved that the design was Robinson's, invented by him for his own trade at Rangoon, and he could not find that Ward ever had any title to the combination. A merchant might have a title to a combination of devices as a trade-mark, though as to some parts of the combination his title as against some other persons might not be clear; but as against a person in the position of Ward the property would be in Robinson. As between Ward and Robinson the marks denoted Ward's goods, but as between Ward and the public they denoted not his goods, but the exporter's. There was no ground for Ward's claim to take Robinson's trade-mark and apply it to his goods when exported by other exporters. Messrs. Robinson were entitled to an injunction to restrain Ward from imitating their trade-mark so as to deceive the public.

LIABILITY FOR LOSSES BY COLLISION AT SEA.

In the Common Pleas Division, before Mr. Justice Grove and Mr. Justice Lindley) the suit of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China v. the Netherlands and India Steamship Navigation Company, a special case, stated for the opinion of the Court, has been heard. The plaintiffs had shipped a large sum in specie in a vessel of the defendants called the Kron Prinz, which had been run into and sunk in Dutch waters by the Atjeh, another vessel belonging to the defendants. The question intended to be raised for the opinion of the Court was whether, supposing both vessels were equally to blame for the collision, the defendants were liable, either by English or Dutch law, for the whole amount lost. The special case only found as a fact that the loss was occasioned by the negligence of the defendants' servants in charge of the Atjeh, and then went on to say that if those in charge of the Kron Prinz were also to blame, still that the collision and loss might have been prevented if a proper look-out had been kept and proper care had been taken by the servants of the defendants in charge of the Atjeh.

Under these circumstances, the Court declined to give any opinion on the question suggested, on the ground that if the special case found that both parties were to blame it only did so hypothetically, and that they could not, as a matter of principle, decide upon a hypothetical case.

SALVAGE SUIT.—An action has been tried in the Admiralty Division before the Right Hon. Sir R. J. Phillimore and Trinity Masters, claiming salvage for services rendered less than three weeks ago by the tugs Macgregor and Benachie in towing the ship Cutty Sark from off the North Foreland to London. The Cutty Sark is a full-rigged ship of 913 tons, and was bound from London for Sydney with a general cargo. In consequence of the fierce hurricane which raged all round the coast on the night of the 11th ult., the Cutty Sark, while in the Downs, came into collision with two other ships, and also had nearly all her sails blown away by the gale. The tug Macgregor came up with her about four o'clock on the morniug of the 12th ult. when off the Kentish Knock, and took her in tow, but had gone a very little distance from the Knock when another tug, the Benachie, came up. Both tugs then towed her to Greenhithe, where they arrived, the same night the 12th ult. The value of the Cutty Sark, her cargo, and freight, was about £52,000. The Court was of opinion that the ship and her crew were in considerable peril, and he awarded the sum of £3,000, with costs.

Naval and Military.

The Lords of the Admiralty have presented a memorial to Her Majesty in Council for improving the position and prospects of assistant paymasters. This they think can be best met by according them an increase of full pay, and by granting to the widows and children of assistant paymasters of not less than ten years' service pensions and compassionate allowances. What is proposed is to increase the full pay of assistant-paymasters after ten years' service in that rank by 6d. per day for each further year's service until a maximum of 11s. 6d. per day be reached; to establish one uniform rate of full pay for assistant-paymasters in charge—viz., 12s. 6d. a day, instead of the various rates, according to seniority, now in use; and to grant to their widows an ordinary pension of £40 and special pensions of £50 and £65, and compassionate allowances to their legitimate children. The requisite expenditure has been granted by the Treasury, and it is understood that the new regulations will date from the 1st ult.

The Distinguished Service Rewards vacant by the appointment of Lieut.-General Sir R. Waddy, K.C.B., to a regimental colonelcy, and the death of Major-General J. Gwilt, C.B., have been conferred upon Lieut.-General Sir E. Selby Smith, K.C.M.G., commanding the Canadian Militia, and Major-General C. L. Nugent. Sir Edward Smyth served as Brigade-Major to the forces in the Southern Concan and Sawant Warree Country during the campaign of 1844-45, also in the Kaffir war of 1851-52, and subsequently as Deputy Adjutant-General and Deputy Quartermaster-General to the Forces in South Africa. General Nugent served with the 58th Regiment in the New Zealand war of 1845-46.

A decision has been come to in favour of the five Colonels who were lately deprived of their promotion to Major-General, by a clause in the Royal Warrant rendering them liable to compulsory retirement, and that steps are about to be taken for giving them the promotion to which they have been ruled to be entitled. The officers interested are Colonels C. Sawyer, half-pay (late 6th Dragoon Guards); E. Seager, C.B., Inspector of Yeomanry Cavalry; A. W. Murray, C.B., half pay (late 1st West India Regiment); J. H. C. Robertson, half pay (late 100th Regiment; and R. J. Eagar, retired full pay (late 31st Regiment).

Herr Krupp, the German gunmaker, has entered into an engagement with Mr. John Tonkin, principal foreman of the Royal Laboratory Shell Foundry at Woolwich Arsenal, securing his services for a term of ten years as superintendent of the Krupp Foundries, two of which are in Germany and one in Italy. Mr. Tonkin is to receive a salary of £1,000 a year, and a bonus equal to the prospective pension which he forfeits by leaving Her Majesty's service. A draughtsman and two other foremen from the same department accompany him to fill subordinate appointments at liberal salaries.

Letters have been received from Admiral Ryder, in the Audacious, at Hong Kong, up to October 11; he would there await the arrival of his successor. The Sheldrake had returned from Ichang to Hankow. The Lily had gone from Nagasaki to Chinkiang. The Midge left on Sept. 24 for Tientsin, where she will winter. The Frolic was still in dock at Shanghai, after collision. The Growler was ordered from the Dindings up to Hong Kong, where she will be docked. The Vigilant had been docked. The health of the squadron was satisfactory.

After a trial of two days by a court-martial at Portsmouth, four gunners in the Royal Marines, and four seamen belonging to the Téméraire, have been found guilty of breaking into the store-room of that ship, and stealing several bottles of whisky and wine therefrom. They were also found guilty of being drunk on board. One of the seamen who was on guard at the time was convicted of complicity in the robbery, and was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, and the others to nine months.

It is stated that the Channel Squadron will for the first time for several years winter in England. The squadron usually winters off the coast of Portugal for economical reasons, the health of the crews being better when in the south during cold weather than when on the coast of Britain. The officers and crews, however, have been more than is customary abroad, and are desirous of obtaining shore-leave.

The Chief Constructor of the German Imperial Navy, with the German Military Attaché, and Captain Schuring, G.I.N., visited Chatham Dockyard last week. Mr. Nathaniel Barnaby, C.B., Director of Naval Construction at the Admiralty, accompanied the visitors, to whom the chief object of interest appeared to be the Agamemon, which is about half completed.

The Royal Horse Artillery band, for many years part of the Woolwich establishment, is to be broken up. It has been maintained at the entire cost of the officers belonging to the Royal Horse Brigades of Artillery, who have also to bear their part in supporting the other regimental bands, which are merely assisted by a Government allowance.

Sixty tons of ammunition, including 1,000,000 rounds of small arm ball cartridges, were sent last week from the Royal Arsenal, Woolwich, to the Cape of Good Hope, and a supply of guns and carriages, shot and shell, and other materials suited to the character of the campaign in Kaffraria is being prepared to follow as early as possible.

Admiral Wellesley and Vice-Admiral Sir Houston Stewart have completed their inspection of the works in progress at Portsmouth dockyard. Though unofficial, the inspection has been of a thorough and painstaking character. It was wholly devoted to the programme of ships completing and refitting.

The Ariel, 4,436 tons, 540-horse power, composite gun vessel, has been commissioned at Chatham as tender to the Endymion, 22, 3,197 tons, 1,620-horse power, ship of the first reserve at Hull. She is to have a complement of twenty-eight officers and men.

Vice-Admiral Sir Beauchamp Seymour has received from the Admiralty a letter complimenting him upon the manner in which the duties of senior officer in command of the Channel Squadron were carried out by him during his term of service.

The Encounter, 14, Captain R. Bradshaw, arrived at Spithead on the 28th ult., from Bermuda, after having been over four years and three months in commission. Captain Bradshaw commissioned the Encounter at Sheerness in August, 1873.

Surgeon W. Campbell, M.B., Army Medical Department, has accepted the appointment of Assistant Colonial Surgeon at Singapore.

Obituary.

CAPT. JAMES ALDWORTH ST. LEGER (Retired List) died suddenly last week at Kingstown (of which port he was harbour-master), aged sixty-seven years. This officer entered the Navy in 1828, and passed his examination in 1835. While mate, in China, of the Calliope, he assisted in the boats at the capture and destruction of eleven out of thirteen war-junks, near Chuenpee, in 1841; was present in a subsequent attack made on the enemy's camp, fort, and ship Cambridge, bearing the Chinese Admiral's flag (which he boarded), at their position below Whampoa Reach, where 98 guns were in the whole destroyed; contributed to the capture of several rafts, and of the last fort protecting the approaches to Canton; and was attached to the western division of boats at the capture of that city itself. For these services he was promoted in June, 1841, to the rank of lieutenant. While belonging, in the course of the same year, to the Blenheim, he co-operated in the reduction of Amoy and Chinghae. He was paid off from the Blenheim in March. 1843, and was next employed on the Coast of Africa and on the North America and West India Station, as second and first lieutenant. He attained commander's rank in 1848, and became a retired captain in 1863.

GENERAL ALEXANDER ANDERSON, C.B., Royal Marines, died on the 20th ult. The late General obtained his first commission as second lieutenant in the Royal Marine Forces in May, 1823, and had during half a century seen much active service. He served at the battle of Navarino in 1827, and at the commencement of the action boarded with his men one of the Turkish ships, and captured the flag; the following day he was a volunteer in the boats for the purpose of cutting out the in-shore squadron. He went through the campaign on the Coast of Syria in 1840-41. At the storming of Sidon he was first to plant the British flag on the walls; was encamped at d'Jouni; was at the attack and capture of Beyrout, the bombardment and surrender of St. Jean d'Acre, and the surrender of Jaffa; and was a volunteer in the expedition against Gaza. The deceased general retired on full pay in May last. He was made, in recognition of his military services, a Companion of the Order of the Bath in 1869, and was in receipt of a good-service pension.

LIEUT.-COLONEL THE HON. AUGUSTUS H. A. ANSON, V.C., late M.P. for Bewdley, died at Cannes, on the 17th ult., aged forty-two. He served with the Rifle Brigade at the Siege of Sebastopool (medal with clasp, 5th Class of the Medjidie, and Turkish medal); also in the Indian campaign of 1857-58 as aide-de-camp to General Grant; was thanked by the Governor-General in Council, and repeatedly mentioned in despatches (medal with two clasps, Victoria Cross, and brevet of major); proceeded to China as Assistant-Adjutant-General to the Expeditionary Force in 1860, and was present throughout the campaign, including the capture of the Taku Forts, and the advance on and entry into Peking (medal and clasps).

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, NOV. 27.

The past week has in general been rather a dull one, and the only occurrence of interest was the sitting of the Prussian Diet on Wednesday, the 21st of this month. After some resolutions of minor importance on that day being passed, in the debating of which the Minister of Agriculture and Minister of Home Affairs, ad interim, Herr von Friedenthal, had partaken, this latter left the House, and only some Government Commissioners remained present, among whom the Under-Secretary of State, Homeyer. In this moment the member for Hagen, Herr Richter, asked the Government whether the interests of the fortune of the ex-King George of Hanover, confiscated in 1869, had only been applied for the defence against possible attacks of that King or his agencies, or whether those interests had found any other not permitted application. The confiscated fortune amounted to 13,382,000 thalers, giving a yearly revenue of about 598,000 thalers, from which the administrative expenses are to be deducted with 180,000 thalers a year. Now the Government should state whether the whole amount of six times 418,000 thalers (six years having elapsed since the Peace of Frankfort in 1871) had been applied according to the law passed in the German Parliament in 1871. It may serve as explanation when I add, that the great number of deputies considered it as probable those amounts or parts of those sums having been given as an aid or pecuniary assistance to the great number of official or semi-official journals, which are willing to write in a Government sense. As you know, the number of these papers in Germany is rather considerable, and they are called with a glance-to-despisal, "reptiles." As I mentioned above, all Ministers were absent, and therefore the Member for Berlin, Professor Virchow, proposed the motion to postpone the sitting, and to demand the presence of the Ministers. The Speaker, Herr van Bennigsen, considered this motion, as far as its latter part is concerned, as no legal one, and it was rejected by 200 against 151 votes; among the former were all Polanders, Ultramontanes, and all members of the so-named Progressive party.

On Monday, the 26th of this month, the Emperor William received the members of the new Chinese Embassy in audience. Her Von Bulow was present on the occasion, as a representative of the Prussian Cabinet, and Mr. H. O. Brown acted as interpreter.

After the failure of the negotiations between Germany and Austria about a new Treaty of Commerce, the prolongation of the Treaty of 1863 for one year was proposed by the German Government, but this proposal was refused by Austria, which on its side made the offer of a treaty on the footing of the most favoured nations; this again has been found incompatible with the interests of Germany, and things therefore are still on the same footing as last reported. The hearty friendship between Germany and Austria indeed appears to be shook a little at present.

The appeal of the defendant Mr. Dienst Daber, who had been sentenced to three months' imprisonment for repeatedly having offended Prince Bismark, has been rejected, and the above-named verdict purely confirmed. Prince Bismark, as you see, allows nobody to ill-use his name.

The Senate here at Hamburg already, yesterday, has selected the men who are to be the highest personages here for the coming year. Senator Kirchenpauer and Senator Weber have been selected as burgomasters, the highest Governmental charge in our little Republic.

The German iron-industry recently has been favoured by an agreeable encouragement by the German navy; Rear-Admiral Werner has declared, on occasion of the christening of the corvette Stosch, that his former opinion about the German iron-industry being unable of producing chains and other articles for the use of men-of-war of late had been totally changed into the contrary. The Admiralty, in consequence, after solid trials, has given extensive orders to several iron-working establishments in Westphalia and the Dukedom of Oldenburg. It is to be hoped that this fair proceeding of the navy will be followed by a good many private orders.

In one of the sessions of the Nautical Society of this place a point was discussed which deserved well to come to the ears of the great sailor's friend in England, Mr. Plimsoll. It was mentioned that although extensive investigations and improvements as to vessels and their cargoes had been made, still never there had been talked about the greatest calamity of the sailor, the insufficient manning of the vessels. Vessels which formerly carried sixteen to eighteen hands are now found to be going to sea with ten to eleven hands, and it is this point principally from which the great sufferings of the sailors, the many losses, the many abandonments at sea, &c., originate. It is true that the management of the vessels of our day is much easier than twenty-five years back, but the pumping, steering gear, &c., has not been improved, and many vessels are abandoned now with totally exhausted crews, which might have been saved if they had been sufficiently manned. The underwriters of Hamburg have long been discussing this object, but have not been able to do anything against it, but for Mr. Plimsoll it certainly would be easy to change things for the better if he should choose to make this matter his own.

The Railway Waggon Construction Company at Hamburg (Eisenholm, Wagenbau, Anstalt), has published are port for the period from July 1, 1876, to June 30, 1877, according to which the establishment did not make any earnings, and a considerable loss is stated, amounting to m.524,548.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Transactions in several articles have been of larger extent during the past week, the demand being more general. Money has remained tolerably abundant.

COFFEE.—The public sales in Holland held on the 21st inst. having had a good result, our market has shown great animation, and sales here have been considerable; the quotation for Java quality remains unchanged at m.1.05 to 1.50 per lb.

SUGAR.—No first-hand parcels of importance have changed owners. Quotations are:—Manila, brown, clayed, m.24½ to 26½; do., unclayed, m.18 to 20; Mauritius, brown, m.18 to 24; do. yellow, m.26 to 28; Batavia, white, m.31 to 32½; do. yellow and grey, m.26½ to 29½; do. brown, m.18 to 24½; Siam, and China, white, m.29 to 31; Zanzibar, brown and yellow, m.20 to 29; China, brown and yellow, m.18 to 27 per 100 lbs.

RICE.—Of dressed quality sales have been larger, in consequence of the holders inclination to concede. From Rangoon have arrived 15,149 bags per Soukar, which go direct to the mills.

TEA is unchanged and quiet; of first and second hand parcels ca.5008, boxes Congou have changed owners.

COTTON has been neglected in spite of the better tendency at Liverpool.

SPICES.—Ginger quiet; Bengal, at m.24 to 24½; Cochin higher, in consequence of small stocks; Quotation is m.64 to 86; Nutmegs in good demand at m.2.50 to 3.20; Mace at m.2.10 to 2.30; Cloves: Amboina, value m.175 to 180; Zanzibar are in good demand, with higher prices, at m.150 to 155; do. Stalks, firm, at m.40 to 41; Pepper quiet; Singapore quality at m.36½ to 37; Batavia and Penang at m.33½ to 34; White, at m.65 to 75.

STOCKS AND SHARES.

The tendency during the past week has been a better one, but prices have shown rather considerable fluctuations. The expectation of a speedy fall of Plevna not being realised, and the uncertainty in respect of the final solution of the difficulties in France, were the causes of these variations in value, but numerous transactions in the new Russian Loan have maintained the prevailing good tendency. The trade in the river during the past week has been of very little importance, and it is now quite plain that the winter is very near at hand. We have hitherto had mild weather throughout, and it was not until last night that frost made its appearance. Up the Baltic and the Gulf of Finland the temperature is still unusually mild, and all the Russian ports remain open, a great benefit for the exportation of grain, &c., to Western Europe. Several German vessels have left Cronstadt for the Amoor River, under charter by the Russian Government, as well as on private account. Of arrivals from the Far East I can only report three, viz., the Chanaral, Harris, from Rangoon; Hesperia, s.s. Johannsen, from China, &c.; the Merour, Gaefken, from Apia, and Saturn, Shade, from Flint Island. There have been no departures. Neither from Bremen nor any other German port are there any arrivals or departures for the Far East to be recorded. Our river is provided now with two powerful ice-breakers, and the stoppage of navigation is no longer to be feared.

THIS MAIL'S NEWS.

Still more harrowing accounts even than those which we have published for some time past, reach us by the present mail with regard to the famine in China. The latest reports from the province of Shansi are to the effect that the distress was so great that thousands were dying daily, and it was stated that the poor people were not only feeding upon dead bodies, but that the strong in body had become so ravenous that they were actually destroying the weak for food. The above facts are confirmed by letters from Messrs. Tong-king-sing and Chuyue-chee, two Chinese gentlemen well known in Shanghai, who were in the north. The China Merchants Steam Navigation Co. and employés had subscribed very liberally towards assisting these poor people. At last the Chinese Government has taken some direct steps to relieve the sufferers, a decree having appeared commanding a sum of Tls. 400,000 to be provided, one-half from the fund of the Board of Revenue, and the remainder by Li Hung-chang, toward the relief of distress in the provinces of Shansi and Honan. Seventy per cent. of the amount is to go to the first-named province. Letters from Tientsin state that "the distress is not likely to be felt so keenly in Chihli or Shantung as in Shansi, and that the Chinese expect to be able to meet the emergency so far as the first two provinces are concerned." One of the local papers in Shanghai mentions an extraordinary story concerning a certain M. Paris, who, labouring under a delusion that he was the Emperor of China, addressed a Chinese crowd upon the subject, the result of which was his being arrested and handed over to the French Consul-General at Shanghai. Much speculation was rife with reference to the Woosung Railway, the year during which the Chinese authorities promised to keep it open having nearly expired, and nothing being known as to their intentions with regard to it. Some news of interest is given in a letter from a French Catholic Missionary in Thibet, who says that he considers the proposed passage of the English explorers from India into Thibet fraught with danger, and that the mere rumour of it has created the greatest excitement in L'hassa. Orders have been issued to stop all foreigners at the frontier, and that if any pass by force all supplies are to be refused them, bridges cut down in front of them, and every obstacle thrown in their way. The Lamas are the greatest opponents of all intercourse with foreigners. A foreign loan has been proposed for the Province of Yunnan, where the finances have become greatly impoverished, in consequence of the continued internecine warfare.

From Hong Kong there are continued complaints concerning the delay in bringing forward the estimates for the year 1878. The Hoppo has to some extent checked the illegal levies at the Capsingmoon pass. A Naval Court has been held concerning the loss of the Merse.

From Japan the present mail brings only three days later dates than those already received viâ America, and does not contain any additional intelligence of importance.

From the Straits the chief event is the arrival of the new Governor, Sir W. Robinson, on Oct. 29. The arrangements for his landing and reception were very satisfactory. Lady Robinson accompanied his Excellency. Colonel Anson returns to Penang, to resume the government. The news from Perak is unfavourable as to its financial constitution.

THE FAMINE IN CHINA.

IT is now certain that the present winter will be one of intense suffering in the north of China. For months past the cry of approaching famine has come to us; and at present the effects are being actually felt with great severity. A correspondent of the London and China Telegraph at Tientsin writes under date of Oct. 6, giving details of the sad condition of affairs, and states that no such famine as that now going on has been known in China for fifty years. Laudable efforts have been made by private individuals to relieve the suffering, but the Peking Government, which ought to move actively in the matter, seems as usual, to content itself with dealing with what is immediately under its eye, and to leave the other Provinces to take care of themselves. The EMPEROR remits the taxation from destitute districts, and orders some £60,000 to be diverted from neighbouring districts into Shansi, where the disaster is most severely felt. This will certainly go only a slight way towards averting the trouble, and there will be again this winter untold misery among the poorer classes. It is to be hoped that private energy will to some extent supplement the defective action of the Government, who, knowing the difficulty before them months back, might have done more than has been accomplished, according to latest advices, to avert it. It was no doubt a graceful act of the Peking Government to acknowledge the aid they received last year, but they should remember that they are bound to do something more than thank foreigners, remit taxes that could by no possibility be collected, and order "neighbouring provinces" to supply the relief which they ought to have taken some steps to afford in a direct and certain manner. Anything like an organised appeal to this country cannot be carried out so quickly after the Indian famine.

THE CHINESE IN HONG KONG.

FOR several mails past we have received information of the steady increase of the Chinese element in Hong Kong and the proportionate decrease of its foreign character. The Colony, in fact, is rapidly becoming more Chinese than English, not only in regard to its trade, but now, even in respect to the places where Chinamen are domiciled. Only by last mail we read that a well-known auction store in the best part of the town is to be pulled down, and that Chinese houses are to be built in its place; and recent letters describe the extent to which the Chinese have of late been encroaching on the European quarter, and how now, as one walks down the well-known Queen's-road, one sees Chinamen, fat, burly, happy, and very lightly clad, fanning themselves as they recline on the verandahs of houses formerly occupied by Europeans. The matter in itself would be of comparatively little importance were its bearing only in connection with the appearance and comfort of the City of Victoria, Hong Kong—though even in this aspect, especially in a tropical climate, the subject demands some consideration. But unfortunately it is but the outward sign of a difficulty which lies much deeper, and which has for years past been felt in Hong Kong. Everything there seems to be passing rapidly into native hands. The trade has been drifting in this direction so steadily that foreign merchants have been gradually ousted from one occupation after another, till they have had to content themselves in a large number of instances with being little more than the agents for Chinese. But not only this, we have now Chinese Steam and Insurance and other Companies, where business hitherto exclusively done by foreigners is encroached upon by the ingenious and indefatigable Chinese trader. Notwithstanding that Hong Kong is a British colony, so clever are the Chinese in combining together, that they contrive to conduct their trade in very much the same way as in their own cities. The power of the Guilds is as great in Hong Kong as in any Chinese place, and has often been exerted most oppressively against Europeans. We could instance one large foreign firm whose head-partner was literally subjected to a fine by the Piece Goods Guild for some transaction which did not meet their approval, and was obliged to pay it, on pain of losing every opportunity of doing business. In the same way, under colour of a native hospital, the Chinese have actually obtained Government support for an institution whose object has over and over again been shown to be to enable the native residents when they wish it to evade the laws and to establish a kind of Chinese Protectorate over the native residents in the Colony. In minor matters there are similar organisations of all kinds—combinations of tradesmen, coolies, servants, boatmen, hawkers, marketmen—all having their own little codes of laws, and all bent upon the one object of ousting the foreigner from competing with them, and obtaining the utmost cent from those who are forced to deal with them. No wonder under such circumstances foreigners find it difficult to make headway in the once flourishing colony of Hong Kong, and that the encroachments of the natives are looked upon with regret, and not without some little impatience; and when on the top of all this a Governor comes full of schemes for further benefiting natives so thoroughly well able to take care of themselves, people may be excused if they think it time to ask that foreign interests shall also be to some little extent considered. Certainly the natives in Hong Kong have little enough to complain of,—and the least that can be expected is that their presence should not be a source of trouble and danger, and that laws sufficiently severe to keep out dangerous and unruly characters will be upheld. There are certainly quite enough Chinese in Hong Kong without encouraging the advent of the worst scum of the Canton province.

MANCHESTER MORALITY.

THE judgment which has been given in the case of WILLIAMSON v. BARBOUR will long be remembered both from its direct mercantile effects and from its importance as a legal precedent on the duties of agents towards their principals. The Master of the Rolls (Sir GEO. JESSEL) has laid it down that when a person is employed as agent for another he is bound to act towards him with the fullest good faith, and will not be countenanced in making any profits or surcharges of which he does not inform him. Such is the sum and substance of the judgment just delivered in favour of the plaintiffs in the above-named case, with the main features of which our readers have already been made acquainted. The effect of the judgment will be that the books of the defendants will have to be reopened in Chambers for a period extending over twenty-five years; and the accounts will have to be investigated in order that the amount of a series of overcharges made during that period may be ascertained and compensation awarded to the plaintiffs. The nature of the overcharges, as we have already stated, will be readily understood by all who have had dealings in Manchester goods. The defendants, acting as agents for the plaintiffs, charged them various sums for bleaching, packing, marking, and discount in excess of what had been actually disbursed—in some cases to the extent of over 50 per cent. —and in regard to one specific charge, that for bleaching, had actually written, assuring their constituents that they did not as other houses in Manchester did, charge more than the actual payments. Upon this point the MASTER OF THE ROLLS laid special stress, showing in the clearest manner that it distinctly proved that the plaintiffs were misled by their agents; and he also animadverted very strongly upon the overcharge for discounts, and on the fact that the defendants had at one time discounted paper left in their hands for safe custody. In regard to this he said it was true they were a rich firm, but this did not excuse such a course of action. In fact, the case has disclosed a state of commercial morality in Manchester such as will astonish even those who are already acquainted with the doings of that place. The MASTER OF THE ROLLS might well, as he did, fail to find any "Custom" existing in Manchester. Each seemed to go his own way, and the doings of one were only more extraordinary than those of his neighbour. But the principle already stated, that complete good faith must be preserved between an agent and his principal, was sufficient to cause judgment to be recorded in favour of the plaintiffs with costs, a decision which will no doubt cause considerable sensation in Manchester, and will, it is to be hoped, have the effect of causing it to amend its commercial ways. Manchester, in fact, seems to be altogether too imaginative. Ordinary people have always been under the impression that the chief qualifications of men of business are a plodding adherence to facts and a carefulness almost amounting to punctiliousness not to deviate from them at least in documents of so formal a character as invoices. But in Manchester hands such prosaic papers call forth powers of imagination which would grace a DEFOE, a DICKENS or a THACKERAY. Mere facts are too commonplace for mercantile genius of this order, and except for purposes of symmetry, multiplications and additions have scarcely any interest, and have no connection with the things themselves to which they are applied. Even dates shift about in a mysterious manner when discounts have to be calculated, and an invoice finished by a skilled Manchester clerk has so slight a connection with actual prices paid that it seems almost superfluous to make them out at all, while the modest charge of commission is evidently inserted upon purely artistic and æsthetic grounds, though this little finishing touch may have an important and somewhat unfortunate bearing upon the liability of the agent. But, in all seriousness, it is a matter of congratulation that a stop has been put (as no doubt will be the case) by this decision to practices which have been the ruin of many houses both in India and China; and now that the precedent has been established it is by no means improbable that other firms who have for years been subjected to fraudulent overcharges may bring actions for their recovery. However this may be, the Manchester firm that will continue these practices in face of the decision just given will, indeed, be a bold one. The principle enunciated, it may be worthy of remark, in conclusion, is identical with that upon which the decision in the case of DE BUSSCHE v. ALT was based, and the two decisions taken together ought to form a warning that neither time, distance, nor technicalities can now be relied upon to relieve from liability, anyone who, acting as an agent, avails himself of the confidence thus imposed in him to make a profit out of his principal.

THE Thirty-seventh Annual Report of the P. and O. Company, to be presented to the meeting to be held on Tuesday next, Dec. 4, has been issued. It is very full and explanatory at the present juncture of the Company's affairs, in placing which before the shareholders in so clear a form the directors have ably performed their duty. The report states that the Company's receipts for the years 1875 and 1876 showed a joint diminution of £140,000 as compared with 1874, but a recovery is noted to the extent of nearly £100,000 during the present year. It also alludes to the decision of the Government, as announced some time back, to terminate the present mail contract in February 1880, and to invite tenders for the postal service. An element in the acceptance of such tenders as may be made should no doubt be the tried reliability of the P. and O. Company, who have carried the mails for forty years past, with signal efficiency, and their possessing resources for the purpose unequalled by any other Company. We trust that the POSTMASTER-GENERAL will see the wisdom of avoiding any experiments.

ON the 26th ult. the Chinese Minister in Berlin, H.E. LIU TA JEN, had an audience with the Emperor of GERMANY, at the Imperial Palace in Berlin, for the purpose of delivering into the hands of the EMPEROR his credentials as Minister to the German Court. In addressing his Majesty the Minister extolled the friendly relations which have existed without interruption between China and Germany, and, in reply, the EMPEROR said that he reciprocated the friendly feelings which China had towards Germany, and at the same time his Majesty welcomed the newly-accredited Chinese Minister on his arrival at the capital. After some friendly questions of a less formal character the audience terminated.

THE daily papers have at last commenced to discuss the Chefoo Convention and Sir THOMAS WADE'S Memorandum. The Times gives a careful résumé of the first portion, and impliedly promises a second instalment; the Daily News backs up the memorial which has been sent in in favour of the ratification of the Convention, and the Echo "follows on the same side" with an inflated anti-opium article. A well-penned letter, evidently from some one thoroughly conversant with the subject, appears in The Times, replying to the arguments which have been advanced in the memorial urging the ratification. The substance of these notices we give in another column.

A CORRESPONDENT, who writes over the signature of "Old Hong Kong," and whose letter we publish in another column, is evidently well informed upon matters in that place. He expresses his opinion that gambling is still largely carried on in the Colony, notwithstanding the measures by which it is commonly supposed Sir RICHARD MACDONNELL succeeded in putting it down. If our correspondent's views are correct the subject ought certainly to be inquired into.

IN the appeal case of SWIRE and Others v. FRANCIS, which it will be recollected arose out of the defalcations of a Mr. W. H. SHAW, and attracted some attention in Shanghai, judgment has been delivered by the Privy Council in favour of the appellants, the Court holding that the respondents (R. FRANCIS and Co.) were responsible for the misappropriations of SHAW, who acted as their agent, and within the scope of his authority.

WITH reference to the notice which appeared in the Shanghai papers concerning Sir THOMAS WADE'S return to China, we understand upon reliable authority that no definite time has as yet been fixed.

OPIUM v. BRAINS.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—I notice that a recent lecturer on the Opium question lays great stress on the idea that opium-smoking tends to weaken the Chinese intellect. For my own part I can hardly think this is the case, considering the manner in which we unlucky merchants are invariably out-witted by opium-smoking dealers at the ports and our able, astute and talented ministers by opium-smoking Mandarins at Peking. The Chinese at all events seem to have had their wits quite as much about them as Sir Thomas Wade in regard to the Chefoo Convention.—Yours faithfully, R.

GAMBLING IN HONG KONG.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—I observe by the accounts from Hong Kong by last mail that the same fussy action of the police with reference to gambling which I can well recollect when I was a resident in the model colony is again taking place. Trumpery houses are being discovered; dealers in Wei-Sing tickets hauled up, and coolies in Taipingshan ruthlessly arrested for petty gambling in the streets, as though all this were a tithe of the gambling steadily proceeding in the Colony, and which no power upon earth in my opinion could ever suppress. I am firmly persuaded that as much gambling is going on now as was ever the case when, under Sir Richard MacDonnell, gambling was openly licensed. I do not mean to approve of the licensing system, and would much prefer that we had left the gambling, except in flagrant instances, alone altogether. But after the houses had thoroughly taken root under Sir Richard MacDonnell's pet sections in the Good Order and Cleanliness Ordinance (through which the whole system of licensing gambling-houses was introduced) it is absurd to believe those houses were put down by the measures which were adopted. A more ridiculous farce was never put through. Sir Richard, having received instructions from the Home Government to put down gambling, decided that the matter was too delicate a one to be touched by the police, except in quite minor cases, and accordingly policemen were (as a first step to putting down gambling) strictly prohibited from going into a gambling-house, this duty being specially delegated to Chinese runners connected with the Department of the Registrar-General, who (in common with the Captain Superintendent of Police) received an addition of £100 a year to his salary for looking after the runners who looked after the gamblers. These preliminaries being arranged, on a given day appeared a placard, which was, I remember seeing, perused by Chinese of the more polite stamp with a quiet incredulous smile, and by the coarser sort with a grin from ear to ear, setting forth that the gambling-houses were all to be shut up; but that it was no use for Chinamen to bribe the police, as they were not to go to the houses, and, in fact, would be punished if they did, and that the Registrar-General and Captain Superintendent of Police would alone take steps to put the gambling down. What those steps have been nobody knows. Some feeble reports have, I believe, occasionally been made to the two gentlemen who are deputed to watch over this particular phase of native morals; but to imagine that the Chinese runners employed would not be particularly careful to come to an understanding with all the more important gambling-houses, or that any material change has really been worked in the matter, is assuredly to know very little of Chinese detectives. Is it not simply ridiculous to imagine that Chinese runners would not be bribed by the gambling-house keepers, who were considered so likely to offer bribes that no European constable was allowed to come near them? Yet this is the broken reed upon which we have been leaning ever since Sir Richard MacDonnell's placard appeared. I have been told by a person well able to obtain information on the subject, that the gambling went on just as before; and for the reasons above stated, no less than the special means of information which my informant had, I am quite prepared to believe it. Is it not therefore a farce to be bringing up wretched coolies for gambling for the smallest sums (for less than the stakes commonly hazarded at pitch and toss by gutter boys here), while the rich people are able to gamble away to their heart's content in the old style, disturbed only by the specially trusted runners of the Registrar-General and the Captain Superintendent of Police?—Yours faithfully,

London, Nov. 27, 1877. OLD HONG KONG.

THE CHINESE MINISTER AT OXFORD.

On the 28th ult. the Chinese Minister, accompanied by Dr. Macartney and suite, paid a visit to Oxford. His Excellency was received at the station by the Rev. Dr. Legge, the Professor of Chinese. Having proceeded to the Randolph Hotel, they went on very shortly after to the Bodleian Library, over which they were conducted by the Librarian, the Rev. Mr. Cox. No room in the institution seemed to impress the Ambassador so much as that containing the maps of the Trigonometrical Survey. From the Bodleian the party went to New College, where his Excellency was courteously received by the Vice-Chancellor, and a large party had been invited to meet him at luncheon in the hall. Luncheon over, all proceeded to the Sheldonian Theatre, and heard a lecture from Dr. Legge, on the last four maxims of the Kiang-hai Sacred Edict. He had discussed the previous portion during the last term, and said he was glad to bring his exhibition of the Edict to a close in the presence of his Excellency Kuo Sung-tao, the first Imperially-commissioned Ambassador to represent China at a foreign Court. It was not much he would be able to understand of their university and colleges on one flying visit, but they hoped he would come again, and by-and-by be able to write some distinct account of the highest educational system of Great Britain to his friends in Peking, and assure them that the universities of England would more than bear a comparison with their own Han-lin-Yuan. After the lecture the Vice-Chancellor and the Professor of Chinese drove with the Ambassador and Dr. Macartney to the Colleges of Magdalen, All Souls, and Christ Church. On Thursday his Excellency was present at the conferring of degrees in congregation, and visited two of the schools, where examinations were going on. The Vice-Chancellor then rode with him to see the Clarendon Press and the University Museum, where he was met by Professors Smith, Acland, Rolliston, Prestwich, and Westwood. The last institution he visited was the University Observatory, over which he was shown by Professor Pritchard. A good view was obtained through the great telescope of Venus, and he gave a shout of delight when he caught sight of the planet, and cried out that "it was like a half moon." At four o'clock he returned to London, expressing great delight with his visit, and a deep sense of the courtesy with which he had been received by the Vice-Chancellor and others.

THE CHEFOO CONVENTION.

The following résumé of the general bearing of the Chefoo Convention is given in The Times. It would appear from the concluding sentence that the remaining portion will be published shortly :—

It has been already stated in these columns that our visitor, Kuo Sung-tao, the Chinese Envoy who came here with a letter to the Queen expressing the regret of his Imperial master for the murder of Mr. Margary and the attack on Col. Browne's party, has now received letters accrediting him Envoy in permanence from the Emperor of China to the Court of St. James's. The first Minister ever authorised by the Chinese Government to remain as its permanent diplomatic representative in any foreign capital has accordingly commenced his residence among us.

The critical period in our relations with China which began with the death of Mr. Margary, a most promising member of the British Civil Service, would thus seem definitively closed; and the moment is opportune for a review of the situation and the circumstances which led to it. Ample materials for this purpose are afforded by Sir Thomas Wade's last despatch, written since his arrival in England, and published in part by the Foreign-office. It is a careful summary, by the one Englishman who has most thoroughly studied the singular intricacies of Chinese policy, of events in which he himself took a principal part. The section of the report which relates to commercial affairs may be assumed to be still before the Government of India. At all events, it has not yet been published. Its general drift is, however, to be inferred from the commercial portion of the agreement signed at Chefoo on Sept. 13, 1876, by Sir Thomas Wade, and Li, the Senior Grand Secretary of the Empire, who is also Governor-General, or Viceroy, of the metropolitan province. Earlier reports from our Minister also throw much light upon the subject. It will be observed that the true authors of Mr. Margary's fate have never been brought to justice. The Chinese Government offered victims—savages to be beheaded, and mandarins to be degraded. Sir Thomas Wade justly rejoined that the punishment of persons of whose innocence he was convinced would be considered in England an aggravation of the offence of the Chinese Government, and the punishment of the really guilty appearing all but hopeless, he declined the mock satisfaction of a vicarious atonement.

As to what he did accept in the way of reparation as to his decision to close the case on the condition that the Chinese Government agreed to certain terms which appeared to him to guarantee improvement of the relations of China with us, and as to the true value of the conditions he demanded, we have not yet gained the knowledge resulting from actual experience which is necessary to support a conclusive and definite opinion. The following points, however, appear beyond dispute. The closing of the Yunnan case coincides with a new and almost revolutionary acknowledgment of the relations of China to the Western Powers. Since the indignation which Mr. Margary's murder excited in Europe came to strengthen the hands of Sir Thomas Wade, proclamstions have been posted throughout the Empire, which inform the inland Provinces of facts long jealously concealed from them as to the privileges and respect which Western barbarians are entitled to claim and able to command. An indemnity, purposely restricted in amount, has been paid to the family of Mr. Margary and to the British Government. A settlement is arrived at of certain questions relating to trade, administration of justice, and diplomatic intercourse. The whole of this agreement, indeed, is subject to the approval of our Government, and their confirmation is more or less dependent upon the assent of other Powers in treaty relations with China. That the consideration of these Powers should be invited was one of the conditions on which Sir Thomas Wade agreed to report the Yunnan case as closed. We cannot doubt that however much there may remain for us to effect, so much as has been done will be found to conduce to the improvement of our relations with China.

Our intercourse with that singular Empire, the seat of a civilisation which has grown up independently of our own, and is still full of surprises for us, began in Queen Elizabeth's time. Later, the East India Company established itself at Canton. In 1834 a Superintendency of Trade, with Lord Napier as its chief, superseded the Company. Lord Napier's position might have been regarded by us as diplomatic; in the eyes of the Chinese he was but a chief of the barbarians who came humbly to their shores to purchase tea, silk, and rhubarb. Up to the year 1842 foreign trade other than contraband was restricted to the one port of Canton. After the war of 1839 and 1842 Sir Henry Pottinger's Treaty threw open the five ports. Lord Elgin's treaty, ratified in 1860 at the end of a war, opened ten more ports. Since the signature of the Chefoo Convention, which has already been acted upon in China, four more ports, making nineteen in all, have been opened to the foreign merchant, for purposes of trade or residence; and foreign steamers are, in virtue of the same Convention, permitted to touch at six points on the Great River for the purpose of landing and shipping passengers and goods. The Ministers of five or six nations reside at Peking, and the right to residence there is secured to representatives of all Treaty Powers. The exports are worth £28,000,000 annually, and the imports are valued at £27,000,000. England carries on over 70 per cent. of the whole international commerce, and, aided by an efficient foreign staff, the Chinese Government derives from the Customs on foreign trade £4,000,000 annually, no insignificant contribution to an exchequer which is but slowly recovering from the effects of twenty years' disorder.

All this commercial intercourse, so beneficial to her in a pecuniary sense, has been thrust upon China. To hold relations with the foreigner is in defiance of the moral convictions of its educated men, not merely of its mandarins, but of a large proportion of the millions who are trained in the history and philosophy of their country. Nothing has been so far obtained in China by what we term pacific negotiation. As the Chefoo Convention was conceded out of fear that if the decision were left to the British Government a far heavier penalty might be extorted by its arms, so the Treaty which marks the preceding epoch of foreign intrusion into China was exacted by Lord Elgin at the close of four years of misunderstanding and hostilities, in which were included two wars, the partial occupation of Peking, and the destruction of the Summer Palace in special retribution for an act of the gravest treachery. Lord Elgin's Treaty of Tientsin, signed in 1858 and ratified in 1860, is the basis of the existing political arrangements.

By the ninth article of that Treaty foreigners are free to travel through China with passports; and in pursuance of this right, as well as in accordance with the memorials of several British Chambers of Commerce, it was resolved in 1874 by the Governor-General of India in Council that a mission headed by Colonel Browne should travel from Burmah by the overland route through Yunnan into Western China for the purpose of exploring the country and observing its capacities for trade. Sir Thomas Wade obtained passports for four Englishmen, and sent Mr. Margary to meet Colonel Browne. Mr. Ney Elias and Dr. John Anderson accompanied Colonel Browne, and the mission was afterwards joined by Mr. Allen, a consular interpreter who had been sent round by sea, in case Mr. Margary should not reach Burmah before its departure. Mr. Margary, provided with a passport, passed from east to west through China by a somewhat shorter route than that which Mr. Grosvenor took the following year, and by the road which Colonel Browne's mission would nearly have followed on its way into China. Mr. Margary, meeting with great civility on the journey, made his way safely to Bhamo, in independent Burmah. Here he joined Colonel Browne's party, and they all set out together for the east. They left Bhamo on Feb. 6th, 1875; and, on the 18th, travelling very slowly, came to the last Burmese guard house on the western bank of the Nam-hpong, which separatest China from Burmah. Here a Burmese met them, and told Colonel Browne that all was right at Manwyne, the frontier town of Chinese territory. To his own countrymen, however, he said that Li-hsieh-t'ai had joined with a certain chief to prevent the entrance of the foreign mission into China. This Li held rank in the Chinese service corresponding to a captaincy or majority, and was charged with the duty of keeping order on the frontier. He is half Chinese, half Burmese by birth, and had done good service to the Empire in putting down the Panthay rebellion. Mr. Margary had met Li-hsieh-t'ai on his way to the west, and had been received by him with the greatest courtesy. He ridiculed the idea of Li's hostility. As Mr. Margary knew the Chinese officials from his office of interpreter, it was arranged that he should go forward and make inquiries. He started early on Feb. 19, and expected to reach Manwyne, the same night. From Tsarai, a mountain village six hours' journey from the starting-point, and about six miles short of Manwyne, he wrote in good spirits that the road was reported clear, and that the people were very civil. He made his way to Manwyne, and was murdered there next day by an armed force under orders from Momein, the capital of the sub-prefecture. The scene of the crime was afterwards pointed out to Mr. Grosvenor and the officers of his escort. I is a shady spot near the river and the hot springs, called "under the banyan trees." Mr. Margary was bathing, or about to bathe there when he was assassinated. Five of his Chinese servants were also murdered. The sixth, a relative of Li-hsieh-t'ai, escaped. These appear to be the facts of the case. They depend upon the statements of several independent witnesses, chiefly, but not entirely, Burmese. The story is not admitted by the Chinese, but they admit facts which point to the correctness of its main features, and the rival version which the Chinese Government had prepared was found, on investigation on the spot, to be full of inconsistencies.

Colonel Browne, after receiving on the 20th Mr. Margary's letter from Tsarai, pushed on to within a day's easy journey of Manwyne. The debatable land between China and Burmah is occupied by Kachyen chiefs, who levy black mail on travellers. Their fees had been duly paid, but when, on the 21st, Colonel Browne wished to continue his journey, these men made difficulties about the baggage. After waiting some hours, Colonel Browne, with his English companions, and fifteen Sikh policemen who acted as guard, went on as far as Tsarai, whence they saw the white cliffs near Manwyne. Colonel Browne had thoughts of proceeding at once to the town, the scene of Mr. Margary's murder. But the manner of the chief of Tsarai awakened his suspicions. He went back to camp resolved to wait for the morrow's news. In the morning he found himself all but surrounded by a large force of armed Chinese. A friendly chief of the debatable land arrived with the intelligence of Margary's murder at or near Manwyne, and said that 4,000 men had been assembled by the Chinese officials at Momein to annihilate the English mission. The advance guard, which was now threatening the camp, consisted, according to this mountaineer, of 800 men. Immediately after Colonel Browne had received his communication the Chinese began to fire. The fifteen Sikhs, however, made a brave resistance, and fortunately they were armed with guns the range of which astounded the Chinese. The Burmese escort, about 130 in number, gave their "moral support" to the English by shouting, beating gongs, and firing their muskets or matchlocks in the air. At a critical moment Colonel Browne offered the chieftain who had informed him of Margary's fate a lakh of rupees to burn the jungle through which the main body of the Chinese were advancing. The wood was successfully fired, the Chinese rushed out in confusion, and finally retreated, leaving some dead men in the jungle. Colonel Browne thereupon made the best of his way towards Burmah, and was not again attacked. Before leaving the field of battle one of the savages cut off and brought to the English leader the head of a Chinaman whom he had found killed. A chieftain thereupon remarked, "You see it is the big Chinese, and not Shans or Kachyens, who are opposing you."

The circumstances of this double outrage proved that it was committed by premeditation, and many facts conspired with the experience of previous events to lead to the inference that it was premeditated by high authorities. When Sir Thomas Wade applied to the Chinese Foreign-office for Colonel Browne's passports in 1874 he had been somewhat surprised that, except a half-jocular observation that Yunnan was better reached from the east than the west, and a passing reference to its recently disturbed condition, nothing like opposition was raised on behalf of the Chinese. Mr. Margary found the people at every point save one remarkably civil. The one exception was ascribed to anti-missionary feeling. As he approached the frontier, whether in the country recently recovered from the Mohammedan rebels or westward of it, he saw nothing to alarm him. A tribute mission from Burmah was passing upward a short distance to his left as he descended from the Chinese district capital Momein. Such a mission would have been easily pounced upon by banditti or by the wild tribes of the border had the Chinese Government been unable to protect it. Messengers came and went between Mr. Margary and the Government of India's agency at Bhamo, in Independent Burmah, without hindrance. After the news of Mr. Margary's murder and the repulse of the rest of Colonel Browne's peaceful mission had come by telegraph to Shanghai and so to Peking, a short correspondence ensued in which the Chinese Foreign Minister, the Prince of Kung, made a recriminating allusion to the recent acquittal of a British subject who had been tried for homicide. It was not till seven days had elapsed that Chinese officials came to inform Sir T. Wade that next day the matter would be laid before the Throne. Sir T. Wade demanded, among other things, that his delegates should be present at the investigation which was to be held in Yunnan. But this reasonable proposal was strongly objected to, and it was only when threatened to withdraw the Legation that passports for Mr. Grosvenor and his party were granted. Great delay ultimately ensued in commencing the inquiry, and Sir Thomas Wade several times reported that he thought he was being trifled with. The Prince of Kung occupied time in complaining of the bearing of the British Envoy and requiring direct communication from his superior in England. Lord Derby's reply was a despatch to our Minister expressing firm support and approval of his proceedings. Li-hsieh-tai, who was early incriminated, was sent on a complimentary mission to Burmah. Meanwhile the telegraphic information of the murder was rendered doubly significant by the arrival of Colonel Browne at Shanghai with fuller reports. It then became established that a month before the expedition advanced from Bhamo a Chinese dealer had brought information from Momein to Bhama that a large body of troops was in readiness to oppose its entrance into China; that Colonel Browne had been met as he moved forward by rumours that he would be attacked; that the same rumours were current in Mandalay, the capital of Burmah, six days before the attack was made ; that on the 21st, the day before the attack, Colonel Browne had observed Chinese reconnoitring his position ; that the Chinese who made the onslaught shouted friendly warnings to his Burmese escort while specially directing their efforts to the destruction of the other foreigners. Not the least remarkable incident was this, that immediately after the attack some Burmese attached to Colonel Browne's party received in his presence two letters from other Burmese, petty officials acting as the King of Burmah's cotton agents at Manwyne, to the effect that Mr. Margary had been killed by Chinese ; that subordinates of the Momein authorities had arrived from Momein ; and that a large body of troops were surrounding Colonel Browne preparatory to setting upon him. The second of these letters stated that the warning it conveyed was forwarded by direction of three Chinese sent to Manwyne by the Chinese authority at Momein. The Burmese were exhorted in these letters to separate themselves from the English.

Mr. Ney Elias had taken another route, intending to join Colonel Browne later on. He was stopped on the way by Li-hsieh-t'ai and by the chief of a reclaimed tribe, who stoutly declared that, passport or no passport, he should not enter China by that road. He had, accordingly, to turn back.

The Commissioners afterwards appointed by the Chinese Government to inquire into the Yunnan outrage made a remarkable admission. They stated in a memorial to the Emperor that, according to the evidence of Li-hsieh-t'ai, the notables of Momein having heard that a large foreign force was to enter their country, had therefore called out their trainbands for the protection of their persons and property. According to the memorial, the Sub-Prefect, Wu, affirmed that he knew nothing of this, but Sir T. Wade appears to have had evidence that the committee-room of the notables who issued orders for the armed opposition to the travellers was actually in the office of the Sub-Prefect, who could hardly, therefore, have been ignorant of the proceedings. The papers forwarded by Mr. Grosvenor from Yunnan leave no doubt that a meeting of notables was held, and that they made a requisition to Li-hsieh-t'ai to act as their executive officer. Li appears from the correspondence to have by no means taken the initiative, but to have obeyed the orders of this Council or Committee with a full sense of the seriousness of the risk. The Chinese Commissioners themselves state in their official memorial that Li-hsieh-t'ai had forwarded to the Acting Governor-General of Yunnan, Ts'ên Yü-ying (but after the attack), two letters addressed him by the notables of Momein, and had added on his own account that he was actively preparing for the defence of the frontier. Ts'en replied that he was to keep the people quiet.

Among the papers forwarded by Mr. Grosvenor from Yunnan were the depositions of Wu, Sub-Prefect of Momein. In these he mentions the receipt on Dec. 21, 1874, of a despatch of instructions from the Government of the Province upon the subject of Mr. Margary's errand. These instructions open with the precise words with which the notables commence their first letter to Li-hsieh-t'ai. The purport of the letter which begins with this remarkable coincidence is as follows :—The notables write that they have just learnt that the British Government is despatching three Commissioners from Burmah into Yunnan, and that Mr. Margary has been sent from Peking to meet them. Orders have been received from the authorities that Mr. Margary is to be safely escorted on his way. But foreign intercourse is objectionable, as bringing with it annexation of territory, establishment of religious missions, and trade. The people of Momein, who had fought the rebels for nearly twenty years, would now further prove their loyalty by excluding the foreigners. Mr. Margary should be sent out of the country in safety, but when he returned mobs should assemble and hem him in tumultuously. He should be exhorted with righteous argument, and intimidated by hints of danger.

The letters which contained these instructions were put forward by the Chinese Government as authentic, and it is noticeable that they represent Chinese officials deliberately proposing to inspire popular excitement against foreigners. Sir Thomas Wade traces the source of inspiration to a higher point than the local notables of Momein. He is convinced that whatever happened was done, if not by the direct order, at least with the approval of the central Government. This conclusion, he argues, is justified not only by the circumstantial evidence collected in the Yunnan case, but by the conduct of the Chinese Government in other cases within his experience. Momein is the capital of a sub-prefecture of the province of Yunnan. The Governor of the province of Yunnan, Ts'en-Yu-ying, was one of the most ruthlessly severe officials who ever trampled out a rebellion. At Tali, by his orders, 50,000 of the Panthays, men, women, and children, were massacred. Mere cruelty in suppressing a revolt is no reproach in China. When Yeh in 1855 beheaded 70,000 persons in Canton, many of whom had been surrendered by their own relatives, the decapitation of 500 prisoners a day seemed to shock no one. Ts'en, however, was accused of massacring many who were not guilty of rebellion, and he was actually in danger of impeachment for his merciless severity. Such a man was not to be trifled with. His subordinates trembled at his word. He was in possession of letters from the Chinese Central Government enjoining the protection of Mr. Margary. The Sub-Prefect Wu had knowledge of these instructions. It is incredible, says our Minister, that the Sub-Prefect should have ventured on a course at variance with the Governor's instructions unless he had authority. The Governor must have received and passed on separate and secret instructions. Such is the inference of our Minister. Orders in so many words to drive Colonel Browne back vi et armis would not have been given by the Central Government. In a despatch from Shanghai, written in August, 1876, Sir Thomas Wade indicated the mode of procedure likely in such a case to have been adopted :—

"The utmost length that the Central Government would have gone would have been to issue an Imperial decree reminding the Governor that this mission from India was without precedent ; that, as Governor of a frontier province, it behoved him to see that the Empire did not suffer, yet always so that the Government should not be embroiled with foreign nations. State papers that have from time to time fallen into my hands are my authority for the assumption that, if it moved at all, the Central Government would have moved by these means. What I advance is, no doubt, hypothesis, but I cannot ignore the past."

The Governor-General of Yunnan, Ts'en Yu-ying, who, independently of the inferences here suggested, was by his official position responsible for any grave crime, the scene of which was within his provincial jurisdiction, was never brought to trial. On the contrary, it is amazing to find that he was one of the three Commissioners appointed to investigate the outrage. It will not surprise anyone after this to learn that the Court contented itself with censuring and degrading minor officials, and with condemning to death eleven unfortunate savages, kidnapped in the debatable land, who were feigned to have murdered Mr. Margary for the sake of plunder. The Prince of Kung, the Chief of the Chinese Foreign-office, strove hard to evade the production of the Governor Ts'en at Peking. Note after note demanding his presence there was left unanswered, and Sir Thomas Wade quitted Peking without a definite reply on this subject, and without any assurance on which he could rely that the conditions which he was prepared to accept in lieu of judicial satisfaction would be fulfilled. His abrupt departure from Peking on June 14 alarmed the Chinese Government. The Grand Secretary, Li Hung-chang, was invested with special powers to treat with him, and in due time the two Ministers met at Chefoo. Sir T. Wade broke ground by requiring either the production of the Governor Ts'ên Yü-ying or the reasons why he should not be produced. The Prince of Kung did at last give his reason. In the absence of tangible evidence against him, Ts'ên could not be summoned. But this evidence Sir T. Wade declares that he was unable to give until all the parties for whose production he had pressed should be in Peking. After some further pourparlers he determined therefore to waive his demand for the trial of Ts'ên. On the other hand, he insisted on the concessions in general practice for the future embodied in the Chefoo Convention. Of course, he stipulated that the miserable savages whom it was proposed to murder judicially should not be put to death ; and in the proclamation approved by Sir T. Wade, which was to be posted throughout the Empire, telling the story of the Yunnan outrage, it was expressly stated that the evidence against the accused was insufficient, and that their punishment was therefore declined, the English Government preferring security for the future to vengeance for the past.

Before the Margary outrage the necessity for a readjustment of our diplomatic and commercial relations with the Chinese Empire had become painfully apparent. The domestic troubles of China and the long minority of her Sovereign had prolonged the period of forbearance. A second Regency of the two Empresses, destined probably to be a long one like the first, began in January, 1875, when an infant Emperor was chosen. Our Minister had given special notice of his intention to require from the Chinese Government such security for improvement as he might be able to report as satisfactory; but being temporarily occupied in conferences relating to the emigration of Chinese to Cuba he had taken no further step when the telegraph brought the intelligence of the assassination of Mr. Margary. Thus it came to pass that the exaction of guarantees for improved diplomatic and commercial relations was attached to his demands for reparation for an act of treachery and violence. The Chefoo Convention, the document which embodies the agreement come to as to these three objects, is naturally divided under three heads — (1) settlement of the Yunnan case ; (2) official intercourse ; (3) trade. A special article relates to the coming Mission to Tibet. We have already published the text of this Convention. The commentary on it in Sir T. Wade's report is full of interest. He utterly repudiates the inference, drawn from the fact that it aims also at other objects, that vengeance upon Mr. Margary's murderers had been bartered for blood money in the shape of commercial advantages. From the beginning he had fought for an improvement in our relations on three grounds— first, that we had specific matters of complaint ; secondly, that before the Yunnan outrage he had given notice to the Chinese Government that an amelioration was required ; thirdly, that the Yunnan atrocity was but a consequence of a policy of which the restrictions embarrassing foreign intercourse in trade or otherwise were both a cause and a symptom. More detailed observations on the subject must be postponed.

The Daily News contains an article sustaining in general terms the arguments of the memorialists who have addressed Lord Derby in favour of the ratification of the Convention. The writer concludes as follows :—

We have studiously abstained from discussing other points which have been raised by a few of the merchants. We readily believe that the Chefoo Convention admits of being greatly improved. The same may be said of most commercial treaties. They are apt to contain elements which perhaps represent the fears or prejudices rather than the true interests of the nations which enter into them. The question is not whether the Chefoo Convention is free from blemishes, or whether it would not be possible to supplement it with new clauses calculated to promote free commercial intercourse ; but whether, having regard to the fact that we are the responsible authors of the Treaty, and gave the Chinese Government no alternative but to accept it, we are not under a grave moral obligation to carry out its provisions. With what justice or propriety can we reopen a negotiation which Sir T. Wade more than a year ago declared to be closed ? It is very unfortunate that the most important part of Sir T. Wade's Report, the section on trade, has been omitted from the Blue-book laid before Parliament, the more so because there can be little doubt that its publication would greatly strengthen the case of those who support the Convention. Still, although we have not the advantage of a full knowledge of the grounds upon which the British Plenipotentiary has justified the new commercial regulations, we venture to think that public policy demands that the ratification of his agreement should no longer be withheld.

The Echo plunges medias in res with a strong anti-opium article, containing the usual arguments adopted on that side of the question. It says :—

Those who would refuse to ratify the Chefoo Convention—an international agreement, as we have said, with, for once, a grain of morality in it—look wistfully back at the grand smuggling days of 1840, when cargoes of British-grown opium were surreptitiously sold to Chinese dealers, and conveyed as contraband up the rivers, in defiance of the Government vessels, and with the direct connivance of the Indian Executive. The Chinese, it is true, adopted a strong measure when they prohibited its introduction altogether ; but they, no less than the English, had a revenue to lose, and they chose to sacrifice it rather than abet the monstrous traffic which was carried on. It is at a return to this system that the opponents of the Chefoo Convention are secretly aiming, though it may be hoped that public opinion at home, when sufficiently enlightened upon the matter, will be too strong for them. We have already more than enough to answer for in connection with this unhallowed trade. At all events, let us trust that no more blood will be spent in forcing it again, under special privileges, upon the people or Government of China. It may be impossible to extirpate the practice, even supposing the Chinese Government to be entirely sincere ; nor can we, perhaps, expect the Indian Government to give up at once an important branch of revenue, or the Indian merchants a most lucrative trade—lucrative, even though it stops short at the sea coast, and is not allowed to be carried on, except by native dealers, in the interior. Not even China herself contemplates at the present day a measure of total prohibition. What, however, if she did? Would the armed policy of 1842 and 1858, which imposed upon her the Treaties of Nanking and Tientsin, be once more reverted to for the sake of insisting that opium shall continue to corrupt and abuse her people? There are prohibitory clauses in nearly every tariff of Europe, and if reference be made to the Treaties named on the ground that the two conventions negotiated since the date of their several signatures have not been ratified, the movement now going on—a humane and a Christian movement—is precisely intended to procure that ratification. Whatever happens, however, may we dare to hope that the English nation will never again, under any conceivable circumstances, employ its army and navy to fight the battles of the opium-dealers?

A letter signed "Ki-tai" has been published in The Times, in which an answer is made to the memorial in favour of the ratification of the Convention. The writer commences as follows :—

Oriental finance in general is not the most promising field for amateur experiment, and the fiscal system of China in particular has puzzled all who have ever tried to master it. But the subject presents no difficulties whatever to the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Duke of Westminster, Cardinal Manning, Mr. Spurgeon, the two Messrs. Morley, a group of "Professors," Ritualists, and Quakers, missionaries and Comtists, with some waifs and strays of the mercantile community, who have lately memorialised the Government on the subject of the Chefoo Convention. If these distinguished persons would try the experiment of united action in some simple matter within the sphere of their own observation, such as the endowment of a bishopric or the reform of a school, they might perhaps be led to suspect that their unanimity on a question which concerns the social life of a singularly little-understood people on the other side of the globe must be the result of inspiration rather than of knowledge.

The letter then proceeds to urge that no substantial reparation has been made for the Margary outrage, and that there would be no difficulty now in placing the Chinese in statu quo ante, as the money paid as compensation could be returned and the new ports, if need be, closed. He goes on to say that in the eyes of the memorialists, the Convention resolves itself into one clause, that relating to opium ; and states that the memorialists demand that the Chinese Government shall not only be permitted to place, but assisted in placing a protective duty on imported opium, and that the effect of a protective duty is just the same on opium as on any other commodity ; it compels the consumer to pay a high price for an inferior article, so that the already extensive cultivation of the poppy in China will be further stimulated by the increased price—a doubtful benefit to the Chinese people, who, whatever their physiological relations to opium, undoubtedly spend too much of their earnings on the narcotic. He concludes as follows :—

But the operation of the opium clause in the Convention is more far-reaching than some of the memorialists are probably aware. It is tolerably well known that the revenue system of China is wholly barbarous, the essential feature of it being the power of irresponsible taxation exercised by the officials all over the empire. Officers with practically no pay are put over populous districts to make all they can out of their opportunities. Their career is watched with a kindly interest by their superiors, even by those in the highest places, who look eventually to share their good fortune. It is this canker which reduces the richest country in the world to the condition of the very poorest for all effective purposes. The Opium Clause in the Convention will embalm this very rottenness of Chinese finance, and place it more than ever beyond the hope of remedy until the yoke of the present Tartar Government is thrown off by an uprising of the people. The mandarins have been taxing opium at their pleasure all along, but the new agreement stipulates that the British Government shall henceforth supply the machinery for collecting by Chinese from Chinese an unlimited amount of duty, the local authorities being left to decide, "according to the circumstances of each," what the amount shall be. For the British Government to intermeddle between the Chinese-taxgatherers and the Chinese tax-payers, to take the side of the oppressor, and to undertake an obligation to which no limit is assigned, would be attended with inconveniences of the gravest kind. Yet it is to force on this unnatural state of things, and no other, that the fussy philanthropy of England has been set in motion.

The signataries of the memorial of course thought that they were somehow or other striking a blow against opium-smoking, because the memorial was fathered by a society which has been got up, according to a speaker at Sir E. Fry's lecture, "to put an end to opium-smoking in China." But in truth the consumption of opium in China can only be associated with the ratification of the Chefoo Convention by a process of reasoning suited to that peculiar cerebral condition which refuses to see through a straight tube, but requires it to be bent. It is this :—At present Indian imported and Chinese grown opium compete in the Chinese markets on fairly equal terms. The Chinese Government desire to stop the growth and the use of opium in their country. The first step in this operation is to levy protective, to be followed by prohibitive, duties on imported opium, whereby an enormous stimulus will be given to the cultivation of the indigenous plant. The Chinese Government has never been able to prevent the cultivation of the poppy ; but when the trade in foreign opium has been killed, and the area of poppy cultivation in China has vastly increased, then, it is contended, it will be quite easy for the Government to step forth and crush the growth and the use of opium with one blow. This is the kind of pabulum which is thought good enough for the persons who have undertaken no less a task than that of reforming the domestic and social habits of the oldest and most populous nation in the world.

THE BRADFORD CHAMBER ON THE CHEFOO CONVENTION.

Bradford Chamber of Commerce, Nov. 23, 1877.

My Lord,—The Convention signed on Sept. 13, 1876, at Chefoo, by Her Majesty's Representative and the Chinese Plenipotentiary not having been officially communicated to the Chambers of Commerce, the Council did not hitherto consider themselves called upon to express an opinion on a document which if it should be ratified would have an important bearing upon the trade of this district.

Having, however, been informed that your Lordship has been urged by parties, many of whom are not immediately interested in trade, to ratify the Chefoo Convention as it stands, this Council consider it their duty to state their reasons for desiring a careful reconsideration of several parts of the Third Section before Her Majesty's Government sanction the said Convention.

It is with peculiar satisfaction that they observe the agreement for opening new ports on the Yangtsze river, a measure which they ventured to recommend in a memorial of November, 1869, and they only regret that the extension of such privilege to Chung Kung is made contingent upon the place being reached by steamers which is supposed to be feasible by the removal of the existing impediments to navigation between Ichang and that metropolis of Sze Chuen, provided the Chinese Government be willing to offer facilities for the necessary works.

To make Chung Kung a port for the residence of foreigners would open out one of the largest and richest provinces of China to British trade.

This Council therefore trust that your Lordship may yet succeed in adding this city to the number of ports open to trade, and in making it a Consular district.

The main objections to the ratification of the Chefoo Convention in its present state are in the opinion of this Council the apparent contradictions in the terms of Articles 1 and 4 Section III., and the substitution of a very objectionable, because dubious, clause for the clear declaration contained in the 28th Article of the Treaty of Tientsin, which provides—

"That on payment of a single charge in discharge of all transit duties a certificate shall be issued, which shall exempt the goods from all further charges whatsoever."

If, notwithstanding this clear provision, the mandarins in some parts of the Empire have continued to levy a varying and altogether arbitrary tax known as lekin, this Council consider it important that a clause be agreed upon which shall be drawn in such definite terms that it will be impossible to leave room for equivocation or misunderstanding.

The 4th Article of Section III. of the said Convention appears to provide for that desideratum by stating "that so far as imports are concerned the nationality of the persons possessing and carrying these imports is immaterial, but in the 1st Article of the same Section words are introduced which may be interpreted to mean the contrary, and to give permission to any local magistrate to impose whatever tax he likes upon British goods the moment they have passed beyond the limits of the treaty ports, or become the property of natives.

There cannot be a doubt that such apparently contradictory terms will be frequently taken advantage of by astute Chinese officials, and that instead of facilitating trade by one uniform system of taxation a most vexatious distinction will be introduced, and disputes and difficuities, which hitherto have been too frequent, would be perpetuated.

This Council, therefore, beg to call your Lordship's attention to the necessity of altering those objectionable parts of the 1st and 4th Articles in Section III., so as to leave no doubt as to the intention of the high contracting Powers, and that it be clearly declared,

"That imported goods shall be liable to no other duty at the Treaty ports than to the regular import duty, and that the certificate of the payment of the commuted transit dues shall free them of all further inland charges, taxes, or lekin whatsoever ; and

"That the nationality of the person possessing or carrying such certified goods be immaterial."

I have the honour to be, my Lord, your obedient servant,

(Signed) JACOB BEHRENS,
President and Chairman of the Joint Tariff Committee of Yorkshire Chambers of Commerce.

The Right Hon. Earl Derby, K.G., Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

THE P. AND O. COMPANY'S REPORT.

The net profits for the year (including £3,159 brought forward from last year) amount to £134,301, which, after deducting the interim dividend of 2 per cent., admit of a further dividend of 2½ per cent., which the directors now recommend to be paid; a balance of £3,801 being carried over to next year.

Since the last report was issued, the Massilia has been sold in Yokohama, and the Nubia has found a purchaser in the London School Board. Both these vessels had become obsolete for the Company's work from having been built at a time when the conveyance of heavy cargoes was confined to sailing vessels and formed no part of the Company's business. The Tiptree, being no longer required as a coal hulk at Yokohama, has also been sold. The Hindostan, mentioned in the half-yearly report as having received new machinery and extensive alterations by Messrs. Day, Summers, and Co., has completed her first voyage to India and China successfully. A contract has been entered into with Messrs. James Howden and Co., of Glasgow, for new boilers, and at the same time new engines, for the Indus, as it is considered advisable to increase the present speed of this ship. Another contract has been made with Messrs. Caird and Co. for new boilers for the Khedive and Mirzapore.

MAIL AND GENERAL SERVICES.

The directors are happy to be able again to congratulate the proprietors on the safe navigation of the fleet, and its immunity in a remarkable degree from minor accidents. This result reflects the highest credit, not only on the Marine Department of the service, but on the Engineering Staff, whose zeal and assiduity the directors also desire to record in this report.

The mail services have been performed with remarkable punctuality, characterised at the same time by a frequent anticipation of the due dates of arrival. In connection with this subject the directors think it necessary to bring to the notice of the proprietors the fact that, in reply to a question in the House of Commons, Lord John Manners, the Postmaster-General, recently stated that notice would be given to this Company of the intention of Her Majesty's Government to terminate the present mail contract in February, 1880, and that tenders would be invited for the mail services.

At that date the Company will have completed a period of forty years during which they have been engaged in the performance of the most extensive and intricate mail services in the world. The capital of the Company was raised to its present point, and their ships were built with a view to carrying out these services, while the commercial principles which might otherwise have been imported into the Company's business at an earlier date, and to a larger extent, had to be subordinated to the fulfilment of the special work of postal communication, which was a matter of vital necessity to the development of political and commercial intercourse between Great Britain and her Eastern possessions.

As to the manner in which this work has been carried out it is scarcely necessary to speak, as its efficiency has been universally recognised, but it should be remembered that the Company have from the first commencement of their operations acted upon the principle of reducing; in favour of the public revenue, the charge for conveying mails when they obtained anything more than a moderately fair return on their invested capital. That fair return the Company have not received since the Suez Canal was opened, and it was not unreasonable to expect that, seeing the Company in time of prosperity were always willing to reduce the charge for carrying on their service, the position of the Company under the present contract would have had some consideration from the Government; more particularly as, though their income has been diminished to so large an extent through no fault of their own, they have yet kept steadily and successfully in view the improvement of the mail service.

RESERVE ACCOUNT.—INSURANCE AND DEPRECIATION.

In their last annual report the directors fully explained the necessity for employing for the time being the profits of underwriting for the purpose of depreciation. In the accounts for the present year they have, therefore, acted upon this principle, and they have also taken advantage of the comparatively favourable state of these accounts to appropriate a further sum of £200,000 to the same purpose, so that the value of the fleet is altogether reduced by the amount of £493,000 during this financial year.

To explain why such a large appropriation is in the opinion of the directors both politic and necessary, it is essential to refer to the plan formed for the purpose of replacing ships out of profits upwards of thirty years ago. That plan was, very properly, to charge against profits every year a certain amount or percentage, so as to form a reserve fund from which to replace ships as they became worn-out or were sold. The amounts, however, thus set aside were not percentages on the original cost of the ships, but on reduced values, and they have proved, on the whole, insufficient for the purpose required. This deficiency entailed the employment of more capital than would probably have otherwise been necessary; yet, so great was the development of the Company between 1846 and 1866, and so encouraging were the future prospects, that when during that period the expansion of the work required new capital it was called for by the directors, and provided by the proprietors, with the utmost confidence on both sides.

But the fact of a somewhat insufficient provision having been made during the above period necessarily led to arrears in this respect, which were increased by no depreciation having been charged in 1866, as the proprietors were then informed; for although the amount expended in repairs in that year was extremely heavy (£440,000), this did not compensate for the omission of the annual charge on account of depreciation, which proved subsequently to be fully required towards replacing the fleet. It is known to the proprietors, that since the commencement of the present Mail Contract in 1868, the directors have strenuously endeavoured not only to keep the capital within existing bounds, but to reduce it. One of the principal means of doing so would have been to increase the depreciation charge. They have, however, had three difficulties to contend with in carrying out their views in this respect as they would have wished.

First, there was a deficiency, as explained above, in the amount which should have been charged specially on account of depreciation, and also in the General Reserve Fund, which had been reduced by the sum of £229,000 in 1867 by the losses of that year. Second, there was a decline of £300,000 per annum in the commercial earnings of the Company after the opening of the Suez Canal. Third, the directors, notwithstanding these serious drawbacks, had, in order to keep the Company in their position under the altered condition of their carrying trade after the Suez Canal was opened, to sell at a sacrifice about 40,000 tons of the older vessels, most of which, except that they could not carry sufficient cargo, were fit for several years' work; and at the same time it was necessary to build upwards of 80,000 tons of new ships.

The proprietors will readily admit that these radical changes in the fleet have been successfully accomplished, and the reserve has long been raised from £290,000, at which it stood in 1867, to over £430,000. The remaining task devolving upon the directors was that of increasing the amount of depreciation, so as to raise the means for the future renewal of the fleet to an adequate level, which in a Company like this may be fairly attained by the aggregate amount of 5 per cent. per annum being charged against profit and loss on the original cost of every ship. By the charge made in the accounts for the present year the depreciation has been raised retrospectively to that normal point, and the effect is to reduce the book value of the fleet as compared with last year by the amount of nearly £3 10s. per ton. If further argument were necessary to show the advisability of the course pursued by the directors in this matter, it would be seen in the fact that the present Mail Contract terminates in 1880, and that certain steamers now employed under that contract will from the constantly changing conditions of trade have to be disposed of, either before or soon after that time. Unless, therefore, the cost of these vessels is written down sufficiently, a sacrifice would have to be incurred on them which would seriously interfere with future profits.

DEBENTURES AND DEBENTURE STOCK.

It will be seen by the accounts that the debentures have this year been reduced from £671,500 to £454,500, and at the date of issuing this report the amount outstanding is still further reduced to £414,500. The directors have considered it very necessary to mark every movement made in the reduction of the debenture debt by a caution as to the probability of requiring to replace the same by debenture stock to a similar or lesser amount. These debentures having been relied on for twenty years as part of the Company's regular capital, it would have been imprudent to treat their repayment otherwise than tentatively. But having proceeded so far in this direction, the directors entertain the hope that, if no serious fluctuation should occur in the Company's position during the next two years, they may be enabled to liquidate the entire amount of the debenture debt without requiring simultaneously to create any debenture stock. The power of issuing the latter stock would thus be held in reserve until the future requirements of the company are more clearly defined. To prevent any misapprehension as to the cause of the directors' ability to release this amount of capital, it may be well to state that it arises in a great measure from the smaller stocks of coals and stores which are now required to be kept up by the Company, as the Suez Canal, while reducing their receipts to an enormous extent, has enabled them to diminish tha stocks of stores and material which they formerly required throughout the East.

GENERAL OPERATIONS FOR THE YEAR.

The Company's receipts for the years 1875 and 1876 showed a joint diminution of £140,000, as compared with the revenue of 1874, and it will be so far satisfactory to the proprietors to note that a recovery has been made to the extent of nearly £100,000 during the present year. A portion of this recovery is owing to the exceptional amount of Silver shipped to the East during the year, a source of revenue, on the permanence of which, however, past experience has shown that it is impossible to rely. The increase in the revenue in other respects is due partly to a development of local traffic in the East, and partly to glimpses of general improvement in trade, which have, however, been on the whole somewhat fitful and unsatisfactory. At no time has the freight business from Bombay, in which the Company have such a large interest, been so unsatisfactory. The rate of freight from Bombay to Liverpool and the Continent has not for the last six months averaged much over thirty shillings per ton, and as the Suez Canal charges have to be paid out of that, it may be easily seen that there must have been a serious loss to the Company in this. The general increase of revenue under all the circumstances shows that, with anything like a permanent improvement in business, the proprietors may hope to see better returns in the way of freight.

The expenditure side of the account shows an important diminution even as compared with last year, though the expenses were then greatly reduced. In reference to this point the directors have now to confirm what was stated in their last Annual Report, that much of the saving was due "to economy in the general working of ships and establishments, which, though the directors have been aiming at it for years, could only in a business of such magnitude come slowly to fruition."

As the working of mail contracts, such as those of the Company, entails exceptional expenses, not only on board ship, but at a large number of foreign stations (expenses which are unknown to private shipowners), the directors cannot, of course, allow the desire for economy to interfere with the efficient management of the business in which the Company are engaged. Proprietors must not, therefore, anticipate that retrenchment can judiciously be carried much further while this contract lasts. In some respects, such as that of coal, for which freights have been unusually low, there may probably be hereafter an advance on the charge for the present year.

At the same time, the directors believe they will never again be called upon to make such an inroad on the earnings of the year in order to keep the proprietors' capital in a sound position. Admitting the present disappointment which proprietors must feel in seeing their revenue absorbed to so large an extent for the purpose of depreciation, the directors are convinced that in acting as they are doing in this matter, they are pursuing not only the safest, but the only safe course that can be pursued to maintain the permanence of the Company, and, at the same time, to render the existing capital sufficient for future requirements.

RETIRING DIRECTORS AND AUDITORS.

In conformity with the provisions of the Deed of Settlement two of the directors and the two auditors go out of office on the day of the meeting.

The directors so retiring, Admiral Sir William Hutcheon Hall, K.C.B., and William Fane De Salis, Esq., and the auditors, Joseph Silvester Godfrey, Esq., and William Samuel Deacon, Esq., have given notice of their willingness to serve again, and, being re-eligible, the directors have much pleasure in recommending them for re-election.

THE MANCHESTER "COMMISSION" CASE.

The hearing of the case of Williamson v. Barbour, upon which we comment elsewhere, and which is likely to become a veritable cause célèbre in the commercial world, was concluded on the 28th ult., before the Master of the Rolls. Great interest was throughout manifested in the case, which occupied no less than six days, during which the matter was most elaborately argued. Sir Henry James, Q.C., Mr. Chitty, Q.C., Mr. Robinson, Q.C., and Dr. Bryce appearing for the plaintiffs; the Attorney-General, Mr. Benjamin, Q.C., Mr. Southgate, Q.C., Mr. Marten, Q.C., Mr. Edwards, Q.C., and Mr. Mackenzie for the defendants.

Mr. Benjamin, Q.C., addressed the Court in his best style on behalf of the defendants, a portion of his argument going to show that the prices charged by Barbours were known to and acquiesced in by the plaintiffs, who did not object, inasmuch as the great influence of the defendants' house was the means of increasing the plaintiff's own business. Proceeding to observe upon the injurious effect of the allegations in the bill upon the character and standing of the defendants, he was interrupted by the learned Master of the Rolls, who said that he protested against appeals which were sometimes effectual with juries, made on the ground that the character of a party would be affected if a decree or verdict were given against him; with that he had nothing to do. Mr. Benjamin continued his very skilful argument on behalf of the defendants, when he was followed by Mr. Marten, Q.C., and Mr. Edwardes, Q.C., on behalf of their several clients. In the course of his remarks Mr. Benjamin, making an adjuration, said, "In Heaven's name"—when the judge interrupting him said, "Mr. Benjamin, Heaven has nothing to do with this case."

The cross-examination of the defendants' witnesses by Sir Henry James, Q.C., being begun, the first witness was Mr. Barbour, one of the defendants. The cross-examination of this gentleman was severe and pressing, being directed in a great measure to the correspondence with the Calcutta members of the plaintiff's firm. The witness was obliged to admit that as much as 45 per cent. discount had been allowed to his firm by the makers of packing-cases. The next witness cross-examined upon his affidavit was Mr. William Graham (formerly M.P. for Glasgow), who had testified to the fact that many of the alleged instances of overcharge were legitimate according to the usage of the Manchester trade. This witness also underwent a rigorous cross-examination at the hands of the learned counsel, and was, moreover, subjected to considerable questioning from the learned judge, the latter being chiefly directed to the general nature of such dealings as were alleged against the defendants by the plaintiff's bill. Upon a question being put to him hypothetically by the learned Master of the Rolls, who asked, "Would you call that fraud?" the witness replied, "I have heard your lordship use the word fraud in this case in a way that astounded me." To which the Master of the Rolls rejoined, "Is it not the mildest word we can use? We might say 'thievish' or 'roguish' act, or 'robbery,' but we are accustomed here to use the most polite word we can find." The witness was further cross-examined as to his opinion of certain instances of overcharge made by the defendants in respect of insurance policies which had not been effected, bills discounted before the proper time, and erroneous "due dates" on the invoices. The Court was densely crowded during the cross-examination of the defendants' witnesses. The elaborate and decisive judgment delivered by Sir George Jessel is given in our Legal Reports. It is stated that the examination of the books will take ten years.

Monetary and Commercial.

The annual meeting of the P. and O. Company will take place on Dec. 4. The report, which is given in full elsewhere, shows net profits of £134,301 for the year, and a dividend of 2½ per cent., in addition to the 2 per cent. interim dividend, is recommended.

The Tea market has continued very quiet during the past week as regards the home demand; but for export large orders are reported for the Continent up to 8d. per lb. for black leaf. Prices for this kind show an advance of ¼d. from the lowest point; but tea intrinsically 3d. to 4d. per lb. better is only saleable at 8½d. to 10d. The imports since July 1 to the 30th inst. reach 125,000,000 lbs., against a delivery of 84,000,000 lbs., which will clearly show the cause of the downward tendency for so long a time past, but from this time to next summer deliveries will outstrip receipts, the bulk of tea now to arrive being per sailing vessel and of common quality, while the latest telegrams from Foochow and Shanghai report the markets at those ports as closed for the season as regards black teas. It is evident that with ordinary judgment importers may avoid further losses by abstaining from forcing sales, as during the past six months, seeing that the market has evidently taken a turn for the better, which is fully in accordance with the latest advices from China. Heavy as the losses have been in China teas, the late imports of Indian from Calcutta show even more disastrous results, losses ranging from 3d. up to 8d. per lb., siftings selling as low as 7½d. per lb., as against 11½d. per lb. last year, and Pekoes from 1s. 10d. to 2s., against 2s. 4d. to 3s. at this period last year.

During the week ended the 24th ult. the aggregate quantity of tea delivered from the bonded warehouses in London was about 5½ per cent. higher than in the preceding week, the total being 3,992,044 lbs., of which 2,347,580 lbs. was for home consumption, 808,390 lbs. was removed coastwise, 708,269 lbs. was exported, 124,477 lbs. was sent coastwise for exportation, and 3,328 lbs. was for ships' stores. The duty paid amounted to £58,690, against £58,441 in the previous week, showing an increase of £249, or close upon ½ per cent.

The improvement noted in the Silk market last week has continued, and a fairly active business has been done; prices remaining firm for most descriptions.

In the Produce Markets business continues dull, and prices generally show a declining tendency. Cotton has been quiet at steady prices. Coffee, although in large supply, has realised a further advance. Sugar continues extremely inactive. The quarterly sales of Cinnamon have resulted in the sale of nearly the entire quantity offered at a decline of 1d. to 3d. per lb., fine qualities showing the greatest reduction. Pepper, Sago, Galls, and Nutmegs are lower in value. Tin has also declined, but is firmer at the close, owing to the satisfactory result of the Dutch Trading Company's sale.

There has been no special change in the Piece Goods market beyond the fact that the short shipments of shirtings hence to which we alluded in our last may be partly accounted for by the increased exports of yarn, principally to Japan, which of late have been exceedingly heavy. The Japan market appears likely to become one of the largest in the East for this article. The imports of iron into China from Jan. 1, to Sept. 30 reach the unprecedented total of 12,000 tons, while the average annual delivery for some years past has only been at the rate of about 6,000 tons. No wonder, therefore, there should be a disastrous condition of the iron trade. Lead is in a very little better position, in consequence of the low prices for common teas, causing a falling off for lining chests in China.

The P. and O. Company's steamer Peshawur, which was despatched from Southampton on Thursday with the heavy portion of next outward mail, has on board the subjoined amounts in Mexican dollars. For Penang £33,770, for Singapore £17,750, for Hong Kong £6,800, for Shanghai £32,080.

The Silver Market has become slightly weaker, and transactions have taken place between 54¼d. and 54d. per oz., the latter being the closing price. Mexican Dollars have declined to 52¾d. per oz., at which rate a few small parcels from America have been placed.

It is officially announced that the weekly drawings of Government bills on India will be resumed on the 12th ult., when tenders will be received for 2,000,000 rupees. It is added that tenders may be sent in for like sums on the 19th and 27th prox., and that no applications for telegraphic transfers will be received. The last allotment of Council bills took place on Sept. 19, when 20,000,000 rupees were apportioned.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Arthur Capel and Co.'s Circular says:—Our market shows no improvement in the general demand, but has hardened for common teas, owing to the repeated advices of probable short exports from China for the season. Business by private contract continues limited, whilst the quantity offered at auction has been smaller than for some time past. Prices show no material alteration from last week. Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings sell slowly at previous prices; fair to good common have been firm at rather higher rates; fair to medium Kaisow kinds are not readily saleable, but prices show no change; in good to fine and finest Kaisows but little has been done. Pak Lin kinds are without alteration. Black-leaf kinds: Siftings have sold at the low rates last quoted; fair to good common have been in request, and show an advance of ¼d. per lb.; fair kinds have been sold in small quantities from 9d. to 10d. per lb.; fair to good medium have met with rather more inquiry, and any parcels with point have realised full prices; good to fine have realised former prices to meet inquiries, but the demand is not general; finest show no change. New-make kinds: Common have been taken for export at from 7½d. to 8d. per lb.; fair kinds show no change at 9d. to 11d. per lb.; good from 1s. 1d. to 1s. 4d are in fair request, and fine from 1s. 5d. to 1s. 6d. are firm. Oolongs show no material alteration, the demand is only moderate for Amoy kinds, fine Formosa kinds being fairly saleable. In Souchongs there is nothing new to report. Scented Teas.—Canton Capers: Common to fair from 8d. to 10½d. per lb. sell better than other kinds; good to fine are difficult to move. Orange Pekoes: The short-leaf Canton kinds are heavy of sale, the long-leaf kinds are also in limited request, except for small parcels of fine. Foochow Capers remain without improvement. There has been rather more doing in Orange Pekoes, but without change in prices. Green Teas: Ping Suey kinds show a further decline, but Moyune kinds remain firm. Young Hysons have sold better than other kinds, there being some export demand. The public sales have been small, comprising only 7,602 packages, which have been sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week as compared with last year are as follows, viz.:—

	1877. lbs.	1876. lbs.
Coastwise	852,583	825,266

SILK.

Quotations remain unaltered, but the tone of the market is generally firm, and the tendency upwards.

COFFEE.—A larger supply of Plantation Ceylon has been offered than for some time past, but with an active demand the whole was disposed of; prices, although irregular, were generally higher, and fine marks much dearer, the advance for the week being about 2s. to 2s. 6d. per cwt. Native Ceylon has sold only to a small extent, but has also slightly advanced. The closing prices of Plantation are triage 79s. to 95s., common grey to fine coloury small 94s. to 101s., fine fine ordinary 101s. 6d., to 102s. 6d., low middling 103s. to 105s. 6d., middling 106s. to 109s., good middling 109s. 6d. to 110s. 6d., fine marks 114s. 6d. to 116s. 6d., dull to fine bold 116s. to 125s., pea-berry 108s. to 117s. Of Native 148 bags have been sold, small at 77s. 6d., fine ordinary at 86s. 6d., fine bold at 97s. 6d., pea-berry at 89s. 6d. to 93s. Of Singapore 500 bags have been sold, good picked Bally at 80s., first class damaged at 79s. Of 280 bags Manila offered 137 bags Zamboanza sold at 83s. 6d. per cwt.

COTTON.—A quiet tone has prevailed during the week, and only a moderate business has been done at about previous rates. The sales for the week are about 10,700 bales:—Tinnivelly 5⅞d. to 5 15-16d., fair; Western Madras 5⅞d. to 5 9-10d., good fair to good; Coconada 5¼d. fully fair; Scinde 5¼d. to 5⅜d., good fair to good; Bengal 4⅝d. to 5d., fair to good fair; Rangoon 5d., good fair; Dhollera 5d.

CINNAMON.—The quarterly public sales held on the 26th inst. offered a total of 2,727 bales Ceylon, against 1,059 bales in August, and 3,377 bales in November, 1876. Holders met the market freely, and nearly the whole found buyers—viz., 2,450 bales, the remainder, consisting chiefly of second-hand parcels, being bought in. Prices were irregular, fine and superior first sort being 2d. to 3d. lower, medium ditto, second and third sorts, at last sales' rates to a decline of 1d. to 2d. per lb., but fourth brought full rates.

2,727 bales

The next public sales were fixed for the 25th of February, 1878.

CINNAMON CHIPS.—516 bags Ceylon sold at very full prices, one lot bark at 3½d., chiefly middling to fair chips at 4⅜d. to 6¼d., cuttings and broken quill at 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 5½d. per lb.

CANTHARIDES.—24 cases China bought in at 2s. 3d. to 2s. 6d.

CHINA STAR ANNISEEDS.—25 cases bought in at 95s.

CHINA PRESERVES.—At auction 190 cases Ginger (Sansing) partly sold at 5d., 42 cases Cumquat sold at 6¼d., and 50 cases Chow Chow at 5¼d. to 5½d. per lb.

CHINA BRISTLES.—Of 48 cases Pig offered 17 cases China sold at 2s. 2½d. to 2s. 3d.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—Transactions have been limited in Cochin at £43 to £43 10s., in Ceylon at £38 10s. to £38 15s. for pipes; 137 casks Ceylon offered by auction were either withdrawn or bought in at £38 10s., fine £39.

COLOMBO ROOT.—40 bales somewhat dull and wormy sold at 28s. to 29s.

FEATHERS.—25 bales China Duck sold at 5½d. per lb.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—There is more inquiry for anniseed, which has advanced to 6s. 4½d. Cassia remains dull at 3s. 2d.

GALLS.—Privately 100 cases China have been sold at 53s. 6d. per cwt.

GAMBIER.—No business done; at auction 200 whole bales 36 broken ditto and 2 tons loose block were bought in, the former at 19s.; also 556 bales pressed cubes at 27s. per cwt.

GUM BENJAMIN.—Of 3 packages Siam offered 1 box small medium and bold almond free with some blocky sold at £80, the remainder, medium and small almond in dark solid block, bought in at £70. Of 20 cases dark Sumatra 2nds 8 cases sold at £6 2s. 6d. to £5 17s. 6d. the remainder bought in at £6.

JAPAN ACONITE.—7 cases bought in at 42s.; wormy at 40s.

MUSK.—37 tins Tonquin sold, pile 1, fair shaped pods with a part rather rough and skinny at 50s. 6d. to 51s.; mixed, with more rough and skinny, 44s. 6d. to 45s.; pile 2, hard. partly skinny, but genuine, 27s. to 28s.; pile 3, fair to good fair shaped, with some skinny, partly doubtful, 13s. to 14s.; wet pickings, 19s. Of 35 tins Yunan 29 tins sold, fair at 30s., partly fair at 27s. 6d. to 28s., partly damp, with some skinny, 27s. to 27s. 6d., wet pickings, 19s. 6d. to 20s., very wet, 13s. to 13s. 6d., 9 tins grain bought in at 35s. to 56s., or withdrawn, 1 bottle fair sold at 49s. 6d., and 1 tin inferior at 6s. One tin inferior pods, 18s., skins, 3s. 1d.

ORCHELLA.—687 ballots Ceylon have been sold at 45s.

PEPPER, Black: Privately business has been done in Penang at 3½d., and in Singapore at 3 9-16d. to 3⅝d. At auction the market was dull for Penang, but steady for Singapore; 2,190 bags were only partly disposed of; 1,262 bags Penang bought in at 3½d, also 229 bags Trang at 3⅜d., 699 bags Singapore sold, grey to good at 3½d. to 3⅝d. White: Prices are again slightly lower, although only 229 bags were offered by auction, of which 101 bags Singapore sold at 6d. for fair and 6 1-16d. for good fair, and 128 bags good Penang sold at 5¾d. Privately 100 bags fair Singapore have been sold at 6 1-16d.

PLUMBAGO.—At public sale of 202 barrels Ceylon offered about one-half sold, common small lump 10s., fair bright chips at 11s. 3d., good dust 9s. to 9s. 3d.

RATTANS.—At auction early in the week 17,389 bundles (60 tons) Penang and Singapore were bought in at £24 to £27 per ton. At a subsequent auction the large quantity of 144 tons was offered. There was a fair demand, and about one-half sold, chiefly Singapore, at £10 15s. to £14 15s., Penang £21 10s. to £28 5s.

RICE.—The market has been quiet, and little business has occurred in any position. New Rangoon is quoted 9s. to 9s. 1½d., open charter. For arrival 100 tons Raree Ballam, December shipment, have been sold at 9s. 1½d., ex ship.

RHUBARB.—Of 48 chests China offered, 27 chests sold, low middling, 1s. 1d., the first lot, 1s., middling to good middling, 1s. 3d. to 1s. 6d.

SAGO.—In auction 1,247 bags met a slow demand, and only 450 bags sold at easier rates, medium at 18s. 6d. to 19s., common small at 16s. 6d., first-class sea-damaged at 16s., the remainder fair small bought in at 17s. 6d. to 18s.

SAGO FLOUR has further declined, and in auction 918 bags were all bought in at 17s. to 18s.

SPICES.—Cassia Lignea: 936 boxes went off slowly at previous rates, 550 boxes unworked being sold, sound at 43s. to 43s. 6d., first class sea-damaged at 42s. to 42s. 6d. Cloves: No business done in East Indian. Nutmegs have been slow of sale, and of 67 boxes Penang 25 boxes sold, average 77's at 4s.; 9 cases bought in, 85 and 76's at 3s. 5d. to 3s. 10d.; 100 boxes Java, 98's sold cheaper, at 2s. 7d. Mace is easier. In auction 19 cases fresh Penang were nearly all bought in at 2s. to 2s. 2d., only 2 cases sold, pickings at 1s., low middling red at 2s.; 99 boxes Java bought in at 2s. per lb.

SUGAR.—An intensely flat tone has prevailed in the market, in a great measure attributable to the magnitude of present imports. The small supplies at auction have been chiefly bought in; privately there has been an absence of demand for refining kinds, excepting at a still further reduction, and little business has been done. On the 23rd inst. in auction 958 bags China were bought in, very low at 13s., black at 12s., but afterwards sold rather below. Privately 250 tons fair clayed Manila sold at 16s. 4½d., and 6,900 bags clayed Manila ex the previous day's auction at 16s. 6d. On the 27th at auction of 3,504 bags clayed China offered only 400 bags sold, soft brown at 16s., soft yellow at 18s. 6d., the remainder being bought in, brown 17s., middling to fine strong yellow at 21s. to 22s. 6d. Privately 6,900 bags clayed Manila sold at 16s. 3d. On the 29th, privately 150 tons native Penang sold at 14s. 6d.; also 2,600 bags yellow clayed china at 20s. to 21s. per cwt.

TAPIOCA continues dull of sale, and at the auctions only a small part sold at about former rates. Of 1,109 bags Singapore 350 bags sold, good and fine white at 2⅝d. to 2¾d., very fine at 2¾d. to 3d., the remainder bought in at 2¾d. to 3¼d., also 536 bags discoloured grey Penang at 2¼d., except 120 bags low, which sold at 2⅛d.—Pearl: 533 bags medium went off slowly, and were nearly all bought in at 21s. to 21s. 6d., only 40 bags good selling thereat.

TOBACCO.—Part of 46 bales Java, sold at 3d., 29 bales Japan at 8d. to 8½d., and 77 bales China at 5d. to 5¾d.

TIN.—At the sale in Holland of 24,700 slabs of Banca, the whole quantity found buyers at fl.40¼ to fl41., or at an average of 40.75, equal to about £69 ex ship London. Since the result of this sale became known here the market has improved, a firmer tone being exhibited. Closing quotations are:—Straits on the spot and afloat £67, Banca £70, Billiton £68 per ton.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

The market has continued strong. On the 26th ultimo, without being active, more firmness was shown, which tended to restrict business still more. On the 27th there was a good inquiry from buyers from the smaller markets, and the transactions, though not large, were more generally spread, and carried through at full rates for both Goods and Yarns. For the Eastern Markets there was but a trifling demand, except at prices quite prohibitive of business. Since the 27th the market has been quieter, prices being scarcely affected till the 30th, when with a duller feeling there was some tendency towards giving buyers a slight advantage. There has, however, not been sufficient demand for either Yarns or Goods to test the possible concession.

GENERAL SHIPPING NEWS.

SURVEY OF THE INDIAN SEAS.—Measures are afoot for supplementing the researches of the Challenger Expedition by a series of deep-sea dredgings in the Indian Seas. These seas were purposely omitted from the scope of the Challenger's investigations, as it was then hoped that the establishment of a marine surveying agency would enable the Indian Government to carry on deep-sea dredgings and soundings pari passu with coast surveying. But although the Duke of Argyll warmly approved the project, it has hitherto been impossible to do anything owing to the want of a good steamer and all necessary equipment. A new steamer is now being built in India, and an officer of the Coast Survey Department (Lieut. Jarrad, R.N.) has been commissioned to see after the fittings and dredging appliances in England. Full information has been obtained from the old staff of the Challenger, and it is hoped that operations may be started next cold season (1878-79). In that case it is probable that the first steps will be to run one or more lines of soundings across the Bay of Bengal in such directions as may seem best, taking advantage of the vessel's destination for local surveying service.

REWARDS TO CHINESE CAPTAINS.—Letters having been received from the hon. agent of the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society at Hong Kong, drawing attention to the praiseworthy and humane conduct of the masters of two Chinese junks in rescuing the survivors of the Litty Galis, wrecked on the north-east side of the Pratas shoal, in the China Sea, the Committee of the Society resolved that a reward of £5 each should be given them.

ON the 22nd ult. Messrs. Aitken and Mansel launched at Whiteinch a three-decked screw-steamer of 2,200 tons register, which has been built to the order of Messrs. Gellatly, Hankey, Sewell, and Co., of London, and was named the Afghan. The engines, of 300-horse-power, will be fitted by Messrs. John and James Thomson, Glasgow, and the vessel will be supplied with all the most recent improvements for the Eastern trade.

HARBOUR DUES AT ALEXANDRIA.—The Egyptian Government has issued a new tariff of the harbour, quay, and landing dues at Alexandria, commencing in February, 1878. Although the harbour works, quays, roads, and appliances are unfinished, and although the harbour entrance is untouched, and only available twelve hours in twenty-four, the already heavy port dues are increased fifty per cent.

ON the 24th ult. Messrs. Scott and Co. launched from their yard at Cartsdyke, Greenock, a new screw-steamer of 1,000 tons burthen, which on leaving the ways was named the Newchwang. The steamer, which will be engined by the Greenock Foundry Company, has been built to the order of a firm at Shanghai for the China coasting trade.

THE Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Kashgar took the ground in the Suez Canal on the 24th ult. The Canal was blocked, and the traffic suspended until the 27th.

TONITE, OR COTTON POWDER.

THE SAFEST, STRONGEST, AND CHEAPEST OF ALL EXPLOSIVES.

Recommended to MINERS, PIT SINKERS, QUARRYMEN, and CONTRACTORS as the MOST EFFICIENT and ECONOMICAL BLASTING AGENT ever invented.

Results of practical experience show a saving of from 15 to 20 per cent. over the strongest explosives previously in use.

It saves labour in drilling holes, as a less number of holes are needed.

It does not require thawing, but is ready for use at all temperatures and in all climates.

It can also be advantageously used in breaking up boulders, extracting stumps, removing wrecks, exploding torpedoes, and for submarine purposes in general, as well as for signal lights and fog signals for ships.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

YOKOHAMA.

The present mail's advices extend to Oct. 23. The P. and O. mail from London, Aug. 31, arrived out on Oct. 15. A native paper, the Kinji-Horon, calls prominent attention to the issue of paper money by the Government. It says:—

A rumour is current to the effect that the Government has recently issued paper money to the value of 20,000,000 yen. This new paper money differs somewhat in colour and texture from the old. Many of the notes are to be found in the hands of tradesmen; and the salaries of officials are paid with them. But we have as yet seen no official notice of the increase in the issue of paper money. As we are anxious for the credit of the Government, we wish we could be sure that it had issued no additional paper money. But the rumour having not only been heard in the streets, but repeatedly mentioned in several newspapers, we cannot refrain from comment, and so make the following remarks:—It is very wrong on the part of the Government to have issued paper money without any previous notice to the people. Some persons may say that, since we are possessed of no political right, the Government can do what they like to increase or decrease the circulation of paper money without the consent of the people. Others may say that the Government have issued the new paper money to replace old which has been spoiled. We cannot agree with any of them. . . . We do not mean that no paper money should be issued. We admit that, owing to extra expenditure, the Government's only course to provide themselves with funds was to put more paper into circulation. So we do not say that the Government have done wrong merely in having issued paper money, but we hold that they should make their reasons for the course known, and notify to the public the amount they have thrown into currency.

TOKIO.

We take the following from the Tokio Times:—

Iron pipes are to be laid under the sea between Kanagawa and Yokohama, for the purpose of conveying fresh water to the latter place. These pipes are now being made at the Government Iron Works at Akabane, Tokio.

The sum of 150,000 yen was appropriated to cover the expenses of the Japanese exhibits at the Paris Exhibition next year, but on account of the increase in the number of articles that are to be sent there, this appropriation has been increased by the sum of 33,240 yen.

The Choya Shimbun states that there have been 10,133 rebels of Shizoku rank tried in K'u Siu since the suppression of the revolt, with the following result:—Of the total, 67 have been acquitted; of the remainder, nine have been beheaded, 17 sentenced to hard labour for ten years, 6 for seven years, 16 for five years, 83 for three years, 424 for two years, 208 for one year, 107 for 100 days, 2 for seventy days, 2 for thirty days, and 9,197 have been degraded to heimin rank.

The Mai Nichi Shimbun says:—Coins to the value of 77,724,017.99 yen were minted at the Osaka Mint between January and September last. Of these 51,696,861 yen were gold 22,946,080.35 yen silver, and 3,081,046.64 yen copper. Paper money to the value of 106,571,624.60 yen is now current. Of this 12,644,676 yen are in bank notes. During August and September the Paper Money Section issued paper money to the value of 15,756,764 yen. It is said that notes to the amount of 25,000,000 yen will soon be issued, to replace torn notes which will be called in.

HIOGO.

The Hiogo News says :—

All fear of a cholera epidemic was rapidly dying out. The Government deserves credit for the rapidity and energy of the measures which it took to meet the emergency.

General Julius Stahel, the recently appointed U.S. Consul for Hiogo and Osaka, has arrived.

CHINA.

PEKING.

The Courier's correspondent, writing on date of Oct. 15, says :—

The one absorbing topic in this region is the famine, which is even now beginning to be felt in Shan-hsi and adjacent parts of the neighbouring provinces, so that though much has been written on this subject it is impossible to send tidings from this region without some reference to it. In the region surrounding this city there has been at least half a crop, so that though there is scarcity and distress, there is no actual famine. In the city itself the very high price of silver adds to the distress of the working classes, for they are paid in cash, and no material addition has been made to their wages. They are now receiving 50 per cent. less than they used to do, while the price of food, if reckoned in cash, is fully double the standard of a few years back. The missionaries in these regions are about to issue an appeal for help, that is to be sent to the papers and periodicals of England and America. Some, no doubt, will wonder why men of more influence are not the first to move in this matter. It would not be easy to give an answer to a question of this kind. I believe the missionaries would be very glad to be led in this matter, but if the great do not act others must of necessity come forward. The Gazette states that a grant of Tls. 400,000 has been made to the distressed region. This sum, though utterly inadequate to meet the widespread distress, would do much good if it could be entrusted to faithful agents, but such men are, alas, very scarce in this part of the world. When a former grant was made, the people in many places were unwilling to avail themselves of the help thus offered, and even in some cases paid for exemption from the necessity of receiving the Imperial bounty. The local officers to whom the grant was entrusted for distribution told the people that the sums were a loan to be repaid with interest on the first good year, and the poor people were unwilling to be debtors to such creditors.

The city authorities are taking extra precautions against robberies, but in spite of this the possessors of wealth must find it difficult to sleep quietly at night. We have already had several frosty nights, though the late crops are not yet fully gathered in, but we are now having warmer weather. Only a very small portion of the land has been sown with wheat, and we must hope for winter snows to make spring sowing feasible.

CHEFOO.

Nothing of special note has occurred at this port beyond a succession of northerly gales, such as had visited other ports in China.

The French Admiral left on Oct. 12 with the Atalante and Talisman. They are understood to be going in the first instance for a cruise in the Gulf, and to visit the Great Wall at Shanhai Kwan.

NEWCHWANG.

The Daily News correspondent writes :—

The Wm. Phillips collision case, we hear, is to be settled some day, but whether the vessel is to come here for the purpose or not we cannot say. Anyhow the native claimants think so.

Some changes are to take place in the Customs, and we all look forward to the Postal arrangement, by which this deserted province will be so benefited in the winter, if it be true that a steamer will be laid on between Chefoo and Odin Bay. What a boon this will be can only be understood by people when they have been for months without news from their friends. War is declared and peace made without our knowledge ; and only the very "latest" papers are of any use, out of perhaps sixty N.-C. D. News which reach us all of a lump.

HANKOW.

The North China Herald correspondent reports that a new lorcha for the river trade was launched on the afternoon of the 13th, Oct. christened the Chinshan, or "Golden Island." She belongs to Captain Fiben, for many years a well-known trader on the Yangtsze, and is built according to his own design and under his personal supervision. She is built of the best material, and is altogether a decided improvement on the class of vessels which formerly composed the Yangtsze trading fleet. An excellent lunch was provided for the ladies and gentlemen who attended the ceremony. Mrs. Weatherstone christened the vessel, and in a neatly-turned speech expressed her hope that the Chinshan would really prove a Golden Island to her owner. Several toasts were drunk and suitable speeches made, and everyone seemed to spend a very pleasant afternoon.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to Oct. 26; the French mail from London, Sept. 7, was received Oct. 24.

A case of a most unusual character has been before the United States Consular Court, where Mr. O. B. Bradford, who has long occupied the position of Vice-Consul, and has been Acting Consul-General, was charged with opening mail letters, and sentenced to a fine of $250 and twenty days' imprisonment. The case was heard before Mr. G. Wiley Wells, who in passing sentence said—You have seen fit, as an officer entrusted with the mail, in which are great and important secrets—official secrets, secrets that affect the commercial world, family secrets—you have seen fit to invade that sanctuary, to violate your oath and office, and descend to the mean offence of prying into the secrets of others to satisfy your curiosity by opening a letter. The evidence is that a letter stamped and sealed was mailed at this Consular Post-office for San Francisco, and it is utterly impossible to account how you could have obtained a copy of it on any other hypothesis than that you opened it. But you say the letter was found after it was returned from San Francisco. How was it you first said you had never seen such a letter at all, and were not aware such a letter was in existence. But when you were confronted with the copy of it in your own handwriting, and you knew your handwriting was recognised, you then said that it was found on Mr. Myers's desk, and that it had had time to go to San Francisco and return. Both explanations are lame excuses indeed, to try to avoid the penalty of the law you have incurred. And while I say this is a very painful matter to me, yet I will not shrink from the responsibility that rests upon me. You have violated the law, according to the evidence produced, and it now becomes my duty to pass sentence upon you for that offence. In passing sentence upon you, I can only refer to what I have already said : but I will add that I wish "this cup could pass from me." Your position here with me has been that of a subordinate, and one that I would have preferred should have continued if you had been found worthy. But you have not. You have followed the devices of your own heart; you have forgotten God and His commandments. You have violated the law, and you have prostituted your office. But the Court does not wish to harrow or wound your feelings, or give you pain by any additional words ; and so, without going into the matter further, the Court will sentence you to pay a fine of $250 and the costs, and imprison you in the jail of this Consulate for twenty days, without hard labour.

The Customs returns for the third quarter of the present year have been issued. They show a decline in the revenue of Tls. 83,000, as compared with the corresponding three months of 1876, attributable to the great decrease in the export of silk ; the export duties having yielded only Tls. 96,000, against 309,000 last year ; while there was an increase of over Tls. 100,000 in imports. The shipping returns show an increase of ninety-one vessels entered and eighty-one cleared, involving a corresponding increase of tonnage. The import of Grey Shirtings shows a decrease of 250,000 pieces as compared with last year ; leaving the figures, however, nearly on a par with those of 1874 and 1875. T-Cloths show an increase of 171,000 pieces. There was no material variation in the import of Drills and Jeans, but a large increase in that of Sheetings, both English and American. Chintszes, Turkey Reds, Velvets and Handkerchiefs also show a considerable increase. 125,000 pieces of Woollen Goods were received, against 92,000 in 1876 ; all kinds having shared in the increase except Long Ells, Spanish Stripes and Cloths, in which, however, the decrease was trifling. Metals, also, of all kinds (except Quicksilver), show a considerable increase. The import of Opium was very slightly less—by about eighty piculs ; that of foreign coal slightly greater, but that of native coal only 41,000 piculs, against 108,000.

The feeling with regard to the closing of the Woosung Railway continues to be very strong, the Act being generally regarded as one of the most silly pieces of retrogression of which the Chinese have ever been guilty. The North China Herald refers to the subject as follows :—

The final instalment of purchase money of the Woosung Railway was duly paid on Oct. 18, and the officials deputed for the purpose took over possession of the property on the 22nd. Oct. It is noteworthy that they declined the offer of an engine and carriage to travel over and inspect the property, but elected to go in their chairs ! The last train under the management of the Company left Shanghai on the 20th at noon, returning from Woosung at one P.M. The twelvemonth did not actually expire till the night of Oct. 22, and why the time of closure should have been anticipated we do not exactly see. The future of the Railway is still as uncertain as ever. The last report regarding it is that it is to go to Formosa. All that is certain is that no definite orders respecting its future have yet been issued, but the Formosa theory is held in well-informed quarters. So that those who rather looked forward to seeing the Chinese tear up the rails, as a supreme act of folly which might, perhaps, enlighten Europe as to the reality of their vaunted progress, may not after all be disappointed.

We mentioned recently that a farmstead adjoining the railway had been burnt by a spark from an engine, and that compensation would be given to the owners. But we did not hear at the time, what is now stated to be the fact, that the Taoutai actually put forward a charge of culpable carelessness against the engine-driver, and requested that he might be handed over to the Paoshan Magistrate (? for torture) if he were a Chinaman, and that the Consul would take cognisance of the matter if he were a foreigner. We wonder he did not ask that Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co., as general managers of the line, should also be incarcerated as being indirectly responsible. Does the Taoutai expect the driver to sit on the funnel, to prevent the sparks flying, or how is he to control them?

From the above-named paper we take the following:—

The Council have asked the Commissioner of Customs, and have invited the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce, to try and have the opium hulks removed to the other side of the river. The inconvenience of their present situation has been often complained of, and the Council point out that, in consequence of the steady growth of the Pootung shore, and the consequent tendency of vessels to bear more and more to this side of the river, that inconvenience is yearly becoming greater.

It is reported that the China Merchants' Company have again declared a dividend of 10 per cent. per annum, but again without writing anything off to depreciation.

The northerly gale which we experienced here on Wednesday and Thursday last week seems to have swept down nearly the whole extent of the continent. The Russian telegraph lines were damaged by it. Our Newchwang correspondent mentions that it passed over Newchwang on the 10th, reducing the temperature from 75 deg. to 34 deg. Chefoo also experienced the full benefit. The British bark Aurora went ashore; some damage was done to the Customs jetty, and a flat roof of a house on the hill gave way. At Tientsin a strong N.W. gale was experienced on the 10th, and during the night the thermometer was down to 30 deg. There was less water than usual in the river, and the steamer Taku reports that she was aground in consequence for thirty-six hours. On the same days gales also swept the coast of Japan, and Saikio the Maru, as will be seen from a report in another column, encountered a typhoon on the 11th between Kobe and Yokohama. What happened at Shanghai, and to shipping farther South, has been already stated.

It was reported that all details of the Loan had at length been settled satisfactorily at Peking, and a strong demand for Bank shares set in in consequence; but some doubt has since again arisen.

Referring to the voracity of the white ants of the south of China, in the course of the proceedings at the Asiatic Society last week, Dr. Macgowan mentioned the curious fact that tobacco has been discovered to be a deadly poison to them. A colony of them penetrated a box of cheroots, but no sooner had they fastened themselves on the cigars than they were killed by nicotine—a solemn warning, added the speaker, not so much to those who smoke as to those who masticate the weed. It is popularly believed that, wherever a vegetable poison is found growing, an antidote may be discovered close at hand; and this is paralleled in a manner by a destroyer of the termites, who have as a neighbour a small black ant that feeds on them. A battle was lately witnessed between a party of white and black ants, if that can be called a battle which consisted in an unresisting seizure and carrying off of the former by the latter.

The Courier has the following:—

There was an unusually large attendance at evening prayer at the Cathedral. A gifted member of the choir was expected to be present for the last time, and a numerous congregation assembled in consequence. Indisposition however interposed on the one side—and disappointment ensued on the other. Flattering as the reception could not fail to have been to the one it was intended for, it also indicated in an unmistakable manner what an attractive power good singing, whether sacred or profane, always has. Some of us remember well the different state of things that obtained in the barn-like edifice which preceded the present building. How at the second service scarcely ever more than a dozen persons were present and sometimes not a single member of the choir. The purifying and elevating influence of so many more ladies amongst us than there used to be has unquestionably told for good, the religious element in the nature of woman being as a rule in greater preponderance than in that of the sterner sex. In deference also to the wishes of some residents a semi-cathedral service in the evening has been introduced, and this for a time, and especially when one of our leading amateur singers was known to be taking a solo in the anthem drew considerably; latterly, however, there has been a falling off in numbers. The heat of summer has no doubt had something to do with it, but now that cool weather has returned and the days are getting shorter, it is to be hoped that the heart of our worthy Dean will be rejoiced by often seeing congregations like the one assembled in the Cathedral last night.

NINGPO.

The correspondent of the Hong Kong Daily Press states it is reported that the newly appointed Governorof the Province of Chekiang, Mei-chi-chao, will visit Ningpo very shortly on a tour of inspection. A review of the troops is likely to take place, and the native gunboats will probably be inspected by his Excellency. The anticipated visit from the great man has caused some little excitement and gossip in native circles.

The two opposition lines of steamers on the Shanghai Ningpo line are cutting down the existing rates of freight to a minimum, the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company having a regular daily steamer, and the China Navigation Company are running one steamer three times a week. The rumour current that the two companies had come to an understanding with regard to the rates of freight on this line seems to have no foundation, the competition being as keen as ever.

WENCHOW.

A correspondent of the North China Daily News gives the following from the above-named port:—

The only news of interest since my last is that the lekin on tea has at last been fixed at 25 tael cents per chest less than the Customs transit dues. This will of course cause the inland duty to flow directly into the pockets of the local authorities, and beyond the reach of the Imperial treasury.

I say "at last," for you can have no idea of the work and solicitations that were necessary before the desired information could be obtained. The Taoutai is always ill, and apparently quite unfit for duty. There is a rumour that he is going on leave. Well, we can't get a worse, even if a more obstructive one; as the latter will at least have to assume a position of active hostility, a condition much more tangible than the opposite state. The native teamen seem to be looking with rather a longing eye towards our port, and there seems to be no doubt but that, if only a little capital comes here, the best "Foochow" teas will be on hand, and probably, at least at first, obtainable at lower prices than in the market from which their generic appellation is got. At any rate, a considerable quantity is likely to come here for shipment either to Shanghai or even Foochow; as in the latter case there seem to be some official obstacles in the way of an overland transit, which do not exist in Chekiang province, and so preference will be given to the sea route.

FOOCHOW.

The Foochow Herald has the following:—

The new line of telegraph between Taiwanfu and Takow is now completed, and messages are being transmitted daily. The line is, we understand, worked by pupils from the Torpedo College at Tientsin, while subordinate positions are filled by youths taken from the lately closed Telegraph School at this port.

In a recent issue we alluded to the case of a foreigner having been assaulted and deprived of his clothing by some Chinese creditors to whom he owed a trumpery amount. We now understand that the persons concerned in this cowardly attack have, at the instance of the United States Consul, been arrested, and that the ringleader has been bambooed and sentenced to three months' cangue.

It is rumoured that the Viceroy is dissatisfied with his post, and that he has applied to Peking for permission to retire. His Excellency is said to be an ultra-Conservative, with no very remarkable administrative faculty. His conduct of foreign relations has been far from successful, though marked by a certain amount of obstructive talent that presumably meets with approval at the capital.

The naval forces of Fohkien (always excepting those toy-ships at the Franco-Chinese Arsenal) were reviewed on Oct. 6 by the Admiral-in-Chief. This warlike functionary sniffed powder from afar in the reception-room of the Chinese Custom-House, near the Long Bridge, while his gallant tars indulged in one of those inexpensive pyrotechnic displays with which we are so delightfully familiar.

We have been favoured with the following extract from a private letter from Ockseu, under date 1st October:—"The devastation and loss of life at sea on the morning of Sept. 22 must have been terrific. Whole sections of junk timber were floating past and drifting on to the island for two whole days, while on the 23rd a whole junk floated past bottom upwards. I called the attention of the natives to it, but they were afraid to go off to her and tow her in. On the Monday morning the Maria passed here dismasted, but owing to the stubbornness of the natives we could not render any assistance. At about eleven A.M. I lost sight of her; she was then about the lower or south end of the land forming the Meichin Sound. She had stores for the Lighthouse, and since that we have heard nothing of her. The Lamyit men came down on the 15th ultimo, worked a little, and stayed until the 21st, when the appearance of the weather and the heavy swell from the southward caused them to leave. I am afraid they hardly arrived in shelter before the gale. But 'gale'! it was not a gale of wind at all. In my fifty years' experience, and nearly thirty of them have been passed at sea, I never saw or felt the like. I think it was the bursting of a water spout in our vicinity attended with a dozen typhoons, lasting over two hours. The water came down in lumps here and there. As to trying to face it, that was impossible; one had to hold on, and pretty hard too. Our courier tells me that the wreck through the country which he has to pass is dreadful. Houses have fallen in all directions. It must have been great on the mainland, for amongst the debris floating past are numbers of trees and drift wood that had apparently been undisturbed for ages. The cholera, or whatever epidemic it was, has about subsided here. Only one case of death amongst the natives occurred on this island. On the smaller Ockseu over fity persons have died."

HONG KONG.

Our advices by this mail extend to Nov. 1; no later mail from London had arrived out.

The question of consolidating the ordinances of Hong Kong, which has for years past attracted attention from time to time, has again been discussed in the local papers. The Chief Justice called attention to the subject from the Bench by the observation, "Well, our ordinances are in a pretty state"—and this seems to have been sufficient to set the ball of discussion on the subject rolling again. It may, therefore, be that H. E. Mr. Pope Hennessy will become the Justinian of Hong Kong, and if so it is to be hoped he will produce something a little less crude than the over-rated work of that bugbear of law students. The Daily Press follows the Chief Justice, and not without reason holds that it is high time the Ordinances were put in order. It goes on to observe:—The Governor is himself a lawyer, quick to detect anomalies, and, although he has taken what almost every one with any experience of Chinese criminals thinks unsound views with regard to one particular form of punishment, he has evidently given careful consideration to the general question of the repression of crime, and there is no reason for calling in question his ability to deal with it if he will put aside sentimentalism. The Attorney-General has had valuable experience elsewhere in the work of law revision, and in drafting the ordinances which would be necessary here he could call for the advice of the two police magistrates, one of whom has had an experience here in his present capacity and as superintendent of the police for thirty years, while the other has filled his present office for seven years, is a barrister, and himself did good work in consolidating several important Ordinances while filling the office of Acting Attorney-General during the interregnum between the departure of Mr. Bramston and the arrival of Mr. Phillippo. Both these gentlemen are well qualified to furnish reliable information and give sound advice upon the working of the present enactments in their own department; and in the Council Chamber the Chief Justice, with his seventeen years' experience, would give valuable assistance. It is possible that in a few years we may again have all new men in the Council Chamber. At all events, the work requires doing, there are officials well able to do it, and time is valuable.

From the Daily Press we also take the following:—

A case has been heard at the Marine Court by the Hon. C. May and Captain Thomsett, in which a junk-master was charged with leaving the harbour of Victoria without a clearance. The junk was laden with salt and salt fish, and the prisoner's defence was that he committed the offence proved against him only through ignorance of law, as he would not have run the risk of getting into trouble for the sake of twenty-five cents. According to the Ordinance under which the prosecution was instituted, the Court has no discretion as to punishment, and accordingly sentenced the prisoner to one month's hard labour, the junk and cargo to be forfeited to the Crown, this being the penalty provided. As there was no apparent intention of smuggling or of committing any act of piracy, the Court recommended the case to the consideration of his Excellency the Governor, suggesting that a fine of $25 would meet its merits. His Excellency adopted the suggestion, and the punishment was accordingly commuted to a fine of $25.

We regret to have to record the death of Captain G. U. Sands, proprietor of the two patent slips at West Point and of the Novelty Iron Works. He was suddenly seized with a severe pain in his bowels while drinking a cup of tea. Dr. O'Brien was at once sent for, and everything possible was done for the unfortunate gentleman, but he died about ten o'clock yesterday morning, having suffered most acute pain from the time of the attack. The cause of death was hernia. Captain Sands was an American, and possessed all the enterprise characteristic of his countrymen. He laid down the patent slip at Belcher's Bay, and afterwards purchased the Novelty Iron Works, running the two concerns together very successfully under the name of the Patent Slip and Dock Company, and a few months ago he bought Messrs. Macdonald and Company's slip. It was his intention to retire from the personal management of his concerns here, and te leave China for home in the spring of next year.

The Rev. Gerard Nuiteman has died at the French Mission House, Hong Kong. The deceased gentleman, who was Dutch by birth, was sent in 1869 from the seminary of the Belgian Mission, near Brussels, to Mongolia, which is the field occupied for evangelisation by the Belgian fathers. Worn out by continual labour and the privation involved in the ministry in that remote inland mission, he had obtained from his superiors leave to go to Europe to restore his failing health. His illness increased on the journey from Mongolia to Tientsin and thence to Shanghai, and on the passage from Shanghai to Hong Kong he became so weak that he was unable to proceed further, and he was most kindly cared for by the French Missionaries here. His illness developed into typhoid fever, and in spite of the efforts of Dr. O'Brien, the medical attendant of the French Mission, he succumbed to the disease at midnight on Thursday, and was buried at the Catholic Cemetery, in Happy, Valley on Friday afternoon.

As another instance of the value of Chinese house property, we notice that the ground lately occupied by the Novelty Ironworks, West Point, is being utilised for the erection of Chinese houses.

The standing of native medical practitioners in the colony is a subject calling for legislation. At present Chinese doctors are not recognised or acknowledged in any way by law, but in our Courts they can sue for and recover their fees in the same way as anyone else can recover payment for services rendered. Practically they are irresponsible, and no guarantee of qualification for their profession is required from them. Thus anyone, when other sources of livelihood fail, can turn doctor, and as a matter of fact coolies and other ignorant persons do set up in the profession, and unfortunately find patients ready to be gulled by them. It is frightful to think how many deaths may result from the unskilful treatment of such men, and the question arises whether the Government is not bound to protect the public from their imposition. The subject is one surrounded by grave difficulties, but it is one of vital importance. The Chinese cannot be expected to at once abandon their ancient medical system and adopt that of Western nations. The most intelligent of them, who are ready to adopt other foreign innovations, stick tenaciously, as is natural, to their own doctors. Perhaps the utmost that could be demanded from these practitioners would be a guarantee of sufficient knowledge to form a safeguard against their doing actual harm, if they can do no good. It is not often that they venture on surgical operations, but a case came to our knowledge the other day in which a native doctor, treating a child for lockjaw, cut the tendons of the cheek, hemorrhage set in, and death, of course, supervened. It is against such treatment as this that the public ought to be protected. At the very least, the native doctors ought to be licensed, as chair coolies, hawkers, and others of the same class are. This would give the Government some control over them, and would be useful in enabling the Courts to ascertain their standing when they give evidence in criminal cases, as they not unfrequently have to do. The only Chinese college which grants medical diplomas is that at Peking, and, as very few bearers of these diplomas are to be found in any part of China, the possession of one could not fairly be required as a condition of practice in Hong Kong.

CANTON.

Under date of Oct. 25 the Daily Press correspondent writes as follows:—

A notice has been issued by the Governor warning the people against opium-smoking, in which he dwells at some length upon the mischievous character of the drug. His Excellency also strongly advises those who are addicted to the evil habit to free themselves from it without loss of time, and cautions those who have not yet indulged in the pipe on no account to taste the drug. I presume this notice has been published in pursuance of instructions from Peking, and as following up the Imperial edict on the subject.

The recent fire in Wong Po-street, by which two houses and a mat-shed were destroyed, is stated to have been the work of incendiaries.

The banditti in the Tsang-fa district, numbering two or three thousand, have gained a signal victory over the troops sent to exterminate them. The military, it appears, in addition to being greatly outnumbered, were, as is not unusual with China troops, short of ammunition, and hence were obliged to retreat, leaving about twenty killed and a number of wounded on the field. The officer in charge of the troops has sent to Canton for reinforcements and a supply of ammunition.

An opium smuggler was arrested on Oct. 18 in the Fourth Ward of the Western suburb. Four balls of opium were found in his possession, and they were immediately confiscated. What punishment the smuggler received I have not learned.

On Oct. 17 a cargo-boat, with more than 300 passengers on board, while on her return voyage from this port to Fatshan, suddenly capsized in a gale of wind. More than half of those on board found a watery grave in the river, and the rest managed to get to shore with the assistance of the crews of other boats. The boat is still in the mud.

The triennial review of the war junks passed off very satisfactorily, no accidents occurring during the practice on this occasion. The Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, with their suites, were present, and expressed their satisfaction with the condition of the vessels.

AMOY.

The Daily Press correspondent writes under date of Oct. 25 :—

I am given to understand that a case will most likely be tried in the British Consulate at this port to test the right of a shipper who had engaged freight for teas in a through steamer to New York, to recover from the agents of the through steamer the extra costs of sending the same to New York by a Pacific mail steamship and railroad, where the agents of the through steamer have shot out teas for which freight was engaged, in order to make room for their own, and it is hoped that the present loose system of making or breaking engagements will meet with a final stoppage. It seems that engagements on some merchants' honour are very much like houses built on sand. A Te Deum has been sung at the Roman Catholic Cathedral for the disappearance of the cholera.

The following was circulated here by the Chamber of Commerce :—Mr. Cray has given notice of his intention to call the notice of the general meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to the excessive duty on Turkey Red Cambrics, with the view of endeavouring to get it reduced to about the same proportion as charged under the treaty on other foreign textile fabrics, and that a representation be made as to the excessive lekin charged on various woollen goods with a view to the reduction. The members of the Committee have proposed to bring forward the subject of adjusting an equitable tariff to be adopted in weighing Formosa sugar. A meeting of the Chamber is to be held on Oct. 26, when the matters above referred to will be considered.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

MANILA.

A commission has been appointed to examine into and report upon the flora and state of the forests of the Philippines.

The rice crop in Ilo Ilo being deficient, a vessel with a large cargo of the grain will shortly be despatched from Manila.

From Jolo it is stated that the greatest enthusiasm prevailed amongst the newly-arrived troops. The public health was good. The Governor of this island is instituting numerous improvements in the locality. Amongst other works in progress an embankment is being carried out to a steep rock, alongside of which any ship can lie. This work will be a great benefit to Jolo.

COCHIN CHINA.

—o—

SAIGON.

The Straits Times has the following :—

The foundation-stone of the new Cathedral of Saigon was laid by the Roman Catholic Bishop on Oct. 7, in the presence of the Governor and the principal officials of the Colony. On Oct. 8 Governor Duperre held a review of the troops of all arms in Saigon, with the crew of the man-of-war Le Tilsitt, and the militia of Saigon and Cholon.

The Courier publishes returns of imports and exports of the port of Haiphoon for the first half of 1877, drawn up by M. de Kergardec, the French Consul. The values in Tls. were as follows :—A tael being equal to $1.35, or f.7.43, the dollar being valued at f.5.35 :—Imports, Tls. 402,000.79 ; exports, Tls. 345,731.67. The trade of the port seems to be exclusively confined to China and Saigon, principally to China, as the following table shows :—China imports Tls. 399,908.29, exports Tls. 253,249.33 ; Saigon imports $2,092.50, exports $92,480.32. The imports consist principally of medicine, opium, tobacco, tea, cotton thread and cloth, silk cloth, Chinese paper, crockery and haberdashery, and the exports of silk cloth, rice, tin, medicine raw silk, gum oil, and kunao, a sort of gambier.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

The speech delivered by the King of Siam in reply to the addresses of the princes, nobles, and representatives of foreign nations on his birthday appears in the Siam Weekly Advertiser of Oct. 25. The speech, which is very lengthy, says that during the past year the King has avoided what might have given rise to serious difficulties with French Cochin-China, by promptly sending a Councillor of State to prevent any Siamese aiding the Cambodian rebels. He has shown his respect to our nation and Queen by sending his highest dignitary as Ambassador to hear Her Majesty proclaimed Empress of India. He has tried with some display of force and more of clemency to restore order in a part of his disaffected dominions. The next clause in the speech says that after the defeat of the Haw Chinese rebels last year the victorious general brought to Siam some thousands of captives, who, not liking the change, have been permitted to return. With reference to the delay of justice the speech says that more than 650 old cases of long standing have been disposed of, and that the 623 remaining cases are being vigorously dealt with. The next paragraph refers to the dearness of grain, the precarious state of the rice crop, and the prohibition of the export of rice, which his Majesty holds out hopes will be but temporary. The last paragraph of outside interest tells us that a great canal is in progress through good land suitable for rice growing between Bangkok and the Eastern River, and that already 10,000 acres have been taken up by rice cultivators ; and his Majesty adds—we contemplate the digging of other canals, and shall commence one this year to afford relief to those who may be thrown out of employment by the stoppage of the rice mills.

JAVA.

BATAVIA.

We learn from the Batavia newspapers that the drought continues, and the state of health is still unfavourable, cases of small-pox having appeared amongst the better classes of the European population. The lately published official reports on the state of the rice crops are, generally speaking, of a favourable nature.

It is officially reported from Atchin, under date Sept. 20, that the Assistant Resident had been conferring with the Chinese authorities at Kotta Rajah, for the purpose of making arrangements for allotting small portions of land to Chinese immigrants there. Proposals to effect this will hereafter be made to Government. The object is to obtain a more settled Chinese population at Kotta Rajah, and, for the sake of the public health and security, to induce them to cultivate those lands to which there is very little probability that the original owners will ever return.

The Court of Justice has delivered judgment in the case of Captain Verloop, lately the commander of the steamer Lieutenant General Kroesen. The Court found him guilty of having, by excessive neglect and imprudence, caused the death of the 127 persons who perished when that vessel was wrecked, on June 21, 1876, and sentenced him to two years' imprisonment, and a fine of 300 guilders, or forty-five days' additional imprisonment should the fine be not paid.

The wreck of the Julia Rietz and the cargo to be found in her brought 745 guilders at public auction. About 194 cases of petroleum in a sea-damaged condition have been sold in lots at the same auction at an average of about four guilders per case.

According to advices received via Sourabaya from the Governor of Celebes and dependencies, Kraeng Bonto Bonto made his submission, Oct. 10, to Major Prager, the commander of the expeditionary troops, and in the expectation of further orders, he is provisionally interned at Pang Kanjene.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The present French mail brings advices from this port to the 8th November ; the French mail from London, Oct. 5, was received on the 6th Nov. We take the following items of intelligence from the Straits Times :—

We are informed that Tunku Alum has had an interview with the Hon. Mr. Douglas, the Colonial Secretary, with reference to his patrimony of Moar State and his rights thereto, and that Mr. Douglas made something like the following statement :—That Colonel Anson in all he did was merely acting, and could not give any decision in the matter ; that the instruction from the Colonial-office was not to interfere in the matter, and therefore the Government here would leave the decision as to the successor to Moar to the wishes of the chiefs and people ; that to ascertain these wishes the Maharajah of Johore had been requested to withdraw his men from Moar territory, and send back the Tumongong of Moar with other Moar people in Johore ; that the Tumongong of Moar left accordingly for Moar a few days ago, and he is to collect all the Punghooloos and people at Quallah Kessang for the purpose of making their wishes known ; and that Mr. A. M. Skinner proceeds in the Pluto for Moar river in order to receive the decision come to at this meeting, which will be acted upon by the British Government as the paramount power.

An event of considerable interest as bearing on the much vexed question of the control of the Secret Societies has transpired, and, as illustrating the change which has come over their leading spirits, is worth recording. Some three weeks since the Protector of Chinese, who had succeeded the Inspector General of Police as Registrar of the Societies, issued a notice requiring the Societies to forward a return of newly-joined members in accordance with the Act. One society only complying with the requisition, and the stated time having expired, summonses were issued against the headmen, returnable on Nov. 6. As an infringement of the Act renders each headman liable to a fine of $500, this compelled some attention, and an attempt was made to gain the ear of the Inspector-General of Police. As he however declined to hear them, the headmen finally came to the Protector, and promised a most ample apology, and a full compliance with the regulations, if the summonses were allowed to stand over. The apology was accordingly handed in, and all resistance is at an end. As we were, and still are, by no means sanguine of the success of the Protectorate, we are glad to be able to record that, on this occasion at least, it has rendered good service.

A portion of the estate of the late James Clarke has been sold by auction, under the direction of the Court, when the following prices were realised :—No. 41, Hill-street, 46 cents per square foot, $16,155.31 ; No. 10, Raffles-place, occupied by Messrs. Chib Hok and Co., $10,500.00 ; No. 56, Teluk Ayer-street, $1,400.00 ; No. 86, Teluk Ayer-street, $2,760.00 ; No. 93, Teluk Ayer-street, $1,500.00 ; No. 205, Middle-road, 16½ cents per square foot, $2,524.00 ; Total, $34,839.31. We understand that the remainder of the property belonging to this estate is also to be sold.

H.H. Tunkoo Dia Oodin, the Viceroy of Salangore, has obtained from his Highness Sultan Abdul Samad three months' leave of absence, for the purpose of visiting his brother, the Rajah of Quedah. His Highness left for Malacca by the steamer Peyah Pekkett on Oct. 5, and went from there by the Benmore to Penang. During his absence Captain Douglas, H.M. Resident, undertakes the duties of President of the Salangore Council.

His Excellency Sir William C. F. Robinson held a Levee on Nov. 3 in Government House, and a large number of the residents manifested their loyalty to Her Majesty's representative on the occasion.

The Rajah and Ranee of Sarawak (Sir Charles and Lady Brooke) arrived here on Nov. 3 by the Sarawak gunboat Aline, and have taken apartments at Emmerson's Hotel.

Captain Douglas, H.B.M.'s Resident, Salangore, notifies that, pending the arrival from England and the erection of a red light of proper power, a temporary bright light will be exhibited at Middle Point, in the southern entrance of Klang Straits.

A farewell dinner party has been given at the Estana, Johore, by H.H. the Maharajah of Johore, to the Honourable Mr. W. and Mrs. Adamson.

The Gazette notifies that the Hon. H. Plunket, Superintendent of Police, Penang, has been granted one month's extension of leave, with half salary.

Market Reports.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The market had continued dull throughout the interval. The quietude extended to all imports, the slight activity recently apparent in Yarns having subsided. Shirtings and other Cotton Goods had been in very limited demand, and an extremely small business had been done at about previous quotations. In Metals also the business had been very limited in extent, and quotations were nominal, with a downward tendency.

CHINKIANG.—There had been a slight improvement in the market, more inquiry being exhibited, chiefly for fair to good medium 8¼ lbs. Shirtings, and 14 lbs. Drills.

NEWCHWANG.—Messrs. Bush Brothers' Circular, dated Oct. 13, says :—Since Sept. 15 manufactures have gone off in considerable quantities, some 500 bales Drills (principally Americans) having changed hands during the last ten days. The weather has been boisterous, and much colder, from 10th inst., when the thermometer (Fahrt.) marked 30½deg., and we have had snow, rain, and sleet by turns. Natives prognosticate an early closing of the port. Grey Shirtings : 8¼-lbs, 3 Mandarins, Tls. 1.22 ; 8¼-lbs. Lion, Tls. 1.30 ; 8¼-lbs. Fish, 1.33 ; 10lbs. Tunsin, 2.59. T-Cloths : 6-lbs. Weavy Machine, Tls. 0.88 ; 7-lbs. Sin-paou-shun, Tls. 1.44. Sheetings : Tree, Tls. 2.38 ; Man and Spur, Tls. 2.70 ; Horse, Tls. 3.20. Drills—English : Dragon, Tls. 1.95 ; 3 Mandarins, Tls. 1.97 ; American : Cock, Tls. 3 to 3.03 ; Horse, 3.03 to 3.07 ; Dragon, 3.11 to 3.17. Iron : A few parcels of Staffordshire placed at Tls. 2.10 to 2.18 per 91½c.

SHANGHAI.—There had again been little or no private business, transactions having been confined to auction sales at about previous values. Grey Shirtings : 8¼ lbs., prices generally had fallen a trifle. Of Horse and Jockey 500 pieces had realised Tls. 1.65 per piece, but Hand and Branch had declined to Tls. 1.77½ per piece. Inquiry for 7 lbs. moderately steady again, and lower to medium grades had developed a tendency towards higher prices. There was also a little better feeling towards 6 lbs. goods, but nothing over last quotations had been paid. In heavy Shirtings nothing done. T-Cloths : 6 lbs. slightly stronger, also 7 lbs. Mexicans. Jeans : Dewhurst's make sold at Tls. 1.60 and Sin-Wo Eye at Tls. 1.67. Other cloths inferior to these, but of "good" classification—had brought from Tls. 1.43 to 1.52. Fancy Cottons : No business beyond that in Velvets, Handkerchiefs, and Turkey Red Cambrics at the auctions. Woollens : No private business reported in Camlets, Long Ells, or Spanish Stripes ; but inquiries for certain chops of the second named article, at previous quotations for scarlet, but at lower prices for assortments. Camlets showed a heavy decline. Lastings had likewise gone back in value, a sale of black, 100 pieces, having taken place at Tls. 8.80 per piece. Approved assortments of Figured Orleans had maintained their place, but there had been very little doing in them. Lustres and Crapes had not been wanted. Metals : Dulness still prevailed. Of Nail-rod Iron the only sale consisted of 6,000 bundles (damaged) Belgian at Tls. 1.47½ per picul. L.B. Lead had changed hands at Tls. 5.40 per picul for forward delivery. The cash rate was lower than that, and business difficult. For Tin, Tin Plates, and Quicksilver there had not been any market, and prices for all were nominal.

SAIGON.—There was scarcely any demand, and quotations were nominal.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—The Chamber of Commerce Circular says :—Business continues much on the same basis as previously reported, low grades, which are very firm, still being the favourites. Settlements during the interval amount to 2,000 piculs ; and supplies have been very limited. Stocks to hand consist principally of the better classes, but are only of small amount. The Cremona, for New York, is now full, and will have speedy despatch ; the s.s. Glenearn is expected to leave on the 23rd Oct. for same destination, via China ports and Suez Canal. The P.M.S.S. Company have reduced the rate of freight to New York for City of Peking, leaving about Nov. 3, to 3c. per lb. gross. Quotations :—Common, per picul, $10 to 11 ; good common, $12 to 14 ; medium, $15 to 17 ; good medium, $18 to 21 ; fine, $22 to 24 ; finest, choice, and choicest nominal. Export from May 1 to date :—

Settlements and shipments	662,000 „	715,000 „
Stock	1,000 „	4,000 „

SHANGHAI.—Black : There had been less demand during the week, settlements being :—Oopack, 1,500 chests at Tls. 12½ to 15 ; Oanfa, 1,500 chests at Tls. 11¾ to 15 ; Ningchow, 2,000 chests at Tls. 11¾ to 21 ; Hohow, 1,000 chests at Tls. 11⅛ to 14 ; total, 6,000 chests, against 5,000 chests for the same period last year. The market had been quiet but firm, the gradually diminishing stock preventing any decline in prices, which for common teas were fully ¾d. per lb. above London quotations. Arrivals were very much falling off, the export to Europe to date showing a deficiency of nearly seven million lbs., the stock being two million lbs. less than last year's, so that the total deficiency in the crop from this port would be more than ten per cent. Green : There had been again a fair business doing, settlements being :—Teenkai, 3,500 half-chests at Tls. 23 to 28 ; Moyune, 7,000 do. at Tls. 22 to 28½ ; Fychow, 3,000 do. at Tls. 18 to 22¼ ; Shanghai, 500 do. at Tls. 19 ; total, 14,000 half-chests, against 9,000 half-chests for same period last year. The Celestial Empire says :—The market has been very steady, the large arrivals preventing any advance that the competition among the two or three large buyers might have caused. Intrinsically, Teas are extremely cheap, but it is doubtful whether, with a diminishing consumption at home, the supply will not be again too large for any prices to be absolutely safe. The arrivals to date are already above last year's and there is little likelihood of the total crop being less than last season's. In fact, if more buyers should enter the market, we should probably see a rise in rates here, which would be followed by the same increase of supply that upset our calculations last year. A considerable portion of recent settlements is going forward by sail.

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Westall, Galton and Co.'s Weekly Letter of Oct. 20 says :—A fair daily business has been transacted, a large proportion of the settlements being again for Colonial orders. Although no anxiety is displayed on the part of the buyers to operate for England, still the short supply, which is now inevitable, induces great firmness on the part of Teamen. It is fairly certain that the total yield of Congou will not exceed 640,000 to 650,000 chests, or 90,000 to 100,000 chests under that of last year. Congou : Prices have continued as last quoted. Souchongs : Some intrinsically very cheap teas of the lower grades have been taken for the Continent. Oolongs : Settlements have been on a basis of Tls. 13 short for fair cargo. Flowery Pekoes have been taken on favourable terms. Scented Teas were very cheap, and the crop was nearly exhausted. Quotations are :—Congou : Flavoury 11¼d.; good common to flavoury, 8¾d. to 11d.; dust to common, 6¼d. to 8¼d.; Souchong : Good to on fine, 1s. 2¼d. to 1s. 6d.; common to fair, 8¾d. to 1s. 1¾d.; broken leaf to common, 7¼d. to 8¼d.; Oolong, 1s. 0¼d. to 1s. 2¼d.; Flowery Pekoe : Common to good, 9¾d. to 2s. 0¼d.; Scented Orange Pekoe : Common, 11d. to 1s. 0½d.; dust, 6¾d.; Scented Caper, Common, 11¼d. to 1s. 0½d.

YOKOHAMA.—The inactivity reported in last advices had continued without abatement, and settlements had been on a large scale, some portion of them being still under inspection. Prices had showed little or no fluctuation, holders remaining very firm, though willing to do business at previous quotations. Supplies had been fully equal to the demand, and stocks showed a slight increase. Settlements :—Hanks, 1,350 bales ; Oshius and other sorts, 300 bales, total 1,650 bales. Settlements, from July 1 to date, 8,600 bales ; against corresponding, period—Season 1876-7, 15,200 ; 1875-6, 5,600 ; 1874-5, 4,800. Stocks 1,200 bales, against 2,200 bales, at same date last season. Silk-worm Eggs : Arrivals to date, 1,500,000 cards; against 950,000 last year ; and the settlements amounted to about 500,000 cards. Purchases had been actively made by most buyers, at gradually falling rates. Best cards were worth $0.35 to 0.45.

SHANGHAI.—Unusually large arrivals had taken place during the week, and only a very moderate business doing had combined to weaken holders. About 200 bales of market Tsatlees were purchased the day after last mail left at previous prices, and the only settlements reported since then had been about 100 bales of Cock and Worm chop at Tls. 460 for No. 3 (showing Tls. 20 per picul decline), and a few bales of S.S.S. chop at Tls. 405 (showing Tls. 10 decline), with some market Tsatlees at Tls. 369 to 395, and a small parcel of skeins at Tls. 250 per picul. The s.s. Saikio-Maru had sailed with 378 bales of re-reels for America—a good per-centage going forward on Chinese account—prices showed but little alteration, being on a basis of Tls. 420 per picul for fair market cargo. Stocks had increased considerably, and there were nearly 21,000 bales unsold on the market. Exports, including shipments by the present mail steamer, amounted to rather over 15,000 bales, against 55,000 last year, 40,000 in 1875, and 50,800 in 1874.

THE INDIAN AND CHINA MAIL SERVICES.

The Times prints the subjoined letter signed "Mercator," referring to the mail service to India and the Far East :—

The P. and O. Company is an institution of which Englishmen have reason to be proud, and the appeal which the directors make to their forty years' good conduct as giving them a claim to consideration when the India and China mail contract comes to be renewed in 1880 is unanswerable. India would not be like India without that familiar flag, the guarantee at once of regularity, safety, and efficiency. Nevertheless, times are changing, and somewhat rapidly, too, as the P. and O. directors have already found to their cost. The company has faced about since the opening of the Suez Canal in a masterly manner, having in these seven years converted a "postal into a commercial fleet," without interrupting for a single day any portion of a very complicated mail service. But there is no finality in this kind of reform, and the next question will perhaps be whether, to meet the requirements of the future, the process must now be reversed and the commercial be either supplanted or supplemented by a postal fleet. The demand is inexorable for increased speed and a more rigid economy of time in stoppages. The P. and O. ships are already outstripped in speed, not only by a rival mail line, but even by many of the trading steamers, and it has been clearly proved that a week might well be saved in the mail contract time to and from India, and ten days in the run to China. Instead of nine knots an hour, a minimum of twelve should be required of the boats carrying the Indian mails ; and, as an average speed of fourteen knots has been kept up on the voyage from China to London by more than one of the tea steamers, that would probably not be too much to exact from a heavily subsidised postal line. Considering how much time is consumed in transhipping cargo and in coaling at the various ports of call, the question arises whether a thoroughly efficient mail service is quite compatible with the carriage of 3,000 tons of heavy cargo by each steamer. Has the time not arrived when an express service for the conveyance of mails, passengers, specie, and parcels, paying high rates of freight, could be supported apart altogether from the heavy goods traffic ? There is no more important postal line in the world than that which connects England with India, and the shortening of the time of transit by a week would be well worth a handsome subsidy. Passenger traffic is increasing so fast all over the world that swift steamers, specially fitted and constructed for it, would always attract a full complement. Among the advantages which would accrue from the separation of passengers from cargo, not the least would be the increased freight-earning power of the cargo steamers themselves when relieved of the passenger arrangements, which at present encumber them, and of the necessity of subordinating the interests of shippers to the exigencies of the postal contract. These new steamers would of course have very large coal-carrying capacity, which would enable them to land their mails at such places as Aden without entering the harbour. Judging from analogous experience, the efficiency of both branches would be enhanced by the separation of the light from the heavy traffic, and there are probably no insurmountable difficulties in the way if the Government applies the needful pressure. No ship-owning company is so capable of inaugurating this new era of speed and comfort in ocean travelling as the P. and O. Company, for they would merely have to work on their own lines, and assert that pre-eminence in the future which the mail subsidy enabled them to maintain in the ante-Canal period."

Another correspondent, signing himself "A Merchant," writes as follows :—

In the letter signed "Mercator" it is stated that "an average speed of 14 knots has been kept up on the voyage from China to London by more than one of the tea steamers." The first steamer which arrived from Hankow last season has always been understood to have made the fastest passage on record. She left Woosung on the 25th of May, and arrived at Gravesend on the 3rd of July, the time occupied being thirty-nine days. The distance is 10,600 knots, and the speed is therefore under 11½ knots, instead of 14, as suggested by "Mercator."

The London & China Telegraph.

THIS MAIL'S NEWS.

The famine in the North continues to command the grave attention of the officials at Peking. It is described by a correspondent as being the one absorbing topic in the Capital; and, as already mentioned, the authorities have taken steps in their own way to mitigate its effects; but there seems no doubt that what has been done will prove completely inadequate for the object in view. A grant of Tls. 400,000 has been made for the distressed region, but it is feared that the money will again be offered to the famishing people, not as actual relief, but as a loan, to be repaid with interest on the first good year; 80,000 piculs of grain have also been ordered to be sent for the relief of the famine-stricken districts in Shansi and Honan. The grain, which is that under process of conveyance by Grand Canal to Peking, will, it is stated, probably be diverted from some point in Northern Shangtung, to its destination. The Authorities at Peking are taking extra precautions against robbers, and it is evidently feared that the distress so widely existing may lead to disturbances, actual want of food having always been of the chief causes of rebellions in China. From the new port of Wenchow intelligence is brought that the lekin has at last been fixed at 25 tael cents per chest on Tea less than the Customs Transit dues. It is expected that considerable quantities will come down to the port. Some very curious stories have come to hand concerning the manner in which the explorations for coal are being carried on upon the Upper Yangtsze, under the auspices of H.E. Li Hung-chang. They are conducted entirely in the accustomed Chinese fashion. The mining engineer who was lately imported from England for the work is, it seems, carted about from place to place by a posse of overbearing officials, who insist on his declaring coal to be found where none exists, and have actually suppressed his reports of outcrop in localities where it had suited them previously to declare that no coal was forthcoming. An extraordinary and somewhat painful case has been decided at Shanghai, where Mr. O. B. Bradford, who has for many years been known as United States Vice Consul, has been convicted of opening letters passing through the postal department of the Consulate, and sentenced to fine and imprisonment. The ceremony of closing the Woosung Railway is described in detail; it has produced a very strong feeling among foreigners generally, and apparently also among many of the natives, who regard it as a needless piece of obstructiveness. On the other hand, the telegraph between Taiwan and Takow is reported to be complete; and that messages are daily transmitted, so that progress seems to be made at least in some directions.

At Hong Kong the question of revising and consolidating the local ordinances—a measure long and urgently needed—has been again attracting attention. Legislative measures with regard to native doctors have been advocated. In Japan some discussion has taken place in the native papers with reference to a reported further issue of paper money by the Government.

From the Straits Settlements we learn that the new Governor of Singapore has held his first levee, which was largely attended. It is stated that Tunku Alum has been officially informed that the question of the succession to the government of Moar would be left to the decision of the chiefs and people. The Rajah and Ranee of Sarawak are on a visit to Singapore. A portion of the estate of the late Mr. James Clarke has been sold by auction, realising $34,839. The speech delivered by the King of Siam at his birthday reception is published. The drought in Java continues, and small-pox is prevalent at Batavia. Arrangements have been made for the allotment of land to Chinese who may take up their residence in Atchin. The commander of the steamer Lieut.-Gen. Kroesen, which was wrecked last year, has been sentenced to a term of imprisonment and a heavy fine.

THE NEW CHINESE LOAN.

As noticed under our "Commercial Intelligence," the Chinese Loan which has for some time past been spoken of is now announced, and we regret to find that upon this, as upon the last occasion of a China Loan, The Times has fallen into some serious errors with regard to it. It will be recollected that when the last Loan was announced that paper animadverted upon the slight information which we possess regarding the nature of the Chinese Customs' Revenue; but having apparently since that time discovered the existence of the quarterly and annual "yellow books," in which full particulars of the revenue from the Customs are published by Mr. HART, the Inspector-General, in English, and in almost the same form as our own Revenue Returns, it is now frank enough to admit that "as the Customs are collected at the Treaty ports by foreigners, and "with great regularity, it may be fairly assumed that the "security thus offered is as good as a Government like that "of China could possibly offer;" but while thus correcting its previous error, it unluckily falls into another, and throws doubts upon China continuing to permit foreigners to collect its revenue, especially if that country should not continue to be peaceably inclined. There is sufficient plausibility in this view to mislead anyone imperfectly acquainted with the facts; but we have no hesitation in saying that there is no more likelihood of the Foreign Inspectorate of Chinese Customs being abolished in China within the next seven years than there is of the Board of Trade being abolished here. During the whole period of our last war with China the duties continued to be collected under the Foreign Inspectorate (which was then by no means so thoroughly organised as at present) with perfect regularity; and the effect of the war as regards the finances of China was to further adjust the revenue from foreign trade so that it has steadily increased from that time both in bulk and in security; and there can be no doubt whatever that, were we unfortunately to become involved again in a war, the same result would be brought about. Hitherto, every war we have been compelled to engage in with China has not only had the effect, after a short time, of improving the internal condition of that country, but has rendered both foreign trade and the revenue which the Chinese derive from it, more secure, and this would undoubtedly be the result of such an event at the present time. It may be well to mention that the Inspectorate of Customs could not collect the duties on foreign goods without the security which is given to them by the ships' papers being retained by our own Consuls until a full receipt for duties is given by the Customs. Supposing the Chinese—which is in the highest degree unlikely—refused to recognise the bonds given as security for the Loan, in payment of duties as they agree to do, the Consuls could at once make it impossible for them to collect their revenue on foreign trade by the very simple expedient of clearing vessels without the "Grand Chop"—as the receipt from the Chinese Customs for the duties is called—a step which, under the circumstances supposed, and in time of war, they would hardly hesitate to adopt. It will, therefore, be seen at once that there is no such danger as our contemporary anticipates, and that the security given would be good even in the contingency of a war arising with China. At the same time, we cannot but share the regret which The Times expresses, that the Chinese should continue to expend so much in material for war, in place of using their utmost endeavours to improve the country by the introduction from Western countries of the arts of peace.

THE NEW GOVERNOR OF THE STRAITS.

BY the last mail we received intelligence that Sir WM. ROBINSON has landed at Singapore, and been welcomed in the Colony with a demonstration of heartiness and respect. Among other particulars, we learn that on the very day of Sir WILLIAM'S arrival he was waited upon by an influential deputation, selected from the Chinese community. It has never been our habit to take despondent views, or to play the untimely rôle of the croaker: we cordially concur in the words and wishes of those who told his Excellency, on his assumption of office, that they trusted fervently that a reign so auspiciously begun might prove an era of prosperity and good government to the Straits. Nevertheless, there is a season for speaking and a season for holding one's peace; the first Governor whom the Colonial-office ever sent out was greeted in Singapore with at least equal hope and equal enthusiasm, yet for lack of a little foresight and common sense he soon rendered himself odious, he disappointed all his adherents, he greatly increased the public expenditure, and did much damage in many other ways. But if the bitter experiences of Sir HARRY ORD'S régime were not ever present to give pause to the sanguine, the almost Macmahonite unwisdom which has marked, and still marks, the career of Mr. POPE HENNESSCY, who is already in trouble at Hong Kong, urges us, as hearty well-wishers to the Straits Settlements, to say a word at the outset of Sir WILLIAM ROBINSON'S administration in deprecation of any policy which shall irritate and injure the European community by undue preference of the natives. It is not to be supposed that we seek to recommend any harshness or unfairness in the treatment of Asiatics. As for the Chinese, they lack neither energy, influence, numbers, nor intelligence, and they may very well be trusted to look after their own interests; indeed, such is the strength they derive from combination, such their commercial aptitude, and such the local advantage which they manage to secure for themselves everywhere in the East, that in Hong Kong the complaint is that everything is rapidly passing into Chinese hands.

The same state of things has long prevailed at Saigon and there is a tendency in a similar direction at Singapore. Yet at Hong Hong a Governor too new to be acquainted with Chinese character and the real needs of his colony has adopted as his starting point, as the sole hinge on which his policy turns, the principle that every possible scheme must be unearthed and adopted which promises to be of special—nay, of exclusive—benefit to Chinamen Now this is just the course against which a true statesman —and we hope that Sir WILLIAM ROBINSON may prove himself worthy of that name—should steadily set his face. There is a familiar story of an astronomer who never looked at the moon except through his own telescope, until once a fly having accidentally found its way on to the object glass the man of science was enabled to announce to an astonished world that a monster was devouring the satellite.

This anecdote well illustrates the mischievous errors into which an Administrator may fall, who persists in looking only at one side of a question; taking a distorted view of the subject in hand through the dark and narrow tube of his own telescope, until at last he discovers evils which have no existence, and altogether loses the full bearing of the matter, however plainly that may be apparent to the world at large. In such a settlement as Singapore the Chinese must be considered, and the Malays must be considered, but so also must the Europeans; the Europeans Sir WILLIAM ROBINSON understands and knows, but he has had as yet little if any experience of those very peculiar, though very distinct, races, the Malays and the Chinese; and we would urge him therefore to be extremely cautious before he adopts any policy which may drift him from that which he knows to that which he does not know. Orientals are pre-eminently worldly-wise and preminently cunning; they are also experts in turning a superior's weak points to their own advantage, and this is why, however magnanimous, however praiseworthy, it may be in a ruler to wish to study the interests of the native races, and to grant every possible indulgence and concession to their wants and aspirations, yet a truly wise man will be careful how he makes too great a parade of the sentiment, or courts popularity by professions which will make him unpopular with one class and expose him to the intrigues of the other. An European Colony ought to be governed on principles which commend themselves to Europeans; Singapore is what it is because Europeans—not Asiatics—by their energy, enterprise, and capital have made it so; and perhaps therefore the European community may claim from their Governor the first consideration. But besides the Europeans there are in the Straits other and more mingled races, Malays, Chinese and Klings, to be cared for, and we cannot too strongly urge that the united interests of all these varied sections will be best promoted by a Governor who looks at the work in hand with vigilance indeed, but not from too narrow or too close a stand-point.

A knowledge of the natives is of course desirable, before premature innovations are attempted, but such knowledge should not be sought by mixing too freely with the native potentates, or by the unrestricted interchange of visits with the head-men and chiefs. Power and intelligence are not acquired by one who in such a case makes himself too cheap among the Asiatics whom he has to control: sectional interests by these means often seem unduly important, breadth of view is sacrificed, and real influence is undermined by the weakening effects of petty display. The men who have accomplished most in their time—the NAPOLEONS and the MOLTKES—are those who know how to sit aloof and observe. Themselves watchful, they take their measures, unbiassed in judgment, and from a distance, for the general good, employing subordinates, under the control of their own broad-reaching view, as instruments to carry out such operations as they may discern to be expedient. If we cannot hope that Sir WILLIAM ROBINSON will attain to the renown of a NAPOLEON or a MOLTKE, we can at least remind him of the career of one who sat in the seat where he now sits, and who by such wise policy as we have shadowed forth left a stainless and undying reputation behind him in the East—Sir STAMFORD RAFFLES.

THE P. AND O. MEETING.

THE state of the affairs of the P. and O. Company, as set forth by the Chairman's speech, and by the reply from Mr. SUTHERLAND, one of the Managing Directors, at the meeting held on the 4th instant, is in every way encouraging. It is manifest that the directors are steadily adhering to the policy which they set before themselves so soon as it became necessary to meet the competition, consequent upon the opening of the Suez Canal, and, further, that they are doing so successfully. Old vessels, no longer suited to the requirements of the trade, are being disposed of, and new ones specially adapted to the traffic, as it at present exists, substituted for them, while in every department care is being exercised to meet the requirements both of shippers and of passengers. The explanations which were made with reference to the reserve account and to the depreciation fund were entirely satisfactory. It can be easily understood that in providing for "writing off" depreciation in a fleet such as that of the P. and O. the exact rate at which this should be allowed for may be under-calculated, and the directors have acted wisely in taking the opportunity of a favourable year to appropriate a further sum for this purpose, so that the value at which the fleet is taken has been reduced by £493,000 during the financial year. The nature of the insurance and depreciation fund was clearly explained by the speakers at the table The Company has to provide a double kind of insurance, one against the loss of vessels by accident, and the other against their loss by wear and tear, or, as it was put, their dying of old age. It is with respect to this latter that it is most difficult to make an accurate estimate; but we find from the statement made by Mr. SUTHERLAND, that five per cent. annually is now credited for depreciation to each vessel, and that the Directors have taken care to err, if anything, on the side of overestimating the losses for the future. By the arrangement now in force each vessel stands at the end of twenty years to cost nothing, and if then sold, the whole proceeds would be in the nature of profits. This explanation ought to be sufficient to entirely reassure any who may have been disturbed by the rumours which have been so industriously set on foot with regard to this matter, and to satisfy even the most critical that the Board have not been afraid to face the altered circumstances of the Company of late years and to make ample provision to meet them. The change which has been made was aptly described as that of making the fleet a commercial instead of a postal one, as it was in its origin. With respect to the contract for the mails, some further information was forthcoming, the most important of which was that the statement made in Parliament with regard to putting the contract up to tender was made not on the Government's own motion, but in reply to a question put by a member. In fact, there is nothing new in connection with the subject, or more than everyone knew would arise in the ordinary routine when the present contract fell in; and there seems to be every reason to believe that the P. and O. Company will continue to receive it, as it would be to run a risk which could not be considered justifiable in the public interests, to accept an untried company against one upon whom the Government know from an experience of forty years they can entirely rely. We can confidently say that the public would not feel satisfied were so important a postal contract given to a less efficient Service, and as to the idea of engaging the services of the Messageries Company, the only one which could be relied upon from actual experience, one consideration alone is sufficient to negative this, the simple fact that by so doing the mail communication with India and China would at once be rendered fortnightly instead of weekly. In addition to this consideration it would be something new for the English Government to assist a foreign company to directly compete with English shipping interests. Such an idea would, we imagine, certainly not be seriously entertained. It was, we think, aptly pointed out that the payment for conveying the mails is erroneously spoken of as a "subsidy," as it is not granted with a view to starting a particular business or traffic, but simply as fair remuneration for the service which is rendered. It is also satisfactory that the directors have recognised the necessity of taking some steps to improve the cuisine and comfort of the vessels. The matter has often been spoken of, and the Board admit that there is room for improvement, and that steps are being taken to meet the public taste in every way. If in addition to this amelioration some reduction could be made in the passage-money—which still stands rather high even for the safety and certainty as to time of the mail steamers—the P. and O. would certainly be in a position to look with perfect calmness upon all conceivable competition. In the meantime, however, they continue to stand well with the public, and the passenger traffic has increased. The receipts this year have been rendered exceptionally large by specie shipments, and a larger dividend would have been payable than 4½ per cent. but for the substantial sum which has been carried to reserve. It may be hoped, however, notwithstanding the continued depression of the Eastern trade, that the future returns will be favourable, and so soon as this is the case, there is no doubt that the large reductions in expenditure which have been made will enable the directors to again get the dividend up to a higher figure.

Mr. Hart, Inspector-General of Customs, is the President of the Chinese Commission for the Paris Exhibition. Messrs. Glover, Detring, and Bredon, Commissioners of Customs, are preparing the collection in China, and Messrs. J. H.Hart, J. D. Campbell and A. Novion, Commissioners of Customs form a Committee on this side. The Count de Sombreuil, who has been appointed Secretary to the Commission, is expected to arrive from China by the next French mail, and will be followed by some Chinese mechanics and workmen, who will constitute the construction staff for the installation of the exhibits in the Palace of the Champs de Mars, and for the erection of a Chinese Pavilion in the Park of the Trocadero, the parts of which will all have been completed in China, and will only have to be fitted on arrival. This will be interesting, inasmuch as it will be the first building of Chinese type erected on European soil. The Japanese Mission for the Exhibition has, as we have already noticed, arrived in Paris. The head of the Commission is Mr. Meida, who is thoroughly European in education and habits.

The appointments of Sir William Cleaver Francis Robinson, K.C.M.G. (lately Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of Western Australia and its dependencies), to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Straits Settlements and their dependencies; and of Major-General Sir Henry St. George Ord, K.C.M.G., C.B. (lately Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Straits Settlements and their dependencies), to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Colony of Western Australia and its dependencies, were gazetted on the 4th inst.

In our present issue we publish the memorial with reference to the Chefoo Convention, which, as we mentioned some time back, has been forwarded by the representatives of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce here to the Earl of Derby. The memorialists endeavour to bring before the Government the views enunciated by the Shanghai Chamber in their letter of June 15 this year, with such modifications as are rendered necessary by the publication of S Thomas Wade's Memorandum.

Correspondence.

THE CHEFOO CONVENTION.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

Sir,—Mr. Hanbury states in his letter to you that he did not comprehend your construing the wording of the Chefoo Agreement to mean "that manufactured goods are to be placed in a worse position than under the present treaty."

The Convention (sec. III. p. 1.) states, "With reference to the area within which according to the treaties in force lekin ought not to be collected on foreign goods at the open ports, Sir Thos. Wade agrees to move his Government to allow the ground rented by foreigners (the so-called concessions) at the different ports to be regarded as the area of exemption from lekin."

These words are plain enough, and simply mean that Sir Thos. Wade recognises in the Convention that foreign goods (that is manufactured as well as others) are not exempt from lekin outside the limits of the concessions.

Mr. Hanbury did good service by consulting H.E. Kuo, the Chinese Minister, who actually authorises him to state that "no increase of any sort of tax on manufactured goods is contemplated under the Chefoo Convention by the Chinese Government."

The admission is satisfactory, as if it is to be accepted, the Convention as regards this point simply means nothing, seeing that the Chinese are recognised as being at full liberty to collect as much lekin or any other inland tax they like upon opium, the moment it is outside the limits of the settlements. What the Chinese officials are really driving at is to obtain our assistance to collect that lekin in the settlements, though they commence by stating it is not to be collected upon "goods" in the settlements, and H.E. Kuo now tells us "goods" does not mean manufactures, so that it must necessarily mean opium—as there are only two classifications of imports in regard to lekin, opium on the one hand, and all other goods on the other.

I can only point out in conclusion that H.E. Kuo is not "Head quarters," any more than the British Minister in China is the Foreign-office; and that even if Prince Kung himself had given the assurance, which Kuo is said to have given, to Mr. Hanbury, we should hardly be safe in acting upon it.—Yours faithfully,

A China Merchant.

"THE TIMES" ON THE NEW CHINA LOAN.

We have received a prospectus which is of a more astonishing character than any we have seen for a long time. It is for a Chinese Imperial Government Loan to the amount of £1,604,276. The bonds are to bear interest at the rate of 8 per cent., the issue price is £98, and they are redeemable by a sinking fund of £229,200 per annum within seven years. The loan is secured on the Customs duties of sundry ports in China, and the Chinese officials will give bonds to the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, which issues the loan, for the amount due as interest and amortisation, these bonds to be receivable in payment of Customs duties at maturity. As the Customs are collected at the treaty ports by foreigners and with great regularity, it may be fairly assumed that the security thus offered is as good as a Government like that of China could possibly offer, and on that score nothing need be said. If China continues to permit foreigners to collect her Customs, and if she remains at peace with us, the debt may be paid. Of course, however, we have no security that China will remain peaceably disposed,and an almost absolute certainty that this money will be used solely for the purpose of perfecting the fighting capacity of the Empire. If there is one thing on which a powerful, if not a controlling, section of the Chinese official class is bent more than another, it is the stifling of every foreign enterprise. This loan cannot, therefore, by any possibility be treated as an industrial one; it is neither more nor less than a furnishing of the Chinese with the means of creating strife and bloodshed. Could its issuers point to one foreign enterprise of promise tolerated within the Empire, to one undoubted mark of a liberal tendency in the Chinese Government, there might be a shade of an excuse for launching a loan like this in London; but as matters stand the invitation to subscribe is nothing short of an insult to English common sense. It will be time enough for the Chinese to carry on the practice of borrowing here when they have heartily opened their country to foreign enterprise, when they have ceased to hate railways and to try to hustle the foreign merchant out of the country. We should like to know whether it be true that they have at present large orders for artillery under execution in this country. That, at least, is the only reason we can hear of for this issue, and we have had the subject for some time under our notice.

Monetary and Commercial.

The prospectus of the Chinese Imperial Government Loan has been issued, and the full particulars will be found in our Advertising columns. We have on several occasions called attention to this loan, and all information that has come to our knowledge confirms the opinion that it is based upon the most satisfactory security.

Telegrams advise the failure of Messrs. Dodd and Co., of Amoy; also that two firms in Japan, one at Yokohama and one at Nagasaki, are in difficulties.

The tone of the Tea market during the week has been towards increasing firmness, but business has been checked by the strong views of holders. About 1d. per lb. advance may be noted, and the home trade seem somewhat astonished at the altered position which importers have taken as compared with the forced business of the past four or five months, though the present reaction is what we have predicted for some time past as certain to arise when the falling off in shipments became practically felt. The present lull is on the whole somewhat welcome to the trade, who have been kept incessantly at work since July wading through the innumerable samples which have been thrown on the market since the season opened. The latest postal advices from the northern tea ports show that the cessation of shipments has not been brought about by any absence of willingness to buy on the part of the foreign merchants, but from the native dealers having determined to bring no more teas down from the country, and so encourage foreigners to continue a course which could not but have resulted in further serious losses to all but the producers. The few sales which have been made the last day or two show a decidedly advancing tendency, and as the arrivals to come forward will be on a very limited scale for some time to come, buyers will have to choose from the stock on hand, which, seeing the enormous deliveries going on, is by no means excessive. Already for the first six days of this month the deliveries have been on an unprecedented scale, export being credited with a larger proportion than usual.

During the week ended the 1st inst. the total quantity of tea delivered from the bonded warehouses in London showed a reduction of 327,336 lbs., or about 8¼ per cent. as compared with the preceding week, the total being 3,664,708 lbs., of which 2,217,817 lbs. was for home consumption, 759,536 lbs. was removed coastwise, 594,293 lbs. was exported, 90,240 lbs. was sent coastwise for exportation, and 2,822 lb. was for ships' stores. There was at the same time a decrease of £3,245, or 5½ per cent. in the total amount of duty received, the respective figures being £55,445 and £58,690.

Business in Silk during the past week has generally continued to have an upward tendency, and prices of Japans are decidedly firmer. The aspect is good, and there is no doubt that nothing but an improvement in respect to political affairs on the Continent, and especially in France, is required to impart a much firmer and more active tone to the market.

In the Produce Markets there has been no improvement during the week, dulness being still the prevailing feature. Coffee is less active, and a portion of the recent advance has been lost. The Sugar market continues extremely quiet; brown China has been sold at 14s. 3d., crystallised Penang at 25s. 6d. to 26s. Rice is still very dull, and scarcely any business has been done. Black Pepper is steady, but quiet; White is slightly lower. A slight advance has been realised for Gambier afloat. Tin is again lower; Straits is quoted £66 10s. to £67, Banca £69, Billiton £67 per ton. Other articles are without alteration.

There seems still to be little prospect of any improvement in the general tone of trade at the great commercial centres; and the accounts are the same as those almost stereotyped for months past. In Manchester, though a little more business has been done for China, the general tone of the market remains dull and depressed, and the trade at large, both buyers and sellers, are looking eagerly in all directions for brighter prospects, yet without being able to discern any encouraging signs. From Huddersfield, Leeds, Nottingham and Belfast the latest advices report continued dulness.

The tone of the Piece Goods market, as connected with China, has been somewhat firmer, with fairly large transactions. The metal market continues in the same dull state as reported last week, there being no encouragement to ship hence until stocks in China become reduced from their present redundant state.

The traffic receipts of the Eastern Extension Telegraph Company for the month of November amounted to £20,794, and to £18,786 for the corresponding period of 1876; increase, £2,008. The Eastern Telegraph Company's receipts for November amounted to £38,439, and to £35,485 in the corresponding period of 1876. The Great Northern Telegraph Company's receipts in November were £18,206, and the total receipts from Jan. 1 to Nov. 30, were, 1877, £190,863; 1876, £194,489; 1875, £151,224.

The National Provincial Bank of England notify the payment of a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum and a bonus of 6 per cent., together equal to a distribution at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum, being the same as the distribution at this time last year.

There has been no general demand for Bar Silver for India, but for the Continent orders have been received, and transactions have been completed at prices varying from 54d. to 54¼d.; there are no inquiries at the close, and the market is consequently quiet, and we give the price as 54⅛d. to 54¼d. per oz. nearest. Mexican Dollars have been sold at 52¾d. per oz., and the market is now cleared of this coin.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Arthur Capel and Co.'s Circular says:—The repeated advices of probable short export from China has induced importers to hold with more firmness, whilst there has sprung up a general inquiry for common kinds of Congou, resulting in an advance of ¼d. to ½d. per lb., both exporters and the home trade being buyers. The medium kinds have also been rather more in request by private contract, as the public sales this week have been very small, especially of Congou. Prices show some improvement on the low rates recently current. Good to fine kinds show no change. Indian Teas have been much depressed, and the sales this week have gone at lower prices for all but finest grades. Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings have sold rather higher; fair to good common have sold from 8d. to 8¼d. per lb., being ¼d. to ½d. per lb. dearer; fair and medium kinds have met with more inquiry, and prices are rather better. Good Kaisow kinds have been asked for at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d. per lb.; fine to finest show no material change. In Pak Lin kinds there has not been much doing. Black-leaf kinds: Siftings remain much as before; fair to good common have been in demand, and prices are ¼d. per lb. higher; fair kinds are also in rather better request; fair to good medium have sold rather higher where any demand has arisen; good to fine are steady at previous prices; finest have been rather more saleable. New-make kinds: Common have sold from 7½d. to 8¼d. per lb fair 9d. to 11d. per lb., good from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 5d., showing firm rates Oolongs: Amoy kinds remain much as before; fine to finest Formosa kinds are firm. Souchongs are without alteration, the demand being moderate. Scented Teas.—Canton Capers: Common continue in demand up to 9d. per lb.; fair to good kinds are dull of sale at previous rates. Orange Pekoes show no change, the demand being still inactive. Foochow Capers have sold lower, but Orange Pekoes at about previous prices. Green Teas.—Ping Suey kinds have sold at the decline last quoted. Moyune kinds remain steady, except that Young Hysons sold ¼d. per lb. lower. The public sales have again been small, comprising only 5,365 packages offered without reserve.

Mr. D. D. Lewin's Market Résumé says:—There is still much depression in our market. Business privately, during the past month, must be characterised as having been of a very dragging and unsatisfactory nature; there has, however, been a little animation in low class Congous (both Black and Red Leafs), taken mostly for export, which has stiffened prices, establishing an advance of quite ¼d. per lb., and the market being comparatively bare of these descriptions, little can now be had under 8d. Other kinds up to 10d. have also slightly improved in sympathy, but better qualities show little quotable change. Public sales show a considerable falling off, and this feature, coupled, with the prospect of small stocks and a lessened export from China, it may fairly be expected will tend to further harden prices. In Indian Teas the sales have been heavy, and the demand not being brisk, a corresponding reduction in values has taken place.

Messrs. Layton and Co. report as follows on the public sale of Thursday:—4,040 packages sold on the day of sale, "without reserve," as under: 507 chests Congou, at 9½d. to 1s. 1d.; 1,162 half-chests ditto, at 8d. to 10⅞d.; 255 boxes Scented Caper, at 10½d. to 1s. 0½d.; 124 half-chests Gunpowder, 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 11d.; 52 half-chests Imperial, at 7d. to 9½d.; 152 half-chests Young Hyson, at 6½d. to 1s. 4d.; 33 half-chests Hyson, at 8½d. to 1s. 2½d.; 24 cases Gunpowder, at 2s. 9⅞d. to 2s. 10d.; 24 cases Imperial, at 1s. 6½d.; 20 cases Hyson, at 2s. 1d.; 1,474 boxes Gunpowder, at 9d. to 1s. 6½d.; 212 boxes Young Hyson, at 1s. 0⅞d. to 1s. 1½d. per lb.

SILK.

Messrs. Waithman and Co.'s Circular says:—The market was kept in an unsettled state during the month of November by the aspects of political affairs on the Continent, but on the whole a fair current business was done. In China Silk there were no important fluctuations in prices; but Japans were decidedly easier at the beginning of the month, though subsequently a large business was transacted, and prices recovered, without enabling us, however, to quote any advance upon the rates of our last Circular. In Canton Silk also a fair business has been done, and prices are firm, this class of silk being still in moderate request. The total deliveries for November are on a parity with those of October, yet show an important increase in Japans counterbalanced by a decrease in Chinas. The imports of all classes for the past month are 3,704 bales, against 14,766 for the corresponding month of last year.

Messrs. Durant and Co.'s Circular says:—The market during the month of November may be reported to have been in a fitful state, a little worse or a little better, as views alternated as to probable issues of political uncertainties. Contrary to the course of things in the two previous months, the earlier days were the most depressed. The arrivals showing generally decent profits, and some importers being anxious to realise, business was done at reduced prices, both in China and Japan Silk, but as the month progressed the reduction was almost entirely regained in China Silk, and prices may now be quoted nearly as at the best moment. In Japan Silk, although in increased favour, the rally has not been so decided, and prices are still 1s. below the highest scale of October. In the meantime our quotations for European Silk show a considerable advance. The doings in China Silk continue to be confined chiefly to the lower qualities of Tsatlee; indeed, little else has come forward this season. Canton Silk has attracted some attention, but, as in China Silk, the business done has been chiefly in the lower classes. The deliveries in aggregate are about identical with those of October, but the figures show some variation in the different classes.

Messrs. Arles, Dufour, and Co.'s Lyons Circular, dated 1st inst., says :—Notwithstanding the persistence of our political crisis, our market throughout the past month has been very fairly active. Once or twice when the political position looked worse there was a pause in the demand, but these checks were of short duration, and buyers soon resumed their purchases. The demand has especially favoured Chinas and Japans, the former at steady prices, and the latter, which were comparatively cheaper, with a slight advance. For Europeans, and particularly for Throwns, the tendency has been upwards, but the demand less general than for Asiatics. During the last few days the political crisis having reached its climax, business has been less active, prices remain, however very firm, as holders anticipate a near settlement of the impending question. In Piece Goods orders placed have not been so important as might be expected at this time of the season ; still manufacturers, having lightened their stocks, have been supplying themselves with raw material in the hopes that the solution of the political difficulty would call forth more important orders from Paris and London houses which have not yet operated.

Messrs. Richardson and Son's New York Circular, dated Nov. 21, says :—Business in Raw Silk during the past month has been rather inactive, and consequently unsatisfactory. Prices generally have been fairly maintained, but are somewhat easier for Cantons, the supply of which was more liberal than that of suitable Chinas. Manufacturers have bought only for their actual wants, as there has been no improvement in demand for their goods, which improvement cannot now be expected before the middle of January. Japans have been received to a moderate extent, and good qualities have not been difficult to sell.

CHINA STRAW PLAIT.—At auction the large supply of 742 bales met a good demand, and about 450 bales found buyers at the sales. White, coarse wide to medium £9 7s. 6d. to £13, good medium to good £13 5s. to £16 15s., fine narrow £18 to £20 15s., a few lots superior £22 15s. to £23, cord edge sorts £14 15s. to £23 15s. Mottled £7 7s. 6d. to £13 10s., cord edge and other fine £14 10s. to £18 10s., coloured, black and white, single £13 10s. to £17 5s., brown and white £9 to £10 10s. per bale.

CHINA PRESERVES.—At auction of 696 cases Ginger offered 360 cases Chyloong (large jars) sold at 7d., and 50 cases Mansing at 5¼d., being steady ; 60 cases Chow Chow bought in at 5¼d., 20 casks Cumquats sold at 3¼d. to 3½d., 46 cases ditto bought in at 6½d. per lb.

HEMP.—Although the market for Manila remains dull the moderate supply at the periodical auctions, chiefly damaged, was mostly disposed of without change in value. Of 1,205 bales offered 800 bales sold, the bulk consisting of damaged, first-class, fair to good at £24 10s. to £26, sound fair current £26, good fair Cebu £26 10s., and white Quilot (30 bales) £28 15s. to £29 10s.

HIDES.—At the public sales Singapore and Penang Ox and Cow were fairly competed for, but late prices for heavy averages could not be obtained by ¼d. per lb. No Rangoon offered. The supply of China was again very small, and those sold brought late rates. Singapore and Penang sold light average 6 to 7½ lbs. seconds 8¾d., thirds 5½d. heavy average 8½ to 9½ lbs., seconds 6½d. extra, unassorted 6.l. to 6¾d. Of 2,461 China offered, 1,052 sold ; light and heavy, average 9⅛ to 14 lb. 7¼d.; extra heavy, average 22⅞ lb. 7⅞d. per lb. Buffalo : Singapore and Penang were in fair supply, met a good demand, and fully maintained previous values. Bombay and Kurrachee were only partly sold at a decline. Of 7,551 Singapore and Penang offered, 6,400 sold; fair to good, first heavy, average 33¼ lb. 5⅝d.; ordinary to fair, first heavy, average 30⅛ to 33¼ lb. 5¼d. to 5⅝d.; second heavy, average 29 to 32½ lb. 4⅜d. to 4⅞d.; first light, average 11⅞ to 14½ lb. 6d. to 6½d.; second light, average 11⅞ to 12⅞ lb. 5½d. to 5⅞d.; thirds 4d. per lb.

JAPAN WAX.—90 boxes saucers bought in at 50s.

PLUMBAGO.—At auction of 180 barrels Ceylon offered about 100 barrels sold, mixed earthy to fair dust 8s. 9d. to 9s. 6d.

SUGAR.—Only a limited inquiry has prevailed, and sales have been very small, but prices are unchanged. On the 30th ult. privately 500 bags low China were sold at 14s. 3d. On the 3rd inst. 2,000 bags brown China sold at 14s. 3d. On the 4th in auction of 1,539 bags grocery crystallised Penang 950 bags greyish sold at 25s. 6d. to 26s., being lower. The floating cargo per Shakespeare, 4,303 baskets Java, No. 14½, sold at 25s. 6d. for the Clyde. On the 6th 600 bags grainy grocery Penang sold at 25s. 9d. In auction 8,287 bags China were bought in, fine brown at 18s., fair brown at 16s. 6d. Since the sale 4,500 bags have been sold at 16s. 6d. per cwt.

GENERAL SHIPPING NEWS.

LOSS OF THE TELEGRAPH STEAMER "HIBERNIA."—The Western and Brazilian Telegraph Company have received a telegram announcing that the steamship Hibernia, belonging to the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company, was totally wrecked in Maranham Bay on the 22nd ult. All hands were saved. The Hibernia had on board cable for the repair of the Western and Brazilian Company's Para-Pernambuco section. The cable is fully insured, and steps will be immediately taken to replace it. The Hibernia was a screw steamer of over 3,000 tons gross, and classed double A1. She was built at Jarrow, in 1861, by Messrs. Palmer and Co., her dimensions being—length, 360 ft.; breadth, 40 ft.; depth of hold, 29 ft. The steamer was insured for £60,000, and the cable on board for £80,000.

THE Union Company's steamer European, which left the Cape of Good Hope on the 13th ult., has been lost off Cape Ushant. The captain telegraphs that the passengers and crew were saved. The place where the disaster occurred appears to have been in the immediate neighbourhood of the spot where the mail str. Byne, from the Brazils, was lost in August, 1875. The European was one of the largest steamers of the Union Company's fleet, being over 2,200 tons (gross); was built at Glasgow, by the eminent firm of Napiers, in 1869. Her dimensions are as follows:—Length, 307 feet; breadth 37 feet; depth 27 feet. She is classed A 1 at Lloyd's.

THE steamer City of Berlin, from San Francisco, with the Sydney mail, being some days overdue, a premium of from thirty guineas to thirty-five guineas has been paid on her at Lloyd's. Forty-five guineas has been paid upon the Balcarry, from Ceylon, which left St. Helena on Sept. 16. The Punjaub, from Japan, is considerably overdue, and thirty guineas have been paid on her at Lloyd's. There are other vessels from China and Japan making long passages.

THE lock-out of the ironworkers employed in the shipbuilding trade of the Clyde is at an end. The men, after being idle several months, return to work on the understanding that the question of wages shall be considered six months hence.

TONITE, OR COTTON POWDER.

THE SAFEST, STRONGEST, AND CHEAPEST OF ALL EXPLOSIVES.

Recommended to MINERS, PIT SINKERS, QUARRYMEN, and CONTRACTORS as the MOST EFFICIENT and ECONOMICAL BLASTING AGENT ever invented.

Results of practical experience show a saving of from 15 to 20 per cent. over the strongest explosives previously in use.

It saves labour in drilling holes, as a less number of holes are needed.

It does not require thawing, but is ready for use at all temperatures and in all climates.

It can also be advantageously used in breaking up boulders, extracting stumps, removing wrecks, exploding torpedoes, and for submarine purposes in general, as well as for signal lights and fog signals for ships.

CHINESE IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT LOAN OF 1877,

FOR £1,604,276 0s. 10d. STERLING,

Authorised by Imperial Edict, dated the 2nd day of the Ninth Moon, of the III. year of the Emperor Kwong-Su (8th October, 1877).

In Bonds of £100 each, bearing Interest from 1st January, 1878, at 8 per cent. per annum, Payable 28th February and 31st August.

THE BONDS ARE REDEEMABLE AT PAR WITHIN SEVEN YEARS (1884) BY HALF-YEARLY DRAWINGS.

Principal and Interest payable in London in Sterling, or in Hong Kong or Shanghai at the Exchange of the day.

Principal and Interest secured by Charges on the Customs Duties of the principal Treaty Ports of China.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE 98 PER CENT.

The Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, 31, Lombard-street, London, invite Subscriptions for £1,604,276 0s. 10d. of 8 per cent. Bonds of the Chinese Imperial Government at the price of £98 per cent., payable as follows:—

£10	per cent.	on	Application
10	„	„	Allotment
78	„	„	10th January, 1878
£98

The Bonds will bear interest at the rate of £8 per cent. per annum, payable half-yearly, on 28th February and 31st August, at the Offices of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, in London in Sterling, and in Hong Kong or Shanghai at the Exchange of the day. The first Coupon, for £1 6s. 8d. (being the interest from 1st January, 1878, to 28th February, 1878), will be payable on 28th February, 1878. Thereafter, Coupons for each six months' interest, namely, £4, will be payable on 31st August and 28th February in each year.

The Bonds will be redeemed at par within Seven years (1884) by Thirteen half-yearly Drawings of £114,600 each, payable 28th February and 31st August, the first Drawing being payable 28th February, 1878, and the balance, £114,476 0s. 10d., being paid off 14th June, 1884.

The Drawings will take place in London, in December and June in each year, and the drawn Bonds will be paid off at par on the succeeding 28th February and 31st August, after which dates interest on the Bonds so drawn will cease.

The Loan has been authorised by an Imperial Edict, dated the 8th day of October, 1877, which has been communicated to the British Legation at Peking, according to a despatch from the British Consul, Shanghai, dated 20th October, 1877.

The Loan, principal and interest, is specially secured by the hypothecation of the Imperial Maritime Customs' Revenue of the Ports of Shanghai, Canton, Ningpo and Hankow—the Ports which have the largest Customs' Revenue of the Empire—to the extent necessary for the due payment of interest and repayment of principal of the said Loan.

The total Customs' Revenue at the Ports named, for the past three years, have averaged £2,005,500 per annum, and the total Customs' Revenue for the same period at all the Ports in China have averaged £3,560,000 per annum.

The existing indebtedness of the Imperial Government charged against the Customs' Revenue, including the amount still outstanding of the Chinese Imperial Government Loan 1874-76, amounts to £894,150. The amounts of the outstanding Loans, and of the present Loan, are therefore together about £2,500,000, or a little over two-thirds of one year's Customs' Revenue. The payments both of interest and principal on account of previous Loans have been duly and punctually met by the Chinese Government.

The special hypothecation of Customs' Revenue to meet the charge of the present Loan is constituted by the deposit in China with the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation of Customs' Bonds, signed by the Chinese authorities of the respective Provinces in which the Ports referred to are situated, and by the European Commissioners at the same Ports, which Bonds will be held by the Bank in trust for the holders of this Loan. These Customs' Bonds will be available at maturity, in payment of Chinese Customs' Duties.

Applications in the annexed form, accompanied by a deposit of £10 per cent., will be received by the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, 31, Lombard-street, London; also at their offices in Hong Kong and Shanghai, where subscription lists are opened.

Default in payment of any instalment at the due date will render all previous payments liable to forfeiture.

If no allotment is made the deposit will be returned in full, and if only a portion of the amount applied for is allotted, the balance of the deposit will be applied towards the payment of the amount due on Allotment.

Scrip Certificates to Bearer will be issued against Allotment Letters and Bankers' Receipts, and Bonds to Bearer, when ready, will be exchanged for fully paid-up Scrip.

Forms of Application can be obtained of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, 31, Lombard-street, E.C., and of Messrs. Panmure Gordon and Co., Stock Brokers, Hatton-court, Threadneedle-street, E.C.

31, Lombard-street,
London, 7th December, 1877.

The Subscription List will be closed on or before the 15th instant.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

MEMORIAL TO LORD DERBY ON THE CHEFOO CONVENTION.

We subjoin the full text of the Memorial from the London Representatives of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce to the Earl of Derby, with reference to the Chefoo Convention :—

MY LORD,

1. With reference to the conversation we had recently with your Lordship respecting the Chefoo Convention, we have now the honour to place before you, in a more formal shape, the views which we believe to be entertained by the Mercantile Communities of China on the subject. The letter from the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, already submitted to your Lordship, disposes of most of the points raised in the Agreement ; but since it was written an important explanatory memorandum by his Excellency Sir Thomas Wade, together with a voluminous correspondence, has been presented to Parliament.

2. A careful perusal of these papers leads us to the conclusion that they do not, in any material respect, detract from the significance of the comments which are made in the above-named letter, while, in one very important particular, they give new force to the objections which the Chamber ventured to urge, namely, in its bearing on the Yunnan Outrage.

3. We need scarcely say that the Shanghai Chamber, feeling this to be a matter of Imperial concern, only indirectly affecting the interests of trade, deemed that it would, in any case, be safe in the hands of Her Majesty's Government, and therefore passed the subject over with little remark.

4. This view was in harmony with the fact, as shown by the published Blue-books, that your Lordship, in the despatches transmitted to Peking, more than once cautioned his Excellency Sir Thomas Wade against committing the country to a settlement until the terms to be agreed upon had been submitted for the approval of Her Majesty's Government ; though, for reasons which he sets forth in his despatches, his Excellency, in the event, took upon himself the responsibility of bringing the negotiations to a close without reference home.

5. Taking this circumstance into consideration, and bearing in mind that as the settlement arrived at involves the question of the sanctity of the lives of our countrymen in China, and thus goes to the root of all commercial as well as official relations in Eastern countries, we trust that your Lordship will not consider it to be one altogether beyond the province of the representatives of our trading interests in China.

6. In that country, it must be remembered, we are but a handful of men, sojourning among a people, friendly it is true in themselves, but at the mercy of treacherously disposed officials ; and our great security is to be found in our prestige– in other words, the full conviction on the part of the Chinese that "no one can harm us with impunity." The charm of this cheap, but effective protection, has been sadly dissipated of late years, the last great shock it received being the Tientsin massacre of 1870, the instigators of which, who were well known officials, escaped, not only punishment, but even trial.

7. The Yunnan affair makes matters in this direction still worse in some important respects. For a time, indeed, it appeared as if the tragedy would afford an opportunity of, to some extent, restoring our prestige. After many months' negotiations, an English officer was despatched to the scene of the crime to investigate the affair. So far, however, as getting at the criminals was concerned, the Grosvenor Mission proved a fiasco ; and, indeed, the published correspondence shows that its failure was almost a foregone conclusion in his Excellency Slr Thomas Wade's mind before the Mission was despatched.

8. The fact that the real criminal, of whose identity his Excellency Sir Thomas Wade had no doubt, Tsên-Yü-Yang, Acting Governor of Yunnan, was appointed to the Commission, was enough in itself to show that we were being trifled with. The stale trick of palming off as the guilty parties a number of misérables who had no concern in the murder did not, however, deceive the Hon. Mr. Grosvenor, who returned from Yunnan at once baffled and disgusted.

9. It is to be noted that four times at least, and probably oftener, during the negotiations, his Excellency Sir Thomas Wade threatened to have Tsên brought up for trial, but the threat was never carried out. The Chinese Government were very much alarmed for a few days, while under apprehension of the withdrawal of the British Legation, and would probably have brought Tsên up for trial, or done anything else absolutely necessary to avert unpleasant consequences.

10. Instead, however, of maintaining the position he had thus taken up, his Excellency waived the whole of his demands concerning the trial of the criminals, and concluded the Chefoo Convention.

11. This Agreement disposes of the Yunnan affair by stipulating for certain facilities for travelling and trading in the Yunnan Province, a money compensation for Mr. Margary's family, a letter of regret from the Imperial Government of China, and a memorial to the Throne from the Grand Secretary, Li-Hung-Chang, explaining the settlement of the Margary outrage. Very great importance was attached to this latter document, the draft of which was submitted to his Excellency Sir Thomas Wade before presentation or publication.

12. This Memorial is now printed in the Blue-book, page 67 ; and it seems strange that his Excellency should have allowed a document containing such a perversion of the facts to appear with his imprimatur. The pretended trial and sentence of the savages, denounced by his Excellency Sir Thomas Wade as a most impudent attempt to play with us, is here solemnly detailed ; and the guilt of these ignorant people said to be established to the satisfaction of Chinese law, while our Minister is represented as interceding for them and staying the execution on the following fanciful grounds :—

I. That the evidence against the men was not so complete as would procure a conviction at the Old Bailey.

II. Because Western civilisation teaches that security for the future is better than punishment for the past.

13. Thus the British Minister is made to vouch before the Chinese nation and the world for statements which he had previously stigmatised as falsehoods.

14. If, nevertheless, it is thought that a point has been gained by the precedent which has been established for holding investigations by English officers on the spot where offences have been committed, it must at the same time be borne in mind that if such investigations be attended with so little inconvenience to the guilty parties as the present one, they will cause no great terror to Chinese official criminals. Proclamations and exploring facilities have doubtless their value ; but they can weigh little against the actual facts of the present settlement.

15. Thus the issue of the negotiations is fraught with peril in the future alike to the security of British subjects in China and to the friendly relations between the two Governments. The Chinese, have, as it were, seen our last diplomatic reserves called out, even to the threat of war, and nothing more serious happen to them than their having to pay a small pecuniary indemnity, which they would probably have paid two years ago without any special pressure.

16. It may, it is true, have been impossible—though this is not shown—to bring the criminal to trial. But, if such was the case, it might have been more politic, had it been practicable, to suppress the record of the futile demands made.

17. But it appears that it would in all likelihood have proved possible to have the actual criminal punished, as may be gathered from his Excellency Sir Thomas Wade's despatch, at page 34 Blue-book, China, No. 4, 1876.

18. His Excellency Sir Thomas Wade says that in China it is not safe to postpone the solution of a difficulty, and the force of this proposition in its general bearing cannot be denied. But in the present instance it seems clear that whatever risk there might be in keeping the question open, it rested entirely on the Chinese Government ; and in a case where there could be no doubt as to the side on which the right lay it is, we venture to suggest, quite conceivable that in certain circumstances an open grievance might not have been entirely without diplomatic value for ourselves.

19. Your Lordship will observe that the section of the Convention which deals with international jurisprudence has been passed over somewhat lightly by the Shanghai Chamber ; and I may be permitted to explain that this is not because the subject fails to be recognised as one of great practical importance, but because it requires comprehensive treatment by trained lawyers ; and cannot even be discussed to advantage without having all the data thoroughly sifted. The chief gain from the introduction of the subject into the Convention is the recognition, now, we believe, for the first time accorded to Her Majesty's Supreme Court for China and Japan.

20. Passing to the purely commercial portion of the Convention, the Shanghai Chamber (as noted in their letter) heartily approve the concession of new trading ports, two on the Great River and two on the coast. This is looked upon as a step in the right direction, and is doubly welcome as some modification of the dictum of Lord Russell that the fewer open ports we had the better. The Shanghai Chamber would, however, go still further, and would urge the desirability of the whole of China being thrown open for the establishment of trading points, wherever it may be found worth while for the Chinese Government to place a Custom House, and the European Governments, Consular Stations.

21. The point upon which the Committee are most anxious to bring their views before your Lordship is the stipulations affecting the collection of inland duties. Tha Shanghai Chamber, in their letter, notice at some length the manner in which this subject has been treated in the previous prolonged discussions which have arisen with regard to it.

22. The wording of clause 28 of the Treaty of Tientsin which refers to it, provides in clear and specific language that British subjects may convey imported goods to any part of the interior of China on payment of a commuted Transit Duty amounting to half the Tariff Duty, which commutation is to "exempt the goods from all further inland charges whatsoever."

23. A "rule," however, which was appended to the tariff some months after it was signed, tends to complicate and needlessly to limit the due operation of this provision, and the faithlessness of the Chinese officials has to a large extent rendered it a dead letter.

24. It was found by experience to have been a mistake to secure the option of commuting the inland dues as a personal privilege to British subjects, instead of a privilege in re, or an exemption attaching to the goods themselves, irrespective of the persons by whom they might, after payment of the commutation dues, be owned.

25. With this exception, however, the clause in the Treaty of 1858 seemed all that was required ; and the merchants in China desire nothing better than that its clear intentions should be fulfilled.

26. They have, however, for years past, been met by a variety of ingenious arguments tending to show that, owing to the peculiar fiscal system of China, the principle of a single payment in commutation of all inland dues could not be carried out.

27. But this argument is receiving a practical answer by the gradual extension of the very practice so long pronounced impossible, as is shown in the letter from the Shanghai Chamber ; and whatever force may previously have attached to it, it at least became clear in 1869 that it was not one which the Chinese Government were themselves disposed to advance, seeing that in connection with Sir Rutherford Alcock's Convention of that year, they voluntarily proposed a single-payment-commutation for all inland dues, but with the important modification that it was to be compulsory, instead of being optional, as provided by the Treaty of Tientsin.

28. This suggestion was opposed by the China merchants when Sir Rutherford Alcock's Convention was under consideration, because it was clearly discerned that its effect would have been merely to add 50 per cent. to the import duty, with no better guarantee than before against surcharges in the interior.

29. All that appears in reality to have been wanted was to give a new impetus to the old treaty provisions ; to do away with the personal bearing of the exemption, which, as it was provided for in the "Transit Duty Commutation Clause," had the appearance, on the surface, of an invidious race-distinction ; and finally to get rid of any remnants of obscurity in the meaning of the agreement.

Digitized by Google

30. What has now been done, however, seems rather to tend in the opposite direction. New elements of obscurity have been introduced, and if twenty years have been spent wrangling over the comparatively simple wording of the Tientsin Treaty, it is to be feared that no person now living will see the end of the controversies which will rage over the indefinite arrangement set forth in the Chefoo Convention.

31. The subject appears to have been complicated by the introduction, in connection with it, of a collateral question regarding a special tax, known in China by the name of lekin—and, in contravention of the principle that the payment of the commuted transit dues should exempt British goods from all further inland taxation, lekin is now for the first time recognised in a Treaty by a kind of side-wind.

32. This "lekin" is the tax which has been most complained of as having been levied in violation of treaty stipulations. It is raised in all kinds of ways, according to the caprice of the different provincial authorities, and has been burdensome to trade as much on account of its uncertainty as its magnitude.

33. The Shanghai Chamber of Commerce submit that this tax is practically either an additional import duty, in which case its levy on British goods is in contravention of the Treaty, or it is an inland duty, and as such commutable by a single payment.

34. Assuming that by the true meaning of the Chefoo Convention lekin is included with the other commutable inland duties, the intention of the new provisions would appear to be to exempt the area of the foreign settlements at the different ports absolutely from its collection.

35. On the surface this seems to be not only innocent but advantageous to the foreigner. But, if this were really all that is intended, it would scarcely have been worth while making this solemn engagement about the matter. It can hardly, however, be doubted that the stipulation has, in the mind of the Chinese Government and its advisers, a far more important bearing. By an obvious inference, the specific exemption of the area of the foreign settlements from the levy of this tax, implies full authority to levy it on the other side of the boundary.

36. The effect, therefore, of the proposed provision would be to impose this tax with all the authority of a special Treaty at every open port in China. The small patches of ground in the occupation of foreign merchants would be exempt, but the Chinese towns would not escape; so that goods designed for consumption in the immediate district could only be freed from the tax by the payment of the extra half-duty as commutation dues, if, indeed, the Chinese officials, whose rapacity is notorious, would not find means to levy the lekin after all, even when the commuted rate has been paid. The result of this would be to reintroduce the nationality question in a most objectionable shape, and lay the foundation for endless disputes.

37. There can, however, be no doubt that an additional tax levied at the port is, whatever it may be called, neither more nor less than an additional import duty, which is precisely what the Chinese negotiators intend that it shall be, and precisely what the interests of our commerce render it incumbent on the merchants to oppose.

38. It is, in fact, the attempt made in the Alcock Convention of 1869 (see par. 28) in a new shape. Sir Rutherford Alcock was plainly asked to allow 50 per cent. to be added to the import duty, on the bare promise of the goods being thenceforth franked all over the empire in accordance with clause 28 of the Tientsin Treaty, the very thing which had been declared impossible. Sir Thomas Wade is asked to allow the Chinese to levy any amount of taxation they like upon foreign goods the moment they leave the limits of the settlement, or say within half a mile of the wharf at which they are imported. Assume the amount thus levied to be the half tariff duty, and we have Sir Rutherford Alcock's rejected agreement, minus the promise—quantum valeat—that the goods should not be further taxed in the interior.

39. The only arrangement compatible with the spirit of the existing treaty would appear to be that sketched out by the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce on page 6 of their letter, namely, that imported goods should, on payment of the import duty, be freed from further taxation while within the limits of the port, which can be easily defined according to the actual topographical divisions: and that goods upon which the commuted transit due has been paid should be "exempted from all further inland charges whatsoever," as provided by clause 28 of the Tientsin Treaty.

40. The prosperity of English trade requires that the imposts upon it shall not only be kept within reasonable limits, but also that the machinery for their collection be simplified by all feasible means, as it might be possible even to paralyse the trade by complicated regulations for freeing it from taxation.

41. It would therefore appear far better to revert to the clear and simple provisions of the Tientsin Treaty, and insist on their being carried out without evasion. While we adhere to the letter of our engagements and hold the Chinese to theirs, all goes well; but when we encumber these simple stipulations with complicated rules and qualifications, checks and counterchecks, we are but too apt to miss the point we aim at, while involved in the mazes of endless discussion. It would be impossible to estimate the loss which the manufacturing and other interests in this country suffer every year through the trade being hampered by the subtleties of chicanery resorted to in China. We have a treaty, plain and simple. All that we have to do is to insist upon its fulfilment; and there can be no doubt, whatever plausible arguments may be advanced, that the Chinese have no valid excuse for failing to carry out its provisions in their spirit as well as in their letter.

42. The question of inland opium duties has been introduced into the Convention apparently with very little show of reason, seeing that the Chinese Government besides receiving an import duty are at liberty to tax opium as much as they please after it has left the hands of the original importer.

43. They now, however, wish to make the foreign importer and the foreign Custom House responsible for the due collection of an important portion of the inland imposts, the design in this evidently being the same as that above indicated with regard to manufactured goods and other imports—to increase the import duty under false pretences. If it be thought proper to help the Chinese to levy additional duties upon opium, or upon any other goods, by means of the Foreign Customs and within the foreign settlements, it should be done in a straightforward manner, that is, by simply increasing the import duty at present collected. But for the English Government to make itself even indirectly answerable for the collection from Chinese of an impost of indefinite amount, varying at each port according to the caprice or the necessities of local authorities who are not even specified, would surely be to introduce a most inconvenient precedent, to say the least.

44. The Shanghai Chamber also venture to express a hope that the present opportunity may still be availed of to obtain a few minor concessions from China which would be of great practical benefit to trade.

45. One of these is Bonded Warehouses. The principle was conceded in the Alcock Convention, but, as already noticed, in exchange for increased duties which it was felt the trade generally could not bear. It needs no argument to support this request, and at the ports chiefly interested ample conveniences already exist for giving effect to this reasonable accommodation to commerce.

46. The unsatisfactory state of the currency in China probably inflicts a greater tax on trade, both foreign and native, than even the irregular imposts of the Mandarins; and it would be a great advantage if an opportunity could be taken to urge the Chinese Government to establish a Mint for coining dollars, with adequate guarantees for the maintenance of the standard adopted.

47. Upon the Conservancy of the Rivers, especially the Wangpoo, we have the honour to address a separate letter to your Lordship, enclosing one received from the Shanghai Chamber. It would probably not be difficult to induce the Chinese to move in this matter; and the admirable manner in which they have accomplished the task of lighting the coast proves that they are fully capable of performing such duties, when they are once brought to feel that they are incumbent upon them.

48. In conclusion, we trust we may be permitted to say that, though objecting to specific parts of the Chefoo Convention, the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce fully recognise the zeal and talent displayed by his Excellency Sir Thomas Wade in furthering our trading interests in China. They cannot, however, but be conscious of the extremely difficult circumstances under which he negotiated, not only on account of the grave international question which he endeavoured to settle simultaneously with the commercial portion of the Convention, but also from the oblique form in which the Representatives of the Chinese Government thought it advisable alone to deal with the comparatively simple question of the inland duties.

We have the honour to be, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient humble servants,

A. MICHIE,
F. D. BARNES,
Members of the London Committee representing the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce.

THE P. AND O. MEETING.

The annual meeting of the proprietors of the P. and O. Company was held on the 4th inst., at their offices in Leadenhall-street; Mr. Fane De Salis presiding. Mr. A. M. Bethune, Secretary, having read the notice convening the meeting, and the report taken as read,

The Chairman, in moving its adoption, said he would commence his observations by adverting to the state of the fleet. It was a source of great gratification to the directors to be able to report that it continued in a high state of efficiency, and that its working for the year had, under Providence, been marked by an entire immunity from maritime casualty or disaster. During the year upwards of 1,700,000 miles of ocean space had been traversed by their ships; nearly 17,000 passengers had been carried without mishaps or loss of life, and upwards of 300,000 tons of freight had been safely conveyed to their destination. There had also been no breakdown or accidents worth naming in the machinery of their ships. Apart from this, the most extended postal service the world had yet known—a service on which the sun never set, for it extended from England to the furthest East, to India, China, Japan and Australia—had been conducted with perfect punctuality, to the satisfaction alike of the Post-office and the public. The mails, indeed, had been delivered usually before contract time, and so much was this the case on the Australian line that the last Melbourne Argus, a paper which claimed to be The Times of the southern hemisphere, and was not much given to praising anybody, contained a laudatory notice of their performances. It was short, and he would read it to them:—"The Suez mail service has never been more efficient than at present. The Tanjore delivered the August mails in thirty-eight days, being seven days under contract time, and the Siam arrived with the September mails six days before due date." A service performed as theirs had been during the past year, punctually and without accident, attested not only the efficiency of their fleet—it proved the excellence of the system of ship management inaugurated by their executive officers. It spoke of the strict supervision exercised over their affairs by the directors, and it pointed to the discipline of their ships as well as to the vigilance and zeal of their commanders and officers. The fleet now consisted of forty-five sea-going ships besides subsidiary vessels, with an aggregate tonnage of 117,478 tons and 20,015-horse power. Three ships, the Columbian, Massilia, and Nubia, had been sold owing to their having become obsolete and unsuited to the company's business through the great changes in Eastern commerce induced by the opening of the Canal. The completion of the Kaisar-i-Hind, a ship of 4,200 tons, and the largest yet owned by the company, had been delayed through the strike on the Clyde, but she would now soon be launched and take her place in the active list of the fleet. Turning to the accounts, they would note that £217,000 of the debentures had been paid off—(cheers)—and, baring unforeseen eventualities, they now saw their way to extinguishing the floating debt of the company. If further capital were hereafter required it would be raised in the shape of debenture stock under powers contained in their last charter. £203,121 had been expended in repairing the ships, and £100,000 had been carried to the renewal account; £300,000 would be applied as usual to cover insurance and depreciation, and an extra sum of £200,000 would now be appropriated for the same purpose. The necessity for this course was obvious, for he had told them at the last meeting that the cost of the ships stood too high in the books, and must be reduced. At the last annual meeting, also, they had been called upon to forego their insurance profits in order to reduce the cost of the ships, and now again, for the reasons stated in the report, a further appropriation in reduction of the cost of the ships would be made, which, eminently calculated as it was to place the valuation of the fleet on a sound basis, would doubtless have their cordial concurrence and approval. As regarded the dividend now about to be paid, although the profits of the year had been exceptionally enhanced by the carriage of specie to the East, as well as by favourable coal freights, there were no signs of recovery from the deep depression which had so long hung over the trade of the East, and freights ruled so low that no prospect of any immediate improvement in the company's revenue could be held out.

Having these facts in view, and bearing in mind the impending termination of the contract, which required that the company should stand in a strong position, the directors had come to the reluctant conclusion that no higher rate of dividend than 2½ per cent. could be offered them. He would frankly say that this was no proper return on capital invested in a business such as theirs, and in those communications the directors would, doubtless, soon be called on to enter into with the Government on the subject of the new contract they would not fail to impress upon the authorities how small had been the return yielded on the company's capital during the whole currency of the contract. This brought him to the question of the termination of the contract, a subject which, as it had occasioned much disquietude to some proprietors, he wished to say a few words upon. The utterance of the Postmaster-General referred to in the report was not a voluntary one, but was made in reply to the inquiry of an hon. member who, himself a large steamship owner, had probably reasons of his own for putting the question. The answer he received was exactly what they expected. Mail contracts had always been put up to tender on their termination, and it did not need the interpellation of the hon. member to elicit from Lord John Manners the information that in this instance the ordinary course of the public service would be adhered to. For their part the directors fully expected the service would be put up to tender, and they claimed no kind of favour in the matter. There were some things, however, they did claim. They claimed during the long period of thirty-eight years to have performed the postal service confided to them to the entire satisfaction of the Post-office as well as of Parliament. Parliament, indeed, had accorded them an encomium conceded to no other contract company, for the last committee on steam communication had gone out of the way to report to the House the faithful manner in which the responsible duties entrusted to them had been performed. They claimed also to have rendered several important public services to the country. In the Crimean war eleven of their largest ships, passing into the transport service, had rendered efficient aid to the State in conveying troops and munitions of war to Sebastopol. Similar, but perhaps even more important, services were rendered during the Indian mutiny. When the history of that great sedition was written it would be recorded that, apart from troops and war material brought from Europe, it was mainly by their ships that at the most critical period of the contest the legions of England, victorious in China, had been brought thence with all the speed of steam to aid in quelling a revolt which threatened at one time to subvert the foundations of our Indian Empire. In the Abyssinian expedition also they had been called on to supply not alone ships, but also that most necessary article of modern warfare—coal; and highly placed officers had admitted that but for their assistance and their large coal stores at Aden, unreservedly placed at the disposal of the Executive, an expedition which cast such lustre on the arms of England, and proved that her power extended to the remotest parts of the earth, must either have been given up or deferred. In return for their services, and they were not light ones, they asked no favour, but simple fair play. That fair play they would assuredly receive at the hands of Her Majesty's Government, and when the proper time arrived they would tender for the new service upon such terms as would afford them a fair return on the capital employed; and he doubted not the connection which had so long subsisted between the company and the public service would be maintained. He came to this conclusion not only because their large capital, their efficient fleet, and their well-appointed dockyard at Bombay, on which upwards of £200,000 had been expended, combined with their other establishments in the East, as well as their great postal experience, enabled them to perform the service better and cheaper than anybody else, but also because our postal relations with the East, whether viewed from a social, commercial, or political point of aspect, had in later years assumed such great importance that no Government would feel justified in entrusting them to experienced or incompetent hands. There must be no failure or mistake in the matter; and on this point they would have the Post-office with them, who would well recollect the fiasco which occurred on the last occasion but one when the Australian service was put up to tender. On that occasion some Glasgow steamship owners formed a company for the purpose of selling their ships and tendering against them. Introduced under high commercial auspices, the company not only floated, but its shares stood at a high premium, and were allotted as matter of favour. They tendered and were successful. Mark, however, the result. Inexperienced in postal matters, and ignorant of the large subsidiary capital required to establish a postal line, they fixed their capital too low; hence within two years a company introduced with a great flourish of trumpets—a company which was to extrude the Peninsular and Oriental from the seas of the East—within two years was in liquidation, its capital gone, its shares valueless, its ships in the hands of preferential creditors, and the postal services of Australia for many months in a state of disarray, which was only terminated by their ships again taking up the line. Basing his anticipations on these facts, he asked those proprietors who had allowed their minds to be disquieted to feel reassured; he asked them to have faith in the future of the company, and to believe that the time had not yet come which was to see its connection with the public service dissolved. Above all things, he asked them to remember that under any circumstances, and apart from the contract, which had its great drawbacks and heavy expenses, they had in the great and growing trade of India, in the fast expanding commerce of China and Japan, and, last but not least, in the magic growth of the Australian colonies, a substantial guarantee for the profitable employment of their ships and a security for the bright commercial future of the company. (Cheers.) After expressing his willingness to reply to the inquiries of any proprietor, the Chairman concluded by moving the adoption of the report. Mr. Thornton, C.B., seconded the motion.

Dr. Beattie rose and said that he again received a pamphlet from Captain Bain, to which he would not think it necessary to allude, but that it contained a statement which applied to him personally. That statement was to the effect that he received over £500 a year from the Company in connection with its medical service, coupled with an insinuation that this was the secret of his speaking so frequently at the meetings in support of the directors. He denied that his speaking at the meetings had always been favourable to the directors; and he characterised the statement of Captain Bain as untrue, challenging him to bring any proof in support of it. He went on to say that the nature of the statement in the present instance showed that no reliance could be placed upon Captain Bain's statements generally, and it was to be regretted that they caused needless apprehension among ladies and other shareholders unable to attend the meetings.

Mr. Jones then spoke at some length, premising that he hoped he might address the meeting, although he received the sum of £1 5s. per annum from them, which did not pay him at the price. He went on to express his opinion that it would be desirable for the P. and O. Company to accelerate their speed between this and Bombay to as great an extent as possible. This would practically give them the whole command of the lines in the East, as they would not meet with competition to speak of beyond that place.

The Chairman pointed out that this plan would very seriously increase the expenses of the working.

Mr. Jones, however, continued to urge his point, maintaining that the step would be advisable even at considerable increase of expenditure. The view, however, did not apparently meet with the sympathy of the shareholders, who called the speaker to time.

Dr. Schulhof made a few remarks concerning the working of the Company, which he held to be satisfactory. He deprecated the dissemination of the anonymous pamphlet which had been alluded to, and mentioned that he had not been favoured with one this time, probably on account of his having expressed his determination to take no notice of it—a course which he recommended other shareholders also to adopt.

Captain Nelson asked for some explanation concerning the amount passed to the reserve and depreciation fund. He would like to know whether the 5 per cent. per annum written off was upon the actual original cost. He also asked how much the Nubia had sold for.

Mr. Hovenden asked a question with reference to the right of the P. and O. Company to refuse a shareholder access to the books seven days before the meeting. He wished to know whether the Company stood on any different footing in this respect to companies under the Joint Stock Company's Acts.

Captain Bain said with regard to his statement concerning Dr. Beattie he alluded to his receipts from two sources connected with the Company, and would ask what they amounted to. Some impatience being, however, shown by the meeting, he resumed his seat.

Col. Maxwell said that it was a pity time was lost in personalities and went on to allude to the desirability of introducing some improvement in the cuisine, and otherwise meeting the taste of the public. It was impossible to deny that many preferred the French steamers merely on the latter account; and it would be well that the matter should be looked into.

Mr. Sutherland, a managing director, then replied to the questions which had been put. He said with regard to Mr. Hovenden's question, that it was a legal point, and he could not give an answer—but the Company's solicitor had been in correspondence with Mr. Hovenden's, and the latter's representative had stated that he had at first misunderstood the bearing of the matter. In regard to the question as to the value of the fleet, it had been placed as nearly as possible at an average of £21 per ton, after deducting the balance of the reserve account. It was not possible to estimate very accurately the sum that should be deducted for depreciation, and it was found that the amounts hitherto so deducted did not meet fully the depreciation, consequent on the altered nature of the business and other like considerations. Consequently the directors had resolved to make use of the first opportunity of passing a further sum to the reserve, which had long been raised to over £400,000. It had been necessary, in fact, this had been accomplished. With regard to some remarks which had been made by one of the shareholders regarding the cuisine and the passage money he said that the former matter had been looked into, and steps were being taken to make it such as would no doubt fully meet the public taste, more, in fact, than a purely French cuisine,—and respecting a reduction of the passage-money it was a matter which had long been before the Board's consideration, but they did not think the time had yet come for such a step, which would probably materially reduce the receipts without any corresponding advantage. In regard to change the fleet to a commercial fleet from a postal fleet, and to the depreciation fund he said that 5 per cent. was now passed annually to the credit of each vessel, so that all vessels over twenty years old would stand in the books to cost nothing. With respect to the mail contract, he pointed out that the payment from the Government was somewhat erroneously spoken of as a subsidy. The French, Italian, and other Governments had given steamship companies what was properly speaking a subsidy, that is a payment to foster trade which would otherwise not become developed; but the sum received by the P. and O. was only fair pay for the work done, to accomplish which properly the Company had to undertake grave responsibility and incur heavy expense. As regarded the amount the Nubia had sold for, he stated the sum was £9,000, and that it showed a profit on what she stood at in the books.

The Chairman then said that as the questions had been so fully replied to he need now do no more than put the resolution to pass the report to the meeting.

The report was then adopted, with one dissentient, and a dividend of 2½ per cent. for the half-year, making 4½ per cent. for the year, was declared. The retiring directors and auditors having been re-elected, the proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the Chairman and the other directors and the staff.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

On the 27th ult. the market was quieter, prices, however, being scarcely affected till the 30th, when with a duller feeling there was some tendency towards giving buyers a slight advantage. There was, however, not sufficient demand for either Yarns or Goods to test the possible concession. Quietness has since continued to be the ruling feature of the market, but the inclination towards weakness has disappeared with the firmer tone of the Cotton market. On the 4th inst. there was a fair general demand, but business only resulted where the full quotations have been paid. The inquiry ran principally on Goods Yarns being only in moderate request, and scarcely so firmly held as Goods.

THE MAILS, &c.

The P. and O. mail, with the advices dated as above, from China and the Straits Settlements, was delivered, via Brindisi, this morning, and the Japan advices reached London, per Pacific Mail Company's steamer City of Peking, via San Francisco, on the 11th inst. The heavy portion of last P. and O. mail arrived at Southampton, per P. and O. steamer Kashgar, on the 13th inst. The next inward (French) mail, from Yokohama 6th, Shanghai 9th, Hong Kong 15th, Singapore 23nd Nov., which is due in London on Monday next, the 24th inst., arrived at Marseilles at one P.M. to-day, and will reach London to-morrow (Tuesday) night.

The lines of the Eastern Extension Telegraph Company and the Great Northern Telegraph Company are working satisfactorily.

JAPAN.

—o—

YOKOHAMA.

The present P. and O. mail brings advices from this port to Oct. 30, and we have advices via San Francisco four days later, viz., to Nov. 3. The French mail from London, Sept. 7, arrived out on Oct. 28, the following P. and O. mail of Sept. 14 was received on Oct. 30.

The most interesting item of news contained in the Japan papers is that the Japanese Government is reported to be taking some steps with regard to the revision of the tariff of the foreign treaties. After some years' delay, subsequent to notice being given to foreign nations that the Government desired to enter upon the task of revising the treaties, a communication has now been sent to the Ministers for Germany and England, stating that an immediate revision of the tariff is desired. From what is reported, what the Japanese Government has to propose, is a reduction of the export duties, and an increase of the duties on imports. If the propositions of the Government had been confined to adding to the import duties, an increase of revenue through the agency of the Custom-House might have been understood as being the object of the proposed change; but as it is proposed at the same time to diminish the export duties, though in an inferior degree, the augmentation of the revenue is evidently not the sole purpose sought.

The Japan Herald states that as a make-weight for the concessions demanded, it is proposed to open two fresh treaty ports. This latter proposition, if regarded as a boon to foreigners, it, however, considers wholly illusory, and holds that it cannot be too strongly impressed on the minds of those who will have to consider the subject, that the mere multiplication of treaty ports is useless, unless the country itself be thrown open to foreign capital and enterprise.

From the above-named paper we take the following:—

Despite of the unusually long interval since the departure of last mail there is but little of interest to note. The theatre of the late insurrection is quieting down, and measures are being taken to repair the damages caused by the war. Large sums of money have been forwarded by the Government for the relief of the necessitous, but much misery appears to prevail. The troops are being removed as quickly as possible, but the prevalence of the cholera amongst them has caused much delay. General Yamagata, the Minister of War, returned on the 16th ult., and General Tani, the defender of Kumamoto, on the 2nd inst. Most of the chiefs of the army and navy have been received by the Mikado, who has personally expressed his thanks to them.

The newly-established Nobles' school was opened by the Mikado and the Empress on Oct. 17; and on the 26th their Majesties paid a visit to the Uyeno Exhibition, remaining there nearly the whole day.

As the $150,000 already voted for the expense of Japanese exhibits to the French Exhibition have been found insufficient, a further sum of $33,000 has been allotted for the same object.

The cholera is decreasing. The deaths in Yokohama since last mail have been 181, and in the vicinity 116, making a grand total of 599 since the commencement of the outbreak.

The new trial of the case in which the Mitsu Bishi Company sue Capt. Colomb, of H.M.S. Audacious, for damages caused by a collision, will come on on the 13th Nov.

The Japan Mail has the subjoined items :—

The present occasion of the birthday of the Mikado is the first time. we believe, that the anniversary has been acknowledged by the resident foreigners in any open manner. When the birthdays of Foreign Sovereigns are always duly observed and made the occasions of rejoicing, it is but the simplest mark of respect that the birthday of the Ruler of the country where we reside should 0e fittingly acknowledged, and doubtless from the present time (Nov. 3), will be kept by foreigners, as by natives, as a general holiday. At an early hour the native town was gaily decorated with flags, the ships in harbour were dressed, and at noon a Royal salute fired by the Kanagawa Fort and all the men-of-war in port. The Governor of Kanagawa will receive all the Foreign Consuls at dinner at the Machigaisho, and in honour of the day a grand display of both day and night fireworks is being made in the Public Gardens on the Swamp, which commenced at 3.30 P.M., and will extend until midnight.

A paragraph lately appeared in the Akébono Shimbun to the effect that the mystery which has hitherto enshrouded the murder of Hirasawa, Sangi, which took place some years ago, has been revealed by the confession of a person lately arrested in the Kochi ken. Hirasawa was a noble, holding office next to that of Karo (minister) to the Prince of Chosiu, of which province he was a native, and was assassinated at his house at Kudan, Tokio, in 1870, at the age of fifty, and up to the present time the perpetrators of the murder or the causes which led thereto have remained undiscovered.

NIIGATA.

A correspondent of the Japan Herald writes under date of Oct. 22 :—

The Modeste, somewhat anxiously looked for since the 17th by at least one member of our community, arrived at the anchorage on Friday, but was unable to communicate with the shore on account of the heavy sea running on the bar. Mr. Troup, the British Vice-Consul, attempted to reach her in a sampan, but was compelled to abandon the venture after the boat had shipped a couple of heavy seas. The Modeste left for the harbour of Ybisu, in the island of Sado, where she will probably remain until the weather moderates. This it now promises to do, the storm having apparently spent itself; the barometer is now high, and is still rising. Sir Harry Parkes, with Lady Parkes and suite, is supposed to be on board the corvette, but of this we are not sure, as no communication has been as yet made with the vessel. The Modeste will probably make but a brief stay in our somewhat treacherous roadstead ; she proceeds to Nagasaki, conveying Mr. Troup and family, that gentleman having been appointed Consul for Great Britain at that port. Mr. Hiram S. Wilkinson, of the Yokohama Consulate, is looked for as Mr. Troup's successor, but it is not expected that he will venture across the Mikune range before next spring, the season being already so far advanced. We are therefore likely to be left, as an unfeeling punster yesterday phrased it, "disconsulate" for the winter.

The British Minister will probably make but a short stay, and will, it is expected, return to Tokio via the Shinshiu route, —the only practicable one in winter. His last visit to Niigata was paid in 1868.

We had a slight cholera scare here a week or two ago, and carbolic acid and other approved disinfectants were in demand. The supply being short, however, exorbitant prices were asked, and had to be paid. The fears of a visit from the pest Kami fortunately proved to be without foundation, the solitary case reported turning out to be not cholera, after all.

HIOGO.

The News says cholera still continues to be one of the principal subjects occupying public attention, but notwithstanding all the rumours which are current, it falls to see any additional cause for alarm. One foreigner employed on the railway at Takatsuki obtained leave of absence, not on account of ill health, but on arriving at Kobe on Thursday he complained of pain, and was sent by the doctor to the hospital, where, in spite of all care, he died the next day. Under ordinary circumstances this death would not have excited any alarm, and the News fails to see any sufficient reason why it should do so now, however melancholy the occurrence may be felt to be. The care, also, exercised by the Mitsu Bishi Company on the arrival of the Hiroshima Maru gave rise to the wildest rumours. In addition to ordinary passengers she was known to have prisoners on board, and rumours were circulated of deaths to the number of thirty and even fifty. On inquiry, the story, however, dwindled to a mere nothing. One man of the first lot landed sick, and it seems that only three altogether of those landed were reported as being attacked. The Company at once put the steamer into quarantine, and telegraphed to Tokio for instructions, circulating in the meantime a notice that her departure was delayed. An investigation failed to find any disease on board, and she proceeded on her voyage at midnight.

NAGASAKI.

It is satisfactory to know that cholera is decreasing at this port. The Rising Sun says, although there are still cases of daily occurrence in the native town, there are undoubtedly much fewer since the last storm of rain and wind ; Akunora and Inasa have not been much exempt from the disease, while instances have heard of in Shimabara and at Amakusa, and at Kagoshima, from late accounts, there have been a good many cases among the troops, at one time averaging as high as eighteen per day, the death rate being about one in three. The heavy rain which fell on the 10th ult., followed by the two succeeding days of high wind, was pretty general to the north as far as Yokohama, and probably the atmosphere has been purged of much of the germs of the malady.

CHINA.

PEKING.

The Daily News notices a curious memorial which has appeared in the Peking Gazette on Oct. 10 from Ting Jih-chang, soliciting a mark of Imperial approbation for a certain educational establishment at Foochow, which he calls the "College of Practical Results." It appears to have been founded a few years ago by the previous Governor ; but Ting has added to the endowment, and has caused, apparently, some changes to be made in the curriculum. The great distinction of this from the other colleges in Foochow is that, whereas these are exclusively devoted to the arts of poetry and style, in the "College of Practical Results," scholars are invited to study the canonical books and historians, with a view to educate themselves to be statesmen. "In the memorialists' humble opinion, what it is essential to aim at is that as large a number of scholars as possible should seek to follow the example of the worthies of the past, and to study doctrinal literature in its application to practical questions. Every individual who is now trained to make his mark in scholarship is one more added to the list of public officials who will follow the right path in days to come ; and by these means suitable agents may be effectively obtained, setting aside the vain repute of erudition which keeps itself apart from the work and ways of actual life." Very practical and sensible words ! Though whether a course of study at the Foochow Arsenal would not be likely to make more practical men of the scholars than a study of the canonical books of China may be an open question.

TIENTSIN.

The North China Daily News correspondent writes under date of Oct. 21 :—

The long-expected trial of the Lay torpedo has at length taken place at Taku, in presence of Li Hung-chang and other officials, but it did not succeed in blowing up the raft on which the experiment was made, and much disappointment was in consequence felt by the officials. The torpedo may be briefly described as an iron "cigar shaped" boat, submerged some four-fifths of its diameter below the surface of the water. It is about 2 feet in diameter and 24 feet long. The motive power is carbonic acid gas, confined at a pressure of 600 lbs. to 1,000 lbs. to the square inch ; it is stopped, steered, and fired by an electric current which communicates with the torpedo by means of a triple cable payed out behind it. It travelled through the water at the rate of about nine knots an hour, and seemed well under control except at one time, when the steering gear evidently became faulty. It carries a charge of 100 lbs. of dynamite, or any other explosive selected. The operator steers it by means of two short sighting poles carrying flags, placed on its deck or upper part. Its most serious defects seem to be, that as it is on the surface of the water it would strike a vessel at the strongest place ; and where, in accordance with the well-known laws of the action of explosive substances, the explosive energy generated would follow the line of least resistance and be dissipated in the air. Again, as it can be so readily seen by the sighting poles and flags, its attack on an enemy's vessel could hardly fail to be perceived, and measures taken to ward off its assault. We understand that Mr. Lay is about to take the torpedo to Japan for further experiments, as the Chinese Government do not intend to purchase it.

WUCHANG.

A correspondent of the Shanghai Courier mentions that a serious fire took place on the night of Oct. 23, and that the Chapel of the London Episcopal Mission had a very narrow escape. Fortunately by battling with all neighbouring timbers and the overthrow of walls into which they were set the chapel was saved, otherwise it must eventually have caught and gone the road some forty of the surrounding houses took. The hill at the back helped to keep the fire in the comparatively narrow bounds it burnt out, as the wind increased to a heavy gale. One of the party spent the night at the chapel, and not vainly, for at daylight a flame was seen and part of the woodwork under the roof of the chapel was found to be burned through its four inches of thickness.

NEWCHWANG.

It is hoped that the postal service to this port may be improved during this winter by a new steamer being laid on. It is regarded as a great boon by the community.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to Nov. 2; the French mail from London, Sept. 14, was received Oct. 27.

The community at the Model Settlement were on the departure of the mail chiefly intent upon racing matters, the Autumn meeting having been fixed to come off the day after the mail left. Notwithstanding the diminished importance of sporting matters as compared with that which they had in former times, the Consulate banks and other public offices were to close and general holiday be made.

A startling and painful result of the closure of the Woosung Railway followed speedily upon that retrogressive step, and is thus related in the Sinpaou a native paper usually reputed to be the Taoutai's organ, and therefore no doubt inclined to put the best colour it could upon the matter. It says :—

"The Railway being done away with, passengers to and from Woosung have reverted to the passage boats. On Oct. 25 last at 3 P.M., when two of these boats had arrived off Kao-chiaou, a sudden squall sprang up, and they one after the other capsized, the hundred and odd passengers floating down with the tide shrieking for help. Word was at once sent to the Humane Society, whose boats speeded to the spot. How many were rescued and how many joined the drowned men's ghosts down below, is not yet accurately known."

According to the above-named native paper, kidnapping is again becoming rife in the foreign settlements, no fewer than five small boys, aged from four to six years, and three girls of seven to ten and thirteen years of age respectively, having disappeared in a few days.

The telegraph between Gutzlaaf and Nagasaki was at the time the mail left broken down, and it was expected some days must elapse before communication could be re-established.

Some steps were being taken to improve the appearance of the well-known old Joss Houses at the Bubbling Well.

The Shanghai Yacht Club, which has been in existence for many years is to be wound up.

We take the following from the North China Daily News :—

The China Merchants' Company were only able to pay the guaranteed 10 per cent. interest last year, if we remember rightly, by carrying forward a debit balance of Tls. 30,000 to next account, and altogether ignoring such an item as "Depreciation." From the translation of the 1876-7 Report it it will be seen that they succeed this year again, in paying 10 per cent., and even in writing off the Tls. 30,000 debit balance; but there then remains only a balance of Tls. 10,000, which the directors admit is again insufficient to permit their making any allowance for "depreciation;" so the steamers and plant are still kept up at least to cost price. Contrasted with their remark last year, about the purchase of the S.S.N. Company securing the China Merchants "the command of the carrying trade," it is rather amusing to read that "unexpectedly the business operations of the Company during the year under review have had to be adjusted to the necessity of the times"; that the Company has "been pressed in many ways by its rivals," and has "had to suffer loss," &c. We ventured to suggest at the time that the Chinese were rather premature in thinking the purchase of the S.S.N. was equivalent to purchasing control of the coast and river trade; and they seem to be gradually finding out this truth.

A case, that of Buchheister v. Moller, was tried last week in the Swedish Consular Court. The defendant denied the jurisdiction of the Court, on the plea that the Oscar Vidal was a British ship, and further alleged that the damage to cargo, in respect of which the claim was made, arose from the violent weather the ship encountered, and, therefore, denied responsibility. The Court affirms its jurisdiction, but admits the plea of "perils of the sea," and therefore rejects the claim.

We hear that the steamer Radnorshire has been chartered by the C.M.S.N. Company, to load rice for Taku, at 24 candareens a picul. Owing to the pressure of the Government to get grain to the North, the Chinese have had to take up this steamer for two trips, all their own being fully occupied. We thus have the anomaly of the Government paying the "China Merchants" over 5 mace a picul for work they get done at half the rate. True, the Radnorshire only goes to Taku, but the lighterage will not cost more than 6 candareens. We remember mentioning some time ago that foreigners would probably be willing to undertake the rice contract for 2 mace a picul all through the year, and the statement was somewhat sharply questioned. It cannot have been very far wrong, if an outside steamer is willing to make an exceptional trip at so slight an advance on that rate at a time when carriage is somewhat in demand.

The Courier notes that a meeting of Protestant Missionaries in Shanghai and the neighbourhood assembled on Tuesday evening last at the house of the Rev. Dr. Nelson, to meet the Rev. W. F. Stephenson, Convener of the Foreign Missions of the Irish Presbyterian Church, who is at present engaged in visiting China and India with the special purpose of ascertaining the condition and prospects of missionary labour in those two countries. A large number of laymen were also present, and the proceedings were of far more than ordinary interest. The most important subject brought forward was that of the famine in the north. The descriptions of the misery are appalling. Mr. G. Wiley Wells, U.S. Consul-General, who was present at the meeting last evening, promised to bring the matter before the Consular body, with a view to the calling of a public meeting on the subject, or taking such other action as was deemed desirable.

PAKHOI.

A correspondent of the Daily Press writes under date of Oct. 30 :—

Some misapprehension exists, I fancy, as to the character of this place, and I may seize this opportunity to give you a short description of it. The town faces nearly due north, and is situate at the foot of a bluff forty feet high, which deprives us of the breeze from the south-west in summer, while in winter we will be exposed to the full force of the northern monsoon, and I should imagine it will be rather cold. As to business, I think the prospect for foreigners is good if they work carefully. The town is increasing, and there are large exports of sugar, oil, rice, tea, &c., while opium and piece-goods are distributed from here inland. The anchorage is a mile and a half from the town. There is good landing at high water, but at ebb tide only for small boats. Quite a fleet of junks is assembled now, giving the place an important look. The language spoken is mostly a dialect of the Cantonese.

HONG KONG.

Dates by this mail extend to Nov. 8; the French mail from London, Sept. 21, arrived out on Nov. 2, and the following P. and O. mail of Sept. 28 was received on Nov. 4.

The news from Hong Kong by the present mail is meagre, and relates chiefly to matters of little more than local interest. The returns of the births and deaths in the colony for the third quarter of this year have been published, and it appears from them that the total births during that period were 412, and the deaths 986. There were 50 births among the British and foreign community and 362 among the native population. The deaths were divided as follows :—British and foreign, 6; Portuguese, 14; Indian, &c., 7; non-residents, 17; and Chinese 942. The annual death-rate per thousand was—for the whole population, 28·34; for British and foreign community, 19·60, or, deducting non-residents, 13·78; for the Chinese 28.94.

The value of Chinese house property continues to attract attention; and a new illustration of the fact has been afforded by the ground recently occupied by the Novelty Iron Works west Point, being utilised for the erection of Chinese houses.

The birthday of the Emperor of Japan was celebrated by an illumination at the Japanese Consulate.

From the Daily Press we take the following items :—

Mr. M. J. Rozario, who was sentenced to five years' penal servitude on the 11th July last year, for obtaining money under false pretences from the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Company, in conjunction with Mr. Duncan, the late secretary of the company, has been granted a free pardon, and was liberated on he 6th Nov.

The village of Shau-ki-wan continues to rapidly extend, and bids fair shortly to become an important town. The new ironworks will commence running before long, and it is now said that Chinese sugar works and a pottery are to be started, a piece of swamp land being filled up for that purpose. Building operations in the way of house and shop property are also going on on a moderate scale.

The new steamship Fat-choy, owned by Mr. G. McBain, and which is intended for the Canton river trade, went out on a trial trip on Nov. 3. The result of the trial was that she succeeded in obtaining a speed of eight knots an hour.

Vice-Admiral Hillyar, C.B., with his staff, arrived here on the morning of Nov. 4 to relieve Admiral Ryder as Commander-in-Chief of the China Station. On Admiral Hillyar hoisting his flag a salute was fired by the Victor Emanuel and returned by the Audacious.

Judging by the rapid increase in the number of steamers and sailing vessels chartered for Haiphong and Hoihow, trade with those ports is undergoing considerable development. There are now five or six steamers making pretty regular trips between this port and those places.

The British bark Empreza, Captain W. H. Skinner, which arrived here on the 28th Oct. from King George's Sound, reports sixty vessels detained at Anjer on the 1st instant by strong north-east winds and a south-west current. Three of the vessels, coal laden, were bound for this port.

The Cheung-Chow, a new boat, built by Messrs. W. B. Spratt and Co., Cosmopolitan Docks, for Mr. Kwok Acheong, went on her trial trip on the 4th inst., when she attained a speed of 10½ knots. The vessel is 65 feet long, and 11 feet 6 inches beam. She has a pair of 8 inch cylinders, high pressure; these were built at the West Point Foundry, and give every satisfaction to the owner. Another vessel of about 250 tons burthen will shortly be launched from the same docks for the same owner.

On Sunday, Nov. 4, the Indian community celebrated the festival called Dewali (or the feast of lamps), dedicated to the Goddess of Prosperity, and also to the Goddess of Learning.

All the Hindoo merchants close their accounts on the evening of this day, being the last day of the year. New account books are commenced, and the Goddess of Prosperity is invoked to render the subsequent year prosperous. All the people illuminate their houses during the holidays, which continue for five days. Most of the Parsees and Mohammedans, being connected in business with the Hindoos, also observe these holidays in Bombay, and commence their business year at the same time with the Hindoos.

The Rev. Gerard Nuiteman died at the French Mission House, Hong Kong, on Oct. 25. The deceased gentleman, who was Dutch by birth, was sent in 1869 from the seminary of the Belgian Mission, near Brussels, to Mongolia, which is the field occupied for evangelisation by the Belgian fathers. Worn out by continual labour and the privation involved in the ministry in that remote inland mission, he had obtained from his superiors leave to go to Europe to restore his failing health. His illness increased on the journey from Mongolia to Tientsin and thence to Shanghai, and on the passage from Shanghai to Hong Kong he became so weak that he was unable to proceed further, and he was most kindly cared for by the French Missionaries here. His illness developed into typhoid fever, and in spite of the efforts of Dr. O'Brien, the medical attendant of the French mission, he succumbed to the disease at midnight on Oct. 25, and was buried at the Catholic Cemetery, in Happy Valley, the following afternoon.

The China Mail has the following :—

The prisoners sentenced at the September Sessions to be flogged, and regarding whose offences and punishment the Chief Justice spoke so very forcibly, have not as yet received their corporal punishment. We understand that the delay is caused by the fact that H.E. the Governor is awaiting the result of his reference home on the subject. It were well that the uncertainty now existing be made as short-lived as possible.

We learn that the Chinese community in Hong Kong are raising a subscription for the relief of the sufferers in Shansi. Although the Chinese in Hong Kong have been heavily drained of late in the matter of subscriptions for various places, such as Chihli, Shangtung, and Canton, the present appeal has been liberally responded to, and certainly a good beginning has been made.

We hear that the following are the names of the officers who go home by this mail with Admiral Ryder:—P. H. Colomb, flag Captain ; W. S. P. Graves, flag lieutenant ; T. H. L. Bowling, secretary ; and E. H. Banks, secretary's clerk.

The experiment of his Excellency Mr. Pope Hennessy's new system of filling up vacancies in the public departments by competitive examination, has so far proved a failure, and the only alternative was to promote the present Second Chinese Interpreter to the vacant place, and to get a new interpreter. With this object in view, the magistrates have had several persons put on probation, until at last they have been successful in getting hold of a Chinese-speaking Indian, Mr. Mahomed Fakeera, to take the post of Second Chinese Interpreter, while Mr. Lee Hong Mi is translated to the office as Third Clerk.

We stated a few days since that the Colonial Estimates for 1878 had been for some time under the consideration of the Financial Committee of the Legislative Council. This statement was, we have now reason to believe, only partially correct, as, although the financial year closes at the end of this month, he more important items of Colonial expenditure, such as those relating to Public Works, have not even yet been submitted to the Financial Committee. Everything is apparently at a standstill, under the present system of despatch writing, and the approval of Lord Carnarvon seems to be now regarded as absolutely necessary to be obtained before the more important fiscal measures are even broached in Committee or Council, instead of being sanctioned after their discussion. As the changes likely to be suggested by H.E. the Governor may involve the gravest consideration and the liveliest discussion in Council, this curtailment of the time usually devoted to a frank and fearless criticism of the measures proposed seems to be particularly unfortunate.

CANTON.

The correspondent of the Daily Press, writing on Nov. 4, states that the scarcity in Kiangsi is developing a most dangerous state of affairs, which if not promptly dealt with may lead to disastrous results. Numerous bands in the famine districts assumed the rôle of freebooters, at first in order only to save themselves from starvation, but they seem to have found the occupation so congenial that they have formed themselves into a little army, and are laying waste the peaceful districts through which they pass. Over ten thousand of these rovers have arrived at Kiaying-chau, a place on the north-eastern frontier of the Kwangtung province, having plundered several villages on their march. Whether this account is exaggerated is not certain, but at all events the affair is one of serious importance and great excitement prevailed among the people of the district which the banditti have selected as the scene of their depredations for the present. Permission has been given to the elders of the eighteen villages bordering on the western suburb, the inhabitants of which have formed themselves into a volunteer force to hold drills on the Parade Ground.

MACAO.

The exportation of tea from the above port continued steadily, and a correspondent notes that there had been an exceptionally large importation of salt into the Settlement. The birthday of the King of Portugal was celebrated with considerable eclat on Nov. 1, and there was an illumination in the evening.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

The present P. and O. mail brings advices from this port to the 15th November ; the P. and O. mail from London, Oct. 12, was received on the 11th Nov. We take the following items of intelligence from the Straits Times :—

There has been no meeting of the Legislative Council, but one has been announced for Nov. 16, when our new Governor, Sir W. C. F. Robinson will deliver his inaugural address. The event of the fortnight may be said to have been the election of the Maharajah of Johore to be Sultan of Moar, at least so he is said to have been, but there has been no official notification of it. The conduct of the Government here (says the Straits Times), in regard to this Moar business can only be pronounced incredible for its baseness and criminal folly. If it were its object to stir up a general war throughout the Peninsula no better course could have been devised for the purpose than what has been pursued from the time of Sultan Ali's death on June 20 last. It is not too much to say that Colonel Anson has cast a foul blot on England's fair name for justice and good faith, the consequences of which may be serious. An election seems to have been ordered for Nov. 9, by the Government here, and, on that day, his Highness the Maharajah of Johore was elected, "by acclamation," Sultan of Moar. Thus not only has the alleged will of the late Sultan been ignored, but the solemn Treaty of March 10, 1855, between the late Sultan Ali and the Maharajah's father has been set aside with cynical contempt as so much waste paper. In this manner has England's traditional policy of non-interference been carried in this instance.

The merchants, with a few exceptions, have signed an agreement, having a penalty attached, that they will only receive and weigh gambier and other chief staples of export at their own premises, and will not take delivery, as hitherto, in the shops of the Chinese dealers ; this arrangement, if carried out, will probably give shippers more control over the quality of the produce, and it was brought about by the urgent necessity of improving the quality of gambier, and of checking the heavy loss in weight in the outturn of shipments, caused partly by the bad quality of the article and partly by the "squeeze" taken in weighing. The Chinese dealers oppose the arrangement, and very little business has been done since Nov. 10, the day the agreement came into force.

There is little or no news from the Peninsula, except some vague rumours of trouble brewing in Perak, where, also, according to the Penang Gazette, the Resident, Mr. Low, is very unpopular for the unsparing manner he has been cutting down expenditure.

The Hon. William Adamson goes home by the next mail, and at a numerously attended meeting in the Exchange Rooms, the Hon. John Douglas, C.M.G., Colonial Secretary, in the chair, it was resolved to give a farewell ball in honour of himself and Mrs. Adamson, a compliment which the hon. gentleman has well deserved for his many and great public services.

The second mate and six of the crew of the American ship Granger arrived here from Labuan on Nov. 11, and reported the wreck of that vessel on Oct. 25, on the Swallow Shoal, Pulawan Passage, while on her way to Manila, laden with coal.

A meeting of gentlemen interested in the subject has been held at the Raffles Institution, and it was resolved to form "A Straits Asiatic Society," to be affiliated as a branch of the Royal Asiatic Society.

Dr. T. Irvine Rowell has been appointed Principal Civil Medical Officer, in succession to the late Dr. Randell.

The average note circulation of the banks during October was as follows :—

Mercantile Bank, Singapore, ...	$401,550
Ditto Penang	235,675
Oriental Bank	218,605
Chartered Bank, Singapore	655,695

Market Reports.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—Cotton Fabrics and Yarns: During the fortnight the market had been very quiet, and quotations were mostly nominal. Of Yarns only 16/24 low and medium spinnings continued in moderate demand. Shirtings were quite unsaleable and prices were declining. Other articles were neglected, and hardly any business had been done. Yarns were quoted, No. 16-24 $28.25 to 31.75 per picul; No. 28-32 $32.75 to 34.75 per picul; No. 38 to 42 $36.00 to 40.00 per picul. Woollens: Dulness had continued to prevail throughout the interval, and prices had assumed a downward tendency, while transactions had been insignificant in the extreme. With regard to Metals, a fair amount of manufactured Iron had been sold. Quotations for best brands of Nail Rods had remained steady, but lower rates, as a rule, had been accepted for other descriptions.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—The Chamber of Commerce Circular says:—Deliveries of almost all descriptions of goods show an improvement, and prices ruling at the date of the last Circular have been generally maintained. Cottons: A considerable quantity of Yarn has been imported from Yokohama on native account, and there has been consequently little local demand. Grey Shirtings continue to be largely dealt in by Chinese, and the lower qualities have been taken to a large extent. A quantity of Coloured Goods has likewise been sold. Deliveries of Drills and Chintzes have considerably improved. Turkey Red Cambrics have also been taken to a larger extent, and the better classes of these goods are firmer. Black Velvets are weaker, in sympathy with the Yokohama market. Taffachelass is saleable at improving rates. Woollens and Worsteds: There is a general feeling of weakness in many articles, although prices are unchanged. Figured Mousselines de Laine are decidedly firmer. A fair demand exists for all descriptions of Cloth. Blankets are much weaker. Iron continues dull.

NAGASAKI.—More business had been done in Cotton Goods at about previous rates. For Woollens there had been a fair inquiry, and a few transactions are reported at higher prices. Blankets were still wanted. The demand for Nail Rods had been confined to the smaller sizes.

TIENTSIN.—There had been a fair inquiry for Shirtings, Drills, and Mexican T-Cloths, but Woollens had been but in limited request.

NEWCHWANG.—Manufactures had gone off in considerable quantities, some 500 bales Drills (principally Americans) having changed hands. Natives were expecting an early closing of the port.

HANKOW.—No business of importance in Piece Goods had been transacted.

SHANGHAI.—Two steamers had arrived from Tientsin bearing orders to the northern agents located here, and those, combined with a continuance of the demand for Chinkiang, had given strength to the suitable descriptions of Grey and White Shirtings, T-Cloths, and Drillings which had long been absent from the business in these articles. The movement had not yet affected values, further than that, in instances where previous sales had established an abnormally low level, it had arrested decline, and cheered sellers with some slight show of a return to proper standards. Grey Shirtings: The private business had hardly been sufficient for purposes of general guidance. Fine heavy goods had been asked for, and the value of the Tunsin Eagle (Dewhurst's) was maintained at Tls. 2.42½. White Shirtings: Sales of good 64-reeds at Tls. 1.90 for E-yuen Red Eagle, Tls. 1.87½ for Tai-wo Stag, and Tls. 1.71 to 1.72½ for Dewhurst's Red Pheasant. T-Cloths: There had been some demand for 6-lbs. Dewhurst's Red Pheasant at Tls. 0.82½ and Common Mexican 7-lbs. at Tls. 1.05 to 1.10. Drills.—English: Private business in 14 lbs. at Tls. 1.80 for Pillar and Tls. 1.80 to 1.87 per piece for ordinary to good medium Dragon. Fancy Cottons.—Turkey Reds in rather better favour, sales 1,900 pieces at Tls. 1.07 to 1.17½ for 2¼ to 2.3/16 lbs. Velvets, Velveteens and Handkerchiefs, auction prices weaker all round. A few Blue Chintz esreported at Tls. 1.13, and a small business in Dyed Brocades at Tls. 2.60 to 2.65. Woollens: Little done in Camlets, Long Ells, Spanish Stripes, or Lastings, excepting at the auctions, and at lower rates. Small sales of L. B. Lead for forward delivery at Tls. 5.40 per picul, Belgium Nail Rods sold at Tls. 1.66 to 1.70, Dawes and Rogers dull of sale. Tin Plates, Quicksilver and Copper neglected.

HONG KONG.—The market had been very quiet, and the transactions had been small. There appeared to be no disposition shown on the part of dealers to operate in either Grey or White Shirtings. It had been rumoured that large quantities of the latter had been sold "to arrive," but no particulars had been made public. T-Cloths continued in small request, the demand being principally confined to Mexican kinds, in which a fair business had been done. Drills had been inquired for to a moderate extent only, and the few sales reported showed no change in values. There had been no arrivals of American Cotton Goods. Coals: Owing to the heavy stocks of Cardiff prices had further declined; the arrivals had been 1,100 tons, all of which were for sale. The settlements reported were 2,074 tons, at $8.25 per ton, of which 750 tons were sold "to arrive." There was no change in the market for Metals.

CANTON.—Lead had further declined, "cargo," and mixed brands being quoted $7.50 to 7.55, and W. B. and Hole chops at $7.60 to 7.65. Quicksilver had advanced to $69 to 700.

AMOY.—A small business in Yarns is reported at $91 to 102.50 for 16-24, and $87 to 93.25 for Bombay. But little had been done in Grey Shirtings or T-Cloths.

PENANG.—The business done during the fortnight had again been small, demand continued inactive, and sales were difficult to effect at quotations.

SINGAPORE.—The market for imports had been decidedly dull, the demand for almost all the principal staples having subsided; the business reported shows a considerable falling off from the returns of the previous fortnight; there had been hardly any change in quotations, but the tendency of rates for cotton goods was easier.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—A fairly steady demand had continued, and about 3,500 piculs had been bought at full prices for common and low medium, and a reduction of $1 per picul on the grades above. Stocks had increased to 6,000 piculs. The barque Cremona had cleared for New York, leaving the Willard Mudgett to follow. Quotations:—Common, $10 to 11; good common, $12 to 15; medium, $16 to 17; good medium, $18 to 21; fine, $22 to 25; finest, $27 to 32. Export from May 1 to date:—

HIOGO-OSAKA.—There had been an active inquiry, the demand running principally upon Teas from common to good medium, and these grades had advanced in value. Settlements since Sept. 24 had been 7,000 piculs, and for the season to date 53,000, against 47,400 piculs last year.

NAGASAKI.—During the early part of the interval scarcely any transactions had been effected; latterly, however, holders had shown an inclination to meet buyers; this, coupled with better news from America, had resulted in settlements to some extent. The insurrection being quelled, and labour much cheapened, stocks hitherto held back in the interior would come forward freely, and a much larger business at easier rates, would, it was expected, result.

HANKOW.—The business for the week had amounted to 800 chests, comprising Sung-yang at Tls. 8.70 to 9 (including re-exports); Tungshan at Tls. 8.00 to 8.75, and Oanfa at Tls. 7.75 to 8. The shipments to Shanghai on native account had been under 1,000 chests, and as the stock was reduced to 1,200 chests, the season was expected to close at an early date.

SHANGHAI.—Black: An average business had been effected during the week, settlements being 7,000 chests, against 6,000 chests for the corresponding week last season. The Celestial Empire says:—A total deficiency of seventeen to eighteen millions from this port and Foochow seems to be now nearly certain, and this has encouraged buyers to continue the absorption of the stock at full prices. All the 8d. Tea (Tls. 11½) has been cleared off for the time being, the Teas which are now being bought at 9d. (Tls. 13) being about a halfpenny better. A little more very Common Tea will continue to dribbie down from the river, but probably not enough to add much to the export for the season. The comparative cheapness of Black Leaf Congou has caused a much enlarged export to America this season. Green: A large business had been done, settlements being 32,000 half-chests, against 9,000 half-chests in corresponding period last season. More buyers had entered the market. with the result that prices had advanced about five

Total arrivals	322,000 chests	... 318,000 chests
Settlements and shipments	221,000 „	... 245,000 „
Stock	101,000 „	... 73,000 „

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Westall, Galton and Co.'s Weekly Letter of Oct. 27 says :—More activity has been latterly displayed on this market, it having now become almost a certainty that the total supply of Congou cannot exceed 640,000 chests, or a deficit of 10,000,000 lbs. as compared with last year. Further arrivals from the country are not estimated at over 15,000 chests, and the season is fast drawing to a close. The October export by steamer will be very moderate, say 2,457,500 lbs. The clipper ships Wylo and Jerusalem are now on the berth, and will be despatched early in November. Congou : The better grades remain much as last quoted, but an advance of 10 per cent. in the common kinds has taken place. Teas that last week were obtainable at Tls. 8½ short cannot now be purchased under Tls. 9½. Souchong, Oolong, Flowery Pekoe and Scented Teas remain unchanged.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co.'s Market Report says :—A quieter tone has prevailed. Congous : Settlements have been very moderate, and prices have ruled without any material change. At Macao considerable contracts are reported of low and common qualities. Scented Teas : Capers have not been in strong demand, and only a small amount of transactions are recorded ; prices have generally ruled easier, and we quote a decline on medium and fine teas of about one tael ; common kinds have been neglected, and no settlements of these have been made. Scenting flower has been very scarce and dear, and in consequence, teamen are, at the close, showing more firmness with their stocks. Purchases of Pekoes have been very trifling ; fine "long leaf" teas have been taken at a reduction on previous rates of about half a tael ; all other kinds show a fall of one tael ; "short leaf" teas have been bought at Tls. 13 to 15, and "long leaf" teas at Tls. 14½ to 26 per picul. The following is a summary of the fortnight's business : Congo, 1,600 boxes at Tls. 15 to 28 per picul ; Scented Caper, 10,300 boxes at Tls. 16 to 24 per picul ; Scented Orange Pekoe, 1,600 boxes at Tls. 13 to 26 per per picul.

AMOY.—The market for both Formosa and Amoy Ooloongs had been quiet, and settlements had been on a much reduced scale, without material change in prices. The natives in Formosa continued to pay high rates for the Autumn leaf, which had induced firmness on the part of holders at Amoy, but the market for Amoys was weaker. Amoy Congous had been bought to the extent of 4,000 half-chests at $11 to $12 for common, to $15 to 17 for fair to medium kinds.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—For some days subsequent to the date of our last report the market continued active, and a large business was done, with a tendency towards higher rates. Unfavourable advices from Europe, however, had since caused heavy rejections to be made, and arrivals having been very large, native dealers had become ready sellers at the prices noted below. At the close very fair purchases were being effected, but the demand seemed to be almost exclusively for the Continent and America, and it appeared as if English buyers were awaiting further reductions in order to operate, as they were to some extent holding aloof. The fall in prices for Hanks had been about $40 to 50 per picul. Oshius had not undergone much change, but the demand for this description of Silk had been limited. Settlements had been 2,350 bales of Hanks, 450 bales of Oshius and 75 bales of Filatures, making a total of 2,875 bales. Arrivals had amounted to 5,350 bales, and stocks were increased to 3,100 bales. The total export since July 1 to date had been 8,747 bales, against 15,358 bales for same period last year. Quotations :—Hanks : Superior, 20s. 8d. to 21s. ; best No. 1 and 2, 19s. 11d. to 20s. 3d. ; good No. 2, 18s. 11d. to 19s. 7d. ; good all round No. 2½, 17s. 11d. to 18s. 8d. ; medium No. 3, 17s. 3d. to 17s. 7d. ; common to inferior No. 4 and 5, 16s. 3d. to 16s. 11d. Oshius : Best, nominal ; good and medium, 18s. 3d. to 19s. 3d. Hamatski : Good to best, 16s. 7d. to 17s. 3d. ; common to medium, 15s. 11d. to 16s. 3d. Kakeda : extra, 21s. 8d. to 22s. 3d. ; best, 20s. 3d. to 21s. ; good, 19s. 3d. to 19s. 11d. Filatures : 22s. 3d. to 26s. 8d.

SHANGHAI.—Mr. A. R. Burkhill's Circular says : The excitement which was current at the date of my last has entirely subsided, and in lieu thereof we have had a dragging business at gradually declining rates. Our closing quotations show a fall of Tls. 25 per picul on Chop Tsatlees, and as stocks are now rapidly increasing, and holders very anxious to realise, a further decline can hardly be avoided. The prices paid had been, Blue Elephants, 19s. 7d. ; Red Peony, 19s. 2d. ; Bird Chop Kin Ling, 19s. 5d. ; Elephant Mowfong, 19s. 7d. Com. Tsatlee, 16s. 10d. to 17s. 3d.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co.'s Circular says:—In the first week of the past fortnight a fair demand existed for Tsatlee reel, and all medium classes found buyers at rates somewhat under those ruling at the close of last English mail ; nearly 300 bales changed hands in the early part of the fortnight, but since the French mail left settlements do not amount to more than 140 bales. Natives are firm in their demands, and it is hardly likely that standard No. 4 could be brought much under the quotation given below ; this firmness is induced by the unfavourable accounts of the sixth crop, the yield is reported as inferior in quality to that of the fifth crop, and also to be much less in quantity than was as one time anticipated ; a large proportion of the crop is said to be yellow silk.

MISCELLANEOUS.

YOKOHAMA.—Camphor was quoted $18.50 to $19.50, Copper $23 to 23.75, Isinglass $24 to 25.50, Rice $1.80 to 1.85, Tobacco $7.50 to 9.50 and Wax $13 to 14. Silkworms' Eggs : Arrivals had been about 1,600,000 cards, and sales amounted to 600,000 cards. Prices had gradually fallen, and closed at 20 to 30 cents for good sorts. A large quantity of medium and inferior descriptions had been withdrawn from the market, and would probably be destroyed, but notwithstanding this, there will still remain on hand half a million of cards for which no purchasers will be found, as the last of the graineurs will have left by this mail.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—Camphor was quoted $15.50 to 16, Rice $2 to 2. 40, Isinglass $17 to 19 and Wax $13 to 13.25 per picul. Copper : Purchases of 4,000 piculs are reported, at prices showing no mat erial change. Camphor : Deliveries in fulfilment of former contracts had amounted to 700 piculs. In the open market there had been no parcels on offer. Wax : Settlements amounted to 800 piculs, chiefly for the China market. Tobacco : Deliveries were estimated at 1,200 piculs, mostly in execution of old contracts, and owing to increased competition prices for all descriptions had further advanced.

NAGASAKI.—Messrs. Holme, Ringer and Co.'s Circular says :—Tobacco. —There has been eager competition for the parcels on offer at gradually hardening rates. The yield is reported to be equal to last season's ; the accounts, however, of the growing crop are very gloomy, and it is affirmed that the typhoon which passed over the producing districts during the month of August caused great destruction. Settlements : 4,371 bales, say piculs 2,620, at $6.25 to $8.80 per picul. Stocks : 2,000 bales. Shipments : 326 piculs. Wax : High prices still rule, and during the month 800 boxes have been purchased for the Hong Kong market, at about $14.75 per picul. Stock : 500 boxes. Camphor : With none on the spot, exporters are willing to contract for forward delivery at $16.25 to $17.00. Rice has advanced some 20 to 30 cents per picul, with a strong demand for shipment to the southern ports of China, caused by the export of this grain from Siam having been prohibited. Hokoku, the kind usually shipped, we quote at $1.86 to $1.90 per picul. Higo, cleaned, $3.00 ; uncleaned, $2.30. Wheat $1.70 per picul, nominal. Coal : For a few days, to meet their freight engagements, shippers were compelled to pay as high as $4.60 per ton for Karatz, and $3.90 for Imabuku ; but with few vessels loading, and larger supplies coming forward, dealers are now willing to make a liberal concession, and quotations are nominally, Karatz $4.30, Imabuku $3.50 per ton. Stock—of the former, 1,000 tons ; and of the latter, 500 tons. Export during the month, exclusive of what steamers have taken for their own consumption, 11,800 tons.

HONG KONG.—Sugar : A fair business had been done in White, principally for shipment to Bombay, while Browns had not been inquired for. At the close the market for all kinds was weak. Chui Chow : White was quoted $7 to 7.30 ; Brown, $3.80 to 4 ; Shekloong : White, $7 to 7.20 ; Brown, $4 to 4.10 ; other kinds, $3.40 to 3.70 per picul. At Swatow, the new crop was shortly expected, which was reported to be of good quality, and very large. No transactions are reported. In Camphor and Gamboge there had been no change ; Vermilion was worth $37 per picul.

CANTON.—Cassia Lignea, was quoted for Loting $9.70 in mats, $9.90 in boxes, for Tai Wo $9.80 in mats, $10 in boxes. Sales 3,500 piculs. Stock 20,000 piculs. Star Aniseed $25 to 26. Rhubarb, No. 2 $40. Alum, $1.75 to 1.85 per picul. Camphor $20 to 21 per picul, packed.

SINGAPORE.—Gambier had been bought largely in anticipation of the new regulations, mostly at $4.42½ to 4.45 ; business subsequently had been almost stopped, the last purchase reported being at $4.35 by a firm who had not signed the agreement. There had been no supplies of Black Pepper of any importance, and no arrivals were expected for about six weeks from date. White Pepper continued steady. Pearl Sago was very scarce, manufacture being stopped owing to continued drought. Sago Flour was firm but less active. No change in the price of Tapioca. Tin had been in request at advancing prices, but at the close the demand had subsided and prices were weaker. Coffee had continued dull.

PENANG.—There had been a fair inquiry for Tin, and transactions in Black Pepper had been small, owing to the want of supplies. Other articles had been quiet, at about previous rates.

THE appeal case of DE BUSSCHE v. ALT, which came forward a short time back, has been delayed in hearing, in consequence of Chief Justice BAGGALLAY being at Westminster. It will, however, be proceeded with without delay, and will probably come on again to-morrow.

A committee of officers has been formed for the erection of a memorial to the late Colonel the Hon. Augustus Anson, in order to place on record their great appreciation "of his worth as a soldier, of his gallant services in the field, and of his unwearied efforts for several years in Parliament and elsewhere to assist his brother officers of all grades, and protect their interests." The committee is composed of—The Earl of Galloway, Lieutenant-General the Hon. St. George Foley, Major-General Frederick Stephenson, C.B., Major-General Charles Foster, Major-General Sir Garnet Wolseley, K.C.B., Major-General Hope Crealock, C.B., Major-General Sir Dighton Probyn, V.C., K.C.M.G., Colonel Sir Henry Wilmot, V.C., Colonel Sarel, Colonel the Hon. J. C. Dormer, Colonel Biddulph, R.A., C.B., Colonel Loyd-Lindsay, and Colonel Francis Grant.

FROM Tashkend, under date 12th inst., it is reported that peace in Kashgar has been restored. The new Emir, Beg-Kuli-Beg, has despatched to Constantinople a considerable quantity of gold and silver, and at the same time an embassy to the Emperor of China with peace proposals. In Yarkend an English agent has arrived. Beg-Kuli-Beg's army has been reinforced by English guns, which were transported through Thibet.

It has been suggested to the War Office by the Admiralty that all works belonging to that department at the naval establishments at Hong Kong shall in future be placed under the control of the Commanding Royal Engineer.

THE type, plant, and material used at Hong Kong for the defunct Hong Kong Times is to be sold by auction on behalf of the owner, Mr. George Duddell.

The London & China Telegraph.

THIS MAIL'S NEWS.

In the general news brought by the present mail from China the accounts concerning the famine still occupy the most important place. All that has been reported concerning the seriousness of the disaster is fully confirmed, and there can now be no doubt that the suffering will be intense. The native residents at Hong Kong are taking steps to aid the victims, and the missionaries in Shanghai have held a meeting on the subject. At the latter place a general public meeting was also to be convened. While, however, this terrible disaster, which should engage the whole energies of the Government, is going on, we still find the Chinese officials as intent as ever upon obtaining war material. A trial of the "Lay" torpedo has been made at Tientsin, but has not apparently been by any means successful. The traffic to Woosung in the old passenger boats had been resumed in consequence of the closing of the railway, and a serious accident, which resulted in a large number of Chinese being drowned, has shown the folly of the course adopted. This is impliedly admitted, even by the native paper in Shanghai, which is recognised as the organ of the Taoutai there. An interesting example of the working of lekin taxation is given in a memorial from the Governor of Kweichow. It is well worthy of notice as showing the error of our recognising by treaty any tax of so irregular a character. The whole province is "overspread with a network of lekin barriers," yet the entire revenue derived from that source does not exceed Tls. 100,000. The Governor's object is to relieve the Szechuen salt trade, which, he says, is so oppressed by the various legal and illegal exactions that it is nearly choked. Yet salt stands for only one-half of the Tls. 100,000 already referred to as the sum raised from lekin in Kweichow; and he offers to pay this amount annually to the Kweichow exchequer, if Szechuen salt is ordered to be altogether exempted from taxation, in future at the lekin barriers. At Shanghai it was reported that kidnapping had again made its appearance in the foreign settlements. The report of the China Merchants' Company has been published. The Autumn races were to commence on Nov. 2. Telegraphic advices via America state that further serious charges are to be brought against Mr. O. B. Bradford, late United States Vice-Consul, on the expiration of his present sentence. At Hong Kong complaints continued to be made that the Estimates for 1878 were not brought forward; it is objected that it is impossible they can be dealt with satisfactorily at so late an hour. The prisoners some time back sentenced to be flogged, and with respect to whom a long official correspondence took place, have not yet received their punishment. The competitive system for filling appointments by natives has proved to be a complete failure.

From Japan the most interesting item of intelligence is that the Government contemplate proposing certain changes in the Treaty tariffs; they desire to increase the import and to diminish the export duties; and it is further stated as probable that they will propose to open two new Treaty ports. Cholera is decreasing. The birthday of the Mikado was recognised for the first time by the foreign residents in Yokohama on Nov. 3. Sir Harry Parkes has visited Niigata; and was expected to return to Tokio via the Shinshiu route. The districts lately in rebellion are now reported to be quieting down; and the Government are taking measures to relieve the distress caused by the war.

From the Straits Settlements the only important item of news is the announcement of the election of the Maharajah of Johore to be Sultan of the Moar State. The principal merchants of Singapore have come to an agreement that they will accept delivery of produce only at their own godowns, and not at those of the Chinese dealers. The preliminary steps have been taken for the formation of a Straits Asiatic Society.

THE SHANGHAI CHAMBER AND THE "LEKIN" DUES.

THE most important portion of the memorial from the London representatives of the Shanghai Chamber to the Earl of DERBY, of which we gave the full text in our last, is that in which the true nature of lekin duty is discussed. The memorialists hold that the tax is practically either an additional import duty, in which case its levy on British goods is in contravention of the Treaty, or it is an inland duty, and as such is commutable by a single payment. The cogency of this argument cannot be denied; but unfortunately the subject has not been regarded in so clear a light by Sir THOMAS WADE, who has been induced to believe that the Treaty clause which exempts foreign goods upon which the commuted transit dues have been paid from all further inland charges whatsoever does not exempt them from lekin. It is rather difficult to discuss matters with those who hold that all does not mean all, but only a part; but such has been the position persistently upheld by the Chinese, and to which Sir THOMAS WADE gives official recognition by his convention. There can be no doubt whatever what was the impression in the mind of Lord ELGIN when the Treaty was negotiated, and though we might in fairness be called upon to consider that on the minds of the Chinese, provided it were in conformity with the general spirit of the treaty, we are clearly not called upon to do so when the alleged impression is not only not in conformity with but in direct opposition to the obvious intention of the regulations framed. The idea in introducing the transit dues clause was simply to fix the inland duties at some point, as it was utterly impossible to ascertain what they were from the statements of the Chinese. That this was the object in view the Chinese negotiators of the Treaty fully knew; and it was therefore their business, if it were necessary to reserve any special form of tax, to have stated so, and to have fixed its amount. Failing their doing so there can be no question that they assented to the principle we desired to establish, and agreed that the whole of the inland taxes should be commutable by a single payment. This arrangement, it is almost needless to say, is the only rational one that could by any possibility be arrived at, as it is simply absurd to agree that a commutation for inland charges shall be paid by us, but no guarantee be given that it is to exempt the goods from all such imposts. Yet this is what is done officially by the Chefoo Convention, and the effect of that instrument being ratified in its present form will clearly be to enable the Chinese to do in broad daylight what hitherto they have been obliged to do surreptitiously, that is, to collect lekin upon goods after the commuted dues have been paid upon them. This principle once conceded, the whole of the protection afforded by the Treaty will be gone, as it will then be within the power of the Chinese local officials to place as much inland taxation as they please upon our goods, only calling it lekin instead of barrier dues. The mistake in the Convention, however, does not end here; as in regard to opium (upon which any inland taxes the Chinese please can be levied) the Convention actually agrees to aid the Chinese in levying the lekin in the Settlements without stipulating what the amount of such levy shall be. Clearly, as the memorialists point out, if we are to help the Chinese to levy additional duties upon opium or upon any other goods by means of the foreign Customs and within the foreign settlements, this should be done in a straightforward manner, that is, by increasing the import duty now levied. This is obviously what the proposed provisions of the Convention aim at attaining, but in a peculiarly Chinese and round-about manner; and it is absurd to ignore the simple question with regard to opium, that is at issue between the Chinese Government and our own, which is, in plain English—"How much will you pay?" If we are willing to give a larger import duty matters may go on as they are, as the Chinese Government will be only too glad to obtain the additional revenue at which they obviously aim, and it will certainly be wiser to yield on this point than to agree to afford our own aid to the Chinese to levy an indefinite amount in the form of lekin by means of the Foreign Customs and within the foreign settlements.

As will be seen by the reports given elsewhere, the subject of Chinese emigration has been discussed the same evening from two very different points of view, Mr. CHESSON, who lectured at the Chelsea Vestry Hall, taking a broad and liberal view of the question, and holding that we are called upon to extend to the Chinese the same rights which we have long been ourselves demanding from China, while Mr. MACALISTER, who lectured at the Colonial Institute, took up a strongly anti-Chinese position. It is noticeable, however, that the speakers at the latter place took a different view of the subject, and were generally far more favourable to the Chinaman than the lecturer. Upon the kindred subject of the Chinese Immigrants into California The Times has a very well-considered article, the substance of which has apparently been elicited by the fact that the Governor of the State, in his Message, expresses himself upon the question very decidedly. The presence of the Chinese has, he declares, initiated a conflict which it may not be within the power of the local Government to suppress. If the Chinese are protected by the law, and are suffered to come in any numbers they please, the fear is that they may begin to squeeze out the white inhabitants, and to take possession of the country in their place. The Times, however, justly holds that there is no danger of any such contingency arising; that it is the duty of the State to protect the Chinese, and finally, that, "useful or not "useful, they ought not be legislated for at the dictation of "men who are scarcely within the law at any time."

THE Standard takes occasion of the issue of the new Chinese Loan to deprecate the opposition of the ruling class in China to the extension of peaceful enterprise, the development of the material resources of the Empire, and the admission of foreigners to the interior of the country, and considers that there is no prospect of improvement in this direction, and that the Government at Peking, while resisting, as in the case of the Woosung Railway, every peaceful invention, and doggedly endeavouring to exclude foreigners, has welcomed with alacrity every warlike improvement, and eagerly sought the instruction of Europe in military matters.

THE difficulty so often complained of in obtaining combined action on the part of the communities in the East has received an illustration in Singapore, in the refusal of one or two firms there to join in the measure a short time back set on foot for preventing the adulteration of gambier. There can be no question that the credit of the trade demands that some such step should be taken; and we trust that the action of the meeting of gambier buyers in London (a report of which is given further on) will have the effect of rendering nugatory the opposition to this course which has unfortunately been made in Singapore.

IN an article on the Consular Reports for 1876 the Daily Telegraph gives a generally laudatory review of affairs in Japan, and looks very hopefully upon the present state of matters there. It considers that reaction, a troublesome insurrection notwithstanding, has not yet showed any signs of becoming prevalent, and the whole country may be emphatically qualified as "still moving," and it holds that in the Government Schools established at Hakodadi lie the best hopes of eventual assimilation between the "now no longer "hostile, but still conflicting civilisation of Europe and of "Japan."

THE senior Puisne Judge of Ceylon, Mr. C. H. STEWART, has been appointed a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

H.E. KUO, the Chinese Minister, has been introduced to Her MAJESTY'S presence, and presented his credentials.

THE ADULTERATION OF GAMBIER.

A meeting was held at the offices of Messrs. Boutcher, Mortimer, and Co., on the 10th inst., Mr. A. Lafone in the chair, with the object of supporting the action recently taken by the merchants in Singapore with a view to the prevention of the adulteration of gambier. It will be recollected that in order to check the adulteration at present carried on, the principal Singapore merchants have entered into an engagement to insist upon gambier and pepper being delivered at their godowns in Singapore. A small minority, however, as usual, have not signed the agreement, and the present meeting, in which the leading gambier buyers in London took part, was in consequence convened, and the following resolutions were passed :— Proposed by Mr. J. G. Hepburn, and seconded by Mr. Samuel Barrow, and unanimously agreed to—

That this meeting cordially approves of the action taken by the Singapore merchants in endeavouring to put an end to the adulteration of gambier, and pledges itself not to buy gambier which after this date has not been purchased in accordance with the conditions agreed to by the majority of the merchants at their meeting in Singapore in November last.

Proposed by Mr. Page, and seconded by Mr. S. Barrow—

That this meeting pledges itself not to buy gambier that has been landed more than one month except on re-weights. This resolution to take effect on and after Jan. 1 next.

Copies of these resolutions were ordered to be sent to Liverpool and Leeds, with a request for the co-operation of those interested in the questions involved.

QUEENSLAND AND CHINESE IMMIGRATION.

On Tuesday evening a paper on the above subject was read before the Royal Colonial Institute, at the Pall Mall Restaurant, by Mr. Arthur Macalister, C.M.G. The Duke of Manchester, K.P., was in the chair. The paper commenced by a brief outline of the rise and progress of Queensland from its erection into a colony in 1859, before which year it formed an outlying portion of New South Wales. Mr. Macalister traced on a large map of the new colony its boundary lines, which enclose an area of 420,492,800 acres. Its population at this epoch was but 24,000, but even then it owned 3,000,000 sheep and 400,000 head of cattle. In 1868 there were 968,279 head of cattle and 8,921,784 sheep, but in 1876, cattle being deemed to pay better, there were 1,985,807 head and only 7,241,810 sheep. The population in March last was 188,000, and must now be 200,000. In 1875 the total exports connected with pastoral industry were £1,551,202, and the total exports of gold and other metals, £1,847,575. The state of education, development of railways and telegraphs, and the finance of Queensland were also reviewed, and its wonderful growth shown. Coming now to the late Chinese invasion, the reader of the paper said the notion which had got abroad that Queensland wished to exclude the Chinese from the colony altogether was a mistake. The question was, their introduction in large numbers to the Queensland gold-fields. In other words, they had to consider whether from what we know of the habits of the Chinamen settling in the gold-fields these people are a desirable addition to the population of any Australian colony. He proposed to show that on both moral and social grounds they were not. He did not object to the presence of a few, but to their swarming, and to their swarming at the gold-fields. They had for years been found on all the Queensland gold-fields, but he proposed to speak of the Palmer River diggings only, the position of which on the coast about eight hundred miles north of Brisbane, the capital, he pointed out on the map. These diggings had hitherto been alluvial, and had yielded two millions sterling since their discovery. He spoke of the fascination of gold-digging, and reminded the audience that the European gold-digger had been a most important factor in Australian civilisation. But the Chinese immigrant was its bane, and while the whole European population of the Cook and Palmer districts did not number more than five thousand all told, they had been swamped within the last eighteen months with a deluge of thirty thousand Chinese. The lecturer went on to say :—

Recent agitation in the Colony, which found an unfavourable echo in the press of this country, will have made you acquainted with the measures which have been taken to regulate and control this Chinese emigration. Until a very recent period no public question has ever been raised in connection with the Chinese. Their habits were known and detested, but they had nowhere congregated in such numbers as to render their presence dangerous or unbearable. They were so isolated that their proclivities were kept under. They never were really in competition with the English labourer, and never could compete with him, for the highest paid labour, and that requiring most muscle and aptitude, was quite beyond his reach. You seldom saw a Chinaman splitting rails, and they have made no show in any of the skilled handicrafts. They were not even much sought after by those desirous of having cheap labour, employers finding the European emigrant equally cheap in the end. But there are always a number of Chinese speculators living in China ready to develop a "trade" with their countrymen when a chance offers, and the proximity of Cooktown to the Chinese ports, the accidental facilities afforded by a line of steamers seeking trade, were too much for their cupidity. To what class of their own countrymen these Chinese immigrants belong—whether released convicts or the sweepings of the streets—I am not sufficiently aware, but having travelled with some of them, I must say that a more wretched-looking set of human beings I have never seen.

Had the Chinese come into the colony in the ordinary course of immigration, and engaged in the ordinary pursuits of colonisation, nothing would probably have been heard of them—no complaint would have been made by the colonists, nor would any legislative action have been invoked. The ordinary checks brought about by supply and demand would have rendered things self-adjusting. But they neither come in the same spontaneous and voluntary course as the English emigrant, nor have they followed pursuits in which they can be controlled. It has been recognised as the undoubted right of all countries, and has been the practice of the United States, the country of all others most interested, to seek protection against passengers being landed whose condition was such as was likely to make them become a burden on the public. Such precaution would, amongst Anglo-Saxons, be required only against individual cases. How much more necessary, then, that some precaution be taken against a whole army of immigrants who arrive under circumstances in which they are almost certain to become a burden, and otherwise subvert the ordinary conditions of life? The Chinese who come to Queensland are recruited from those ports in which the most objectionable of the Chinese reside. They come under arrangements with contractors or "bosses," which contracts are imperfectly understood, probably even by the immigrants themselves, and to a strange country and uncertain occupation. They take it for granted they can live where Englishmen can; and this is perhaps the strongest incentive for the venture. They have studied the genius of English Colonisation sufficiently to know that safeguards are provided against disaster, and that if the employers fail they have the resources of the country. There is no guarantee given either to the Government of China or that of the Colony that the people are brought under correct representations, nor is there any assurance that these contractors will make good the representations made. I have always observed that in the colonisation of a good portion of Australia the gold-digger has been the "pioneer," and towns have risen up and prospered after he had gone. Nowhere has the Chinaman settled in any considerable number that he has not created a blot on our institutions. Even in the cities, amid the amenities of city life, the "Chinese quarter" is viewed with loathing. Nowhere has he blended with the Anglo-Saxon. The interval between them is so great that it can never be passed. The progressive ideas of Western civilisation do not harmonise with one dwarfed by age. They are not Colonists in our acceptation of the term. They come alone, and do not bring their wives or families with them. Mr. Huc asserts of them that "they are sceptical and indifferent to everything that concerns the moral side of man," and this estimate of them has double force when applied in the exceptional conditions under which they live in Queensland. They regard a good coffin as of more importance than a correct life; and certainly what we hear of their habits, though unfit for discussion, is sufficient to deter any government from forcing them on a people unwilling to receive them. They do not speak or understand our language, have no desire for progress, and have no conception of representative or free institutions. They come to Queensland for none of the ordinary mechanical pursuits of life; their object is simple enough—to take possession of the gold-fields, to extract from the earth its auriferous deposits, and to this extent to impoverish the country, and having done this, to return to China to spend their days. They invest no capital in our undertakings, and undertake no industries of a permanent character. After they have gone there is no trace of their existence, not even a tombstone to perpetuate their memory. Their very ashes they make an effort to have transported to the "Flowery Land."

A discussion followed, headed by Mr. Tidman, of Messrs. Mactaggart, Tidman and Co., who testified to the great utility of the Chinese in the Straits, Java, &c. He pointed out that it was unreasonable to expect that the people of Australia could find out the good qualities of them when they received them with such determined opposition. Chinese have their bad habits as well as Australians and others; but their industry and order had in Australia even, and especially in California, been productive of the greatest benefits amongst a population given to idle and dissolute habits. Sir Francis Murphy, of Melbourne, Mr. W. Westgarth and Mr. Woods also testified to the great utility of the Chinese in developing the vast uncultivated tracks of Queensland, and Messrs. J. F. Kelsey, Dennistown, F. P. Labilliere, W. F. Hale, H. B. Strangways, the Right Hon. Hugh Childers, W. Hemmont, and the Rev. B. Belchar also addressed the meeting.

CHINESE EMIGRATION.

A lecture on the above subject was delivered on the 11th inst. by Mr. F. W. Chesson, Secretary of the Aborigines' Protection Society, at the Chelsea Vestry Hall, before the members of the Trades' Guild of Learning. The lecturer was briefly introduced to the meeting by the chairman, Mr. Leonard Courtney, M.P., and opened his remarks by the expression of the opinion that if this country persisted in opening up China it must be willing to give it reciprocal advantages. The only chance of inducing the Chinese to remain in their own country was to reverse the policy that had hitherto been so fanatically pursued. He then proceeded to glance at the causes of Chinese emigration, enumerating as the principal, over-population, child murder, and desolating famines, such as those to which India had been subject; and reviewed the evils resulting from the importation of Chinese coolies to Peru and Cuba, describing the cruelties perpetrated upon them by their Spanish employers. As a remedy for this state of things, the lecturer suggested that these nations, having treaty relations with Spain, should join in a remonstrance with the Spanish Government on the subject. Turning to America, Mr. Chesson said that it was a relief to look at that side of the picture, for though in California the Chinese were practically a proscribed race, at all events they were not enticed there by false pretences, and sold to the highest bidder in the town. He described them as an industrious and thrifty race, no American master being able to complain of their unwillingness to give a fair day's labour for a fair day's pay. With respect to the advance of the Chinese in the British Colonies, the lecturer expressed an adverse opinion to the restrictions that had been placed by Colonial Governments upon the introduction of Chinese labour. The conclusions he drew were that Chinese emigration was now merely in its infancy, and that in time it would so increase as to exercise a prodigious influence upon the fortunes of nations and the industrial forces of the world. He thought that in the interests of society the Chinese should be required to emigrate in a due proportion of the sexes. Speaking in reference to a possible influx of the Chinese into England, Mr. Chesson said he did not see why a Chinaman should not keep a shop in London or Manchester as well as an Englishman should carry on his business in Hong Kong. If such a phenomenon should take place, he earnestly hoped that it would not unsettle the nerves of Englishmen. In conclusion, he said that he wished to impress upon the minds of all present the sentiment that every nation including the Chinese, had the same right of expansion and development as ourselves. Votes of thanks to the lecturer and the chairman closed the proceedings.

An urgent request has been forwarded to the President from San Francisco that he will take measures for the protection of the Chinese residents in that city. It is generally believed that there will be serious trouble unless the mob shall be confronted with sufficient power on the part of the Government to crush it. It is known that the Chinese are well armed, and when attacked will strike back. The respectable classes of whites are in sympathy with the Mongolians. The President has given the most ample assurance that he will take all necessary action in the premises. The United States Marshal and the District Attorney at San Francisco are supposed to have received instructions to place themselves in co-operation with troops at Mare Island.

Governor Irwin, of California, in his message to the Legislature, declares that the presence of Chinese has initiated an irrepressible conflict; that if unlimited immigration be conceded to the Chinese their civilisation may override that of American citizens provided they are protected under treaty provisions; and then the imminent danger is that the conflict may become so sharp that the Government may be unable to secure to the Chinese that protection to which the treaty and humanity entitle them; that the plain duty of the United States' Government is to secure the abrogation of the treaty provisions permitting unrestricted Chinese immigration, and the California Legislature should petition Congress and the President to that end.

TRIAL OF THE JAPANESE CORVETTE "KON-GO."

The Japanese armour-clad composite corvette Kon-go, built and engined by Earle's Shipbuilding and Engineering Company (Limited) Hull, was taken out of dock on the 6th inst. for her official trial trip. The Vice-Chairman and some of the officers of the company, with Mr. Reed, C.B. and Mr. Kinso and Mr. Stuart Lane, secretaries of the Japanese Legation, and several other gentlemen, joined the vessel in Grimsby Roads as the anchor was being weighed, and she then proceeded to Withernsea, where, after running unofficially two runs over the measured mile course, and attaining a mean speed of 13·3 knots, the official trials were commenced. The result of these for six consecutive runs was an average of 13·728 knots, thus exceeding the stipulated speed of 13 knots. The Kon-go has been constructed upon the model of what is known as the "Gem" class of corvette in the English navy, but with some alterations which have been suggested by Mr. Reed. In order to improve the defensive powers of the Kon-go a belt of 4½in. armour-plate has been worked between the two wooden skins of the ship in the wake of the engines and boilers, and behind this armour-plate, and extending from it both to the bow and to the stern, a broader strake of thin iron-plating was also worked and riveted to the iron frames of the ship, thus adding greatly, both structurally and defensively, to the strength. In providing for these improvements Mr. Reed has made the Japanese vessels somewhat larger—about one foot broader and ten feet longer than the English corvettes, and has given her a displacement of about 2,200 tons, as against the 1,860 tons of the English vessels. The draught of water is the same as theirs—viz., 17½ft. The Kon-go is armed with six 15-centimetre guns, manufactured by Krupp, of Essen, together with three 17-centimetre guns of similar manufacture as chasers, of which two are bow chasers firing in a line with the keel, and training thence till they bear abeam, and one at the stern capable of training from right astern to 35 deg. forward of the beam.

The trial was followed by a luncheon, at which Mr. Bingham, chairman of Earle's Ship-building Company, presided. Among the company present were:—Suzuki Kinso Sama and Mr. Stuart Lane, secretaries of the Japanese Legation; Mr. Reed, C.B., M.P., the designer of the vessel; General Rodder, of the United States of America; and Messrs. Sasso, Yamagata, Yokoi, and Sone. After the toasts of "The Queen" and "The Mikado of Japan," given by the Chairman, had been drunk, Mr. Bingham proposed "Success to the Kon-go, coupling with it the healths of Mr. Kinso and Mr. Stuart Lane," and spoke of the pleasure it must have given those gentlemen, as well as himself and all concerned to witness the very splendid results of the trials which had just been made. Suzuki Sama, the Japanese Secretary of Legation, responded to the toast in English. He said he regretted the absence of his Excellency Wooyeno, who had been at the last moment detained in London by a circumstance which he was sure those present would be glad to be informed of, viz., the addition by Madame Wooyeno of another Japanese to the subjects of the Mikado. He would not, however, fail to report to the Minister, by telegraph, the results of the trial, which, so far as they had been as yet ascertained, appeared to be entirely satisfactory, and he joined with the chairman in drinking success to the Kon-go with hearty congratulations to Mr. Reed, Earle's Ship-building Company, and all those who had assisted in her construction. Mr. Stuart Lane, English Secretary of Legation, also responded to the toast with a few words, and on behalf of the Japanese Legation proposed the toast of "Prosperity to Earle's Shipbuilding Company." Mr. Bingham responded and proposed the health of Mr. Reed and the Staff. Mr. Reed, in response, spoke in terms of strong approval of the construction both of the ship and engines, which, he said, reflected the utmost credit upon Earle's Company, who had spared neither pains nor expense in making them in every way worthy of the Government who had intrusted them with the responsibility of building them. He also congratulated the representatives of the Legation upon the remarkable ability which had been displayed by four young Japanese students whom he had placed upon his staff to watch the progress of the vessel and engines, and thus to instruct themselves in the practice of their profession. He said these students had at the same time made very remarkable progress in the mathematical studies which the shipbuilder and the engineer have to master, and added that he was quite sure one or two, if not more, of them, if examined at the Cambridge University, would, as another Japanese student had done, attain the highest honours. The remaining toasts proposed were "the Visitors" and "the Ladies," the last toast being responded to by Messrs. Sasso, Yamagata, Yokoi, and Soné.

The sister ship to the Kon-go, the Hi-yei, is being completed at Pembroke, and will be tried under steam about the end of the present month. She is in all respects a precise counterpart of the Kon-go. A third ship is being built entirely of iron, and is, properly speaking, not a corvette, but a frigate, although she is of very moderate dimensions and proportions, her length being 220ft., her breadth 48ft., her mean draught of water 18ft., her displacement in tons 3,718, and her indicated horse power 3,500. A speed of thirteen knots has been promised for this ship. She will be armed with Krupp guns, four on the main deck being each of 15¼ tons weight, and two on the upper deck being of 5½ tons each. The corvettes are single screw vessels, but the ironclad (which is named the Fooso) is a twin screw ship. She is being built by Messrs. Samuda Brothers on the Thames, and Messrs. Penn have fitted the engines. Her steam trials will be held in the course of the present month. By the desire of the Japanese Government, Mr. Reed has undertaken to deliver these three ships at Yokohama, and consequently the whole arrangements for their manning, victualling, and transport devolve upon him. He hopes to be able to despatch them in company.

Catalogue of Chinese Printed Books, Manuscripts and Drawings in the Library of the British Museum. By R. K. DOUGLAS. Printed by order of the Trustees of the British Museum. London: Longman and Co.

Half a century ago our great national library held a very subordinate rank among the nations of Europe, in the item of Chinese literature; and such as there was, it was almost inaccessible to the few who might desire to explore it—for want of a special catalogue. Any adventurer who was hardy enough to ask for a Chinese book was expected to make application for a catalogue in the department of printed books—embracing Chinese and other Oriental works. Thanks to the energy of the present librarian, and the enlightened decision of the trustees, the Chinese library of the British Museum has now expanded its dimensions in such wise as to rival the collections at Paris and St. Petersburg. Mr. Douglas thus summaries the history of the gradual growth of this section:—

The nucleus of the Library, apart from a few volumes contained in the Sloane, Harleian, Old Royal and Lansdowne bequests, was formed by a collection bequeathed to the Museum by Mr. Fowler Hull, of Sigaur, in the East Indies, in 1825. In 1843 Her Majesty presented a number of works which had been taken during the war in China of 1842, and in 1847 the collection of Chinese books belonging to Mr. Morrison the younger, amounting to 11,500 volumes, was purchased by the Government and presented to the Museum. Since that time, partly by purchase and partly by presentation, the library has reached its present very considerable dimensions, amounting in all to upwards of 20,000 Chinese volumes.

We are glad to learn that the accretions continue from year to year, and although there are still considerable lacunæ, we may hope to see these filled up, so that at no distant date the British Museum will present attractions to the Chinese scholar rarely to be met with even in China itself.

Such scholars will feel deeply indebted to Mr. Douglas for his elaborate and carefully executed catalogue. The first portion, pp. 1-271, gives the list of the printed books under the respective names of the authors, and where these are not known, the titles of the books are given—the whole alphabetically arranged. This is followed by an index of the titles of these works, also alphabetically arranged, pp. 273-324. Next comes a list of works recently added to the collection—pp. 325-328. In this part, the titles are also alphabetically arranged. Following this is a list of manuscripts under the names of the respective authors alphabetically arranged—pp. 329-341. After this is an index of the titles of these manuscripts, arranged according to the alphabet—pp. 342-344. Lastly, are the names of a few recently-acquired manuscripts—p. 344. We have implied that Mr. Douglas has done his work carefully, but that does not fully express it—he has done it wisely; and it is no insignificant work for a single hand to have produced the 344 large quarto pages of which this volume consists. We cannot say that the arrangement of the first part commends itself altogether to our judgment, for while there are a few names which stand prominent among the mass of Chinese literati, such as Sze-ma Iseen, Ma Twan-lin, and some others, yet for the greater part the titles of books are far better known to European students than the names of the authors. But we do not blame our author for this, as he had no option, it being imperative on him to follow the rule laid down for all the catalogues of the institution. We say, therefore, that he has wisely given the titles alphabetically in the form of an index, which will in a great measure obviate the inconvenience complained of. This is perhaps all that ought to be looked for in a catalogue; and as such we thankfully accept it. Still for such a literature as the Chinese, we think some little relaxing of official rigidity might be permitted with advantage. As the library continues to grow, a new catalogue will probably be called for in a few years, when we would suggest the value of an appendix or supplement, giving all the works in a classified list, divided into sections according to subjects,—as Classics, History, Geography, Travels, Astronomy, Ethics, &c. This would show what are really available, and enable anyone to select his work on any given subject.

While congratulating the Museum on the increase which has thus taken place, we cannot help noticing that there are many works not to be found on the shelves, and may instance such as the Urh shih urk she, "Twenty-two Histories;" the Urh shih sze she, Twenty-four Histories;" the Chih foo yuen kwei, "National Archives," published in the Sung dynasty, and other voluminous compilations. We miss also some important T'sing shoo, or "Collections of Reprints." We find there the three great Cyclopædiacal works T'ung che, T'ung teen, and Ma Twan-lin's Wan heen t'ung k'aou, known technically as the San tung or "Three Thesauri." The Ming dynasty supplement to Ma's T'ung is also there; but we should like to see the compound trio completed by not merely the supplements to all the three, but also the additional supplements published during the present dynasty. The nine thus complete are rarely to be met with, but it would be worthy of such an institution to make a special effort to procure them, as they would form a library of no mean significance in themselves. We might name also the Ta yuen yih t'ung che, or "Geography of the Yuen Dynasty," and other works which it would be desirable to procure; and we doubt not all these will in due time find a location in Montague House.

In looking over the pages of the catalogue, we are struck with the scrupulous conscientiousness of the author in recording so many imperfect duplicates. In the case of rare books or rare editions this may be well; but it seems to us superfluous in the case of books and pamphlets that are procurable at little cost of money or trouble. We would suggest the desirability of omitting these from any future printed edition, and relegating them to a private catalogue to be kept by the librarian, if the volumes are not otherwise disposed of.

Among other additions, we should like to see a fuller representation of the productions of the old Jesuit Fathers; and indeed we may say the same of the religious literature generally, both Christian and non-Christian.

The objects of chief importance among the MSS. are the maps and charts; and there are many things that we would willingly see discarded. We find a few rarities, however, among which we may name the famous "Harmony of the Gospels," of unknown origin, which formed the basis of Morrison's study of the Chinese language. There is also a MS. copy of Varo's Vocabulario de la lengua Mandarina con el estilo y vocablos con que se habla sine legancia. This we imagine must be the copy made by the distinguished sinologue Abel Remusat. Only four or five printed copies of the work are known to be in existence. It is the earliest Chinese grammar in any European language, and the substance of it has been incorporated in several subsequent grammars.

In conclusion, we have great pleasure in stating that European students of the Chinese language will be deeply indebted to Mr. Douglas for the excellent catalogue by which he has made known to the public the treasures in his custody.

The Geographical Magazine for this month contains the concluding portion of Mr. Morrison's interesting paper on Formosa. With regard to the prospects of the island he says:—"If Formosa is not an El Dorado, it is an island whose future promises to be a bright one. Richly endowed by nature, it is greatly favoured by its insular position. The Chinese, always averse to change, are anxious that Formosa should form an experimental province, and are prepared to remove restrictions there, which for the present they seem inclined to continue on the mainland. Sufficiently supplied as it is with labour at a reasonable rate, and inhabited by a healthy and industrious people, it presents a splendid field for commercial enterprise. The question has often been asked—Should such an island be left in the hands of such a Government as the Chinese? To argue for a moment that the Chinese Government is in any respect superior, say to the British, would be ridiculous, but to suggest that therefore the Chinese should be deprived of part of their possessions is highly improper. Their sovereignty over the island is better established than ours was in New Zealand a very short time ago. They are employing their military in making roads through the savage districts, the most effectual way of eventually subduing them, and they seem anxious to develop the resources of the country. In more than one European newspaper there have been suggestions as to annexation, but any attempt at such a thing would, in my opinion, be nothing short of robbery."

The Friend of China for December is chiefly filled with the memorial to Lord Derby in favour of ratifying the Chefoo Convention. It states that the essence of this memorial is against compelling the Chinese Government to tolerate the opium trade.

Religion in China. By JOSEPH EDKINS, D.D. London: Trübner and Co., Ludgate-hill.—A new edition of this well-known work, which was published in 1859, has been issued. Four chapters are added to it, containing a description of Imperial worship, and of a journey to Woo-Tai-shan, a celebrated seat of Buddhist worship.

Macmillan's Magazine contains a very valuable article by Dr. Hack Tuke on "Modern Life and Insanity." He traces the various causes which conduce to mental disease, and strongly condemns the system of mere cramming for examinations, so much in force.

Co., Old Bailey.—The first-named book is a well-told simple child's story, with little plot beyond the ordinary cares of life in it; but full of good sentiment and Christian morality. It is eminently healthy in tone, and well suited for young readers. The "Bella" is a story of the sea, full of startling incident, and very well told.

The Christmas number of the Illustrated London News—always so welcome in the Far East as a pleasing reminder of "the old country"—comes fully up to its well known standard of merit. The pictures are all excellent, and some of them, as, for instance, "The Haunted Tower," are works of art of a high order. The "Little Lovers," by Kate Greenaway, is one of the most pleasing and characteristic designs we have for a long time seen.

Street Life in London, by J. Thomson, F.R.G.S., for this month (published by Sampson Low), has for its subjects "Italian Street Musicians," the "Street Locksmith," and the "Seller of Shell Fish"—all very characteristic illustrations.

Monetary and Commercial.

The brokers to the New Chinese Loan announce that the subscription list was closed on the 15th inst., and add that telegraphic advices "have been received by the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank Corporation from China, that subscriptions amounting to over half a million 'sterling' have been already received from local insurance offices, native Chinese bankers, and others." The subscriptions here have also exceeded the amount to be allotted.

The Oriental Bank Corporation give notice that the coupons due Jan. 1 on the bonds of the Imperial Government of Japan 7 per Cent. Loan of 1873 will be paid by them on and after that date.

The following is the Report to be presented at the half-yearly meeting of the Ceylon Company, on the 18th inst:—

"The Directors are glad to be able to inform the shareholders that a fair profit has been realised from the Ceylon branch of the Company's business this year, but as the result of the operations in Mauritius for the year cannot yet be known, they have considered it prudent to abstain from proposing payment of an interim dividend. Three of the estates in Ceylon have been sold since the date of the last report (Keenakella, Belgodde, and Stanmore Hill). On the first a cont siderable profit was realised; the two latter were unprofitable estates, that rarely paid their expenses; they were acquired by foreclosure, and were sold for more than they were valued at in March, 1877. The value of property in Ceylon is fully maintained. In Mauritius one small estate (Auchendrayne) has been sold, but the purchase is not yet completed. The whole of the Albion Dock Shares held by the Company have been disposed of without loss. By the amount realised by the sale of Keenakella Estate and the Albion Dock Shares, and from other sources, the total liabilities of the Company have been reduced since September, 1876, by upwards of £400,000."

The Eastern Telegraph Company announce the payment of an interim dividend of 2s. 6d. per share on the Ordinary Shares of the Company, free of income-tax, on the 14th prox., in respect of profits for the quarter ended Sept. 30; also that a dividend of 3s. per share on the Six per Cent. Preference Shares, less income-tax for the quarter ended Dec. 30, 1877, will be paid on the same date.

The Eastern Extension, Australasia, and China Telegraph Company notify that the directors have declared an interim dividend for the quarter ended Sept. 30 last of 2s. 6d. per share, or at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, payable on the 15th proximo.

The Tea market has continued throughout the week in the same strong position as advised in recent issues; but even yet the home trade fail fully to realise the novelty of a firm market after the depression so long existing. Importers have withdrawn the bulk of their Teas, and business has in consequence been unusually small, even for this period of the year. In response to orders sent out to Shanghai and Foochow, on the improvement becoming manifest here, to replace Teas sold previous to the advance, telegrams have been received that no more Tea is expected from the interior this season, and it is quite evident that the shipment of Blacks is virtually finished for the current season. On the other hand, there are large supplies of Green Teas, estimated at 150,000 half-chests, or 8,000,000 lbs., at Shanghai; but, seeing that Green Teas are being so completely ousted by Indian leaf, and the long period of unproductive returns to importers, it is not likely that any considerable portion will find its way to this market. Indian Teas, to the extraordinary low value of which we called attention last week, have somewhat rallied, in sympathy with those of China growth. The market, on the whole, is certainly more satisfactory than it has been for some time past, but still rates are very low as compared with purchasing prices, especially for teas from 11d. to 1s. 4d.

There has been no material alteration in the Silk market during the past week. Prices continue at about the same range as last advised, but business has been extremely restricted, owing to the disturbed and doubtful state of political affairs in France.

In the Produce Markets no increased tone of activity has been shown, and with a few exceptions the tendency of quotations is lower. Plantation Ceylon Coffee has realised higher prices, but the advance is not quite maintained at the close. Sugar has been dull at a further fall in value. Rice is unaltered, the market being extremely quiet. Pepper exhibits a slight decline. At the public sales of Isinglass Penang and Saigon sold steadily for tongue and leaf but cheaper for cake. Gambier and Sago are dull and lower. Tin has been quiet but steady; Straits is quoted £67, Banca £71 per ton.

At a meeting held on the 10th inst., the leading buyers of gambier have passed resolutions supporting the action taken by the Singapore merchants with a view to preventing the adulteration of that article.

The suspension is announced of Mr. F. Gütschow, of Hamburg, Yokohama, and Hiogo, with liabilities understood to be heavy, a portion of which falls on Manchester and Bradford, the latter town being most affected.

Mr. Joseph Hillman, now secretary of the Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance Company, has been appointed underwriter to the Home and Colonial Marine Insurance Company.

The P. and O. Company's steamer Khedive, which was despatched from Southampton Thursday with the heavy portion of next outward mail, has on board £227,999 in specie, including for Penang, in Mexican dollars, £81,020; for Singapore, in gold, £7,000; and for Hong Kong, in bar silver and Mexican dollars, £31,979.

Business in Bar Silver continued at prices varying from 54⅛d. to 54d. per oz. until the result of the tenders for the Council Drafts becoming known, the market became quite disorganised. At the close rates are somewhat steadier, and 53¾d. per oz. is the nearest quotation. Of Mexican dollars a few small parcels to hand, via New York, have been placed at 52⅞d. per oz.—a slight improvement in price; they have been sent with previous arrivals to China and the Straits. The arrivals during the week comprise—£58,000 from the Pacific, which was sold at 54⅛d., £44,916 from New York, and about £315,000 from Germany, but the Government is not selling at the prevailing low rates.

TEA.

Messrs. Arthur Capel and Co.'s Circular says:—We have to report a still further advance in the price of common to good common Congous, considerable purchases having been made of these grades both for export and home trade, with a few speculative purchases also. There has not been much activity in the demand for the better grades, but for the sales effected rather higher prices have been paid. India teas, owing to diminished supplies offered at auction, have shown more steadiness, but prices are unchanged. Congous.—Red-leaf kinds:

Digitized by Google

Siftings have sold ¼d. to ½d. per lb. higher, at 6¾d. to 7d. per lb.; fair to good common have been sold from 8½d. to 9d. per lb., with but little now offering under the latter figure; fair to medium kinds have sold at rather higher rates; good kinds have sold from 1s. 3d. to 1s. 5d. per lb.; in fine to finest not much has been done. Pak Lin kinds have been more inquired for, especially good to fine kinds. Black-leaf kinds: Common siftings sold at low prices, but the better qualities sold at ½d. per lb. higher; fair to good common have been in demand at from 8½d. to 9d. per lb.; the fair kinds are only in moderate request, but prices are about ½d. per lb. dearer; fair to good medium have realised full prices; good to fine show a firm market, the supply offering being moderate; finest are also firm at full prices. New-make kinds: common have sold from 7½d. to 8½d., and are about ½d. per lb. higher; good common at 8¾d. to 9d., fair kinds from 10d. to 1s., good from 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 3½d., and fine at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d. per lb., show no material alteration in price, but have been saleable. Oolongs remain as last week. Souchongs have sold at previous rates. Scented Teas: Canton Capers meet with only a moderate demand; prices show no material alteration, but good kinds are difficult to move. Orange Pekoes remain much as before. Foochow Capers are only saleable at low prices. Orange Pekoes are generally dull of sale. Green Teas: There is but little alteration to notice in prices, the demand being inactive. Fine Moyune kinds command a ready sale. The public sales have again been small, comprising only 5,086 packages offered and sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week as compared with last year, are as follows, viz.:—

HYDROGRAPHICAL NOTIFICATIONS.

China Sea.—Yangtsze River—Shanghai District.—Notice is hereby given that a red and black vertically striped Buoy, 6 feet in diameter and surmounted by a black spherical cage, has been moored in 17 feet at low water spring tides, to the north-westward of Bush Island, with the "Clump" of Trees bearing S. 26° W. High Single Tree bearing S. 13° W. Vessels should not pass between this Buoy and the north-west end of Bush Island. Also that the 6 feet in diameter fairway North Channel Buoy off Drinkwater Point, has been replaced by a 10 feet red and black horizontally striped fairway Buoy, surmounted by a black spherical cage and moored in 4 fathoms at low water spring tides, with Shaweishan Lighthouse bearing N. 84° E., and distant about 14 miles.

Sunda Strait—Sumatra.—The Netherlands Government has given notice of the intended establishment of a light on Flat Point (Pamantyass), north-west entrance point of Sunda Strait:—The light will be a flashing light of the first order, showing three flashes in quick succession every half minute, followed by a short eclipse. Also, of the establishment, probably on Sept. 20, 1877, of a fixed red harbour light at Sangsit (Pabejan), Baly Island.

Celebes Island—East Coast.—It is proposed to establish a harbour light at Gorontalo, Celebes Island. The light will be a fixed red light, shown from an iron post 26 feet high. The illuminating apparatus will be dioptric, or by lenses of the sixth order.

Timor Island—West Coast.—The intended harbour light at Keopang, Timor Island, will be a fixed red light, shown from an iron post 39 feet high. The illuminating apparatus will be dioptric, or by lenses of the sixth order.

TONITE, OR COTTON POWDER.

THE SAFEST, STRONGEST, AND CHEAPEST OF ALL EXPLOSIVES.

Recommended to MINERS, PIT SINKERS, QUARRYMEN, and CONTRACTORS as the MOST EFFICIENT and ECONOMICAL BLASTING AGENT ever invented.

Results of practical experience show a saving of from 15 to 20 per cent. over the strongest explosives previously in use.

It saves labour in drilling holes, as a less number of holes are needed.

It does not require thawing, but is ready for use at all temperatures and in all climates.

It can also be advantageously used in breaking up boulders, extracting stumps, removing wrecks, exploding torpedoes, and for submarine purposes in general, as well as for signal lights and fog signals for ships.

In his work on the Sources of the Nile, says:—

"I ordered my dragoman Mahomet to inform the "Faky that I was a doctor, and that I had the best "medicines at the service of the sick, with advice "gratis. In a short time I had many applicants, to "whom I served out a quantity of Holloway's Pills. "These are most useful to an explorer, as, possessing "unmistakable purgative properties, they create an "undeniable effect upon the patient, which satisfies "him of their value."

This fine Medicine cures all disorders of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys and Bowels, is a Great PURIFIER of the BLOOD, and wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females—young or aged.

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

PEKING.

The North China Herald gives the following items of news from the capital, as recorded in the Peking Gazette:—

Moved apparently by the representations which have been made to him of the extent of the misery in Shansi, and of the rapacity of the official underlings engaged in distributing grain, the Emperor has appointed a high official, named Yen Kenming, formerly a Vice-President of the Board of Works at Peking, to travel "throughout the afflicted region, and to superintend with all due diligence the administration of the relief agencies. The Gazette of Oct. 15 also publishes an Imperial decree ordering a further contribution to Shansi of 160,000 piculs from the quota of tribute rice due by the province of Shantung.

The Gazette of Oct. 16 contains a memorial from the Governor of Shantung, reporting the miserably inadequate provision made last winter for the relief of the distress in that province; and the suffering and loss of life entailed.

If the Chinese officials and literati had intelligence to appreciate the fact, they would find in a memorial from Hangchow, in the Peking Gazette of Oct. 13, a proof of the advantage of foreign trade to the country. The Superintendent of the Imperial Manufactory memorialises, representing the impracticability of the old tariff of rates at which silk used to be bought for the supply of the Palace. "Not only has production been largely diminished since the rebellion, but two new elements—viz., the imposition of the lekin tax and the foreign demand for raw silk, have come in to enhance the market value"—and, of course, in the latter case, increase the earnings and prosperity of the producers.

The Peking Gazette of Oct. 13 contains another of the decrees with which use has lately made us tolerably familiar, forbidding the cultivation of the poppy. The last one appeared in the Gazette of Sept. 26, 1876, and was to precisely the same effect as the present. That it and its predecessor should have been perfectly inoperative is a tolerably clear proof that the Government has either not the will or not the power to put in practice the prohibition which it utters. As a matter of fact, we believe Shanse produces nearly as much opium as Indor, and the failure of the crop there, this year, has had nearly as much to do with the recent rise in price as any shortcoming in India. Indeed, it is generally understood to be Li Hung-chang's policy to foster the cultivation of native opium, like he fosters the C.M.S.N. Company, in the hope of eventually driving out the foreign article. Only a few weeks ago there appeared in the Gazette an edict degrading an official in Kweichow for misappropriating some thousand taels of lekin on native opium—thus distinctly recognising it as legal and taxworthy—a proceeding which is now condemned. We commend these facts to the Anti-Opium Association.

NANKING.

The Courier's correspondent writes as follows, under date of Oct. 29 :—

Some days ago the zealous defenders of law and order discovered that some people were actually killing the ox that ploughs the ground, and using his flesh for food. Beef went out of the market for a time, but a proper sum of cash made matters right for a day or two, till the Viceroy concluded it was best to pray for rain. He has occupied a great deal of time in this way since he came to Nanking, but drought and grasshoppers will come notwithstanding.

The crops during the past year have been fair. The remarkably heavy rains during the summer checked the ravages of the grasshoppers, but they are spread over the country, and will be ready by next spring to resume operations on a large scale. I have recently heard through native sources from the Yellow river region, and find that grasshoppers have ravaged certain sections, but that most of the people in the districts through which my informant has passed are not in any danger of immediate distress. He had not been as far north-west as Shensi, but has heard of gloomy prospects there.

A large number of disreputable houses were suppressed a few weeks ago, and the gamblers have since received some attention. One who was brought in from the country last week took opium in a yamen, but foreign assistance being promptly called in he recovered. Opium poisoning seems to be on the increase, whatever the cause may be. The great topic of interest just now is the opium question. Within the last three or four days opium-smokers have discovered that there has been a sudden advance in the price of the drug. I have heard that the increase in price is as much as 40 per cent., but do not know. There are many conjectures as to the cause, and wherever a foreigner appears he is promptly questioned about the matter.

FOOCHOW.

The Foochow Herald gives the following :—

At a meeting held at the Foochow Club on the evening of Oct. [illegible] Lawn Tennis Club. A committee was formed, with power to frame rules and bye-laws, in addition to preparing an estimate of preliminary and other expenses for the current year.

It is rumoured amongst the Chinese that, in consequence of numerous national calamities of late, such as famine, floods, and pestilence, the youthful Emperor has been solicited to change his dynastic title, and thereby appease the wrath of the gods, who, it is argued, must be displeased with the reigning title of his Celestial Majesty.

The Tartar Camp will be available for training for the winter meeting from Nov. 2, having been kindly placed at the service of the Race Club by the Governor-General and Acting Manchu General-in-Chief. As the races are not expected to take place before the first or second week in January, ample time for preparation is provided. An unusual number of griffins are, we believe, expected.

We understand that the six gunboats of the Alpha class, at present attached to the Mamoi Arsenal Fleet, went out for gun practice on the 31st ult. Hitherto the crews have not had many opportunities of distinguishing themselves as marine artillerists; we trust, however, that their newborn activity will not result in any fatal accident. These 38-ton guns really require very careful handling, and the directors of the "infant navy" do not apparently believe in modern surgery or surgical appliances.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to Nov. 9; the French mail from London, Sept. 21, was received Nov. 8.

It rarely happens that the local papers in the model Settlement are prepared to admit that the races have been anything but a success. The exhilarating effects of the fresh air, the geniality of those they meet at the Grand Stand, and the well-known hospitality always prevalent, have usually the effect of putting the editors into excellent humour, and slight shortcomings are consequently as a rule passed over very easily, and are not taken as being of any great account. It may, therefore, be safely concluded that it was disappointing, indeed, when we find the leading paper declaring, as we do find it by the present mail—"Our great Autumn holiday has proved a lamentable failure." It seems that the Fates were against it altogether. The weather was simply execrable during the whole period of the races; making things miserable for the spectators, and spoiling sport, by converting the course into a quagmire. Very good racing had been expected, and the time made under the actual circumstances proved that the anticipation was warranted; though of course the results of the running were materially altered. Those who took the opportunity of the holiday to make a trip up country, were even more unfortunate than they who remained at home; the incessant rain making everything wet and miserable, and destroying all pleasure in shooting. The steeplechase was necessarily postponed, as the course was simply a sheet of water.

This may in part account for the papers by the present mail having a more business-like appearance than is usual during race-week, even in these days when the races have long ceased to occupy the prominent place they had formerly in the round of Shanghai life. The North China Daily News notices the China Loan, and after giving the particulars, which have already been published in our columns, goes on to say :—

Bonds on the Customs revenues of these ports, to the amount of Tls. 7,000,000, have been deposited with the Bank as security; and the Imperial Government has further fully guaranteed the loan. The last of the necessary documents having been received, the Taoutai Hu, through whom the negotiations have been carried on, was duly notified that the money was at his disposal. He began removing the sycee accordingly on the following day, and has already taken about Tls. 3,000,000. It is said, however, that only about thirty-five lakhs are likely to be shipped away from Shanghai, and the process is likely to extend over a month; so that there is certainly no immediate fear of tightness in the money market. So much as regards the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank and the Imperial Government. As regards placing the Loan, the rate of issue will probably be £98 per £100 bond, which will bear interest at the rate of £8 per cent. per annum; and the bonds will probably be offered to the public in about a month or six weeks from the present date.

From the above-named paper we also take the following :—

At H.B.M.'s Supreme Court, on Monday, before R. A. Mowat, Esq., Deputy Acting Judge, Messrs. J. M. Canny and Co., late of Shanghai and Chinkeang, were adjudicated bankrupts, on the petition of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation. Mr. Rennie appeared to support the petition. The debtor did not appear, and had filed no notice of his intention to dispute the petition, a copy of which had been served upon him in England. Another petition, in the same matter, was adjourned.

By a decree of the Court of the United States Consulate-General, the stern-wheel steamer Paokong has been offered for sale at public auction, by the Marshal, Mr. R. Phœnix. The highest bid was by Mr. Galles, of Messrs. Farnham and Co., for Tls. 20,000.

The pontoon known as the Paou-fong Wharf, on the French Bund was submitted to sale by auction, under a decree of the Court of the United States Consulate-General. The bidding commenced at Tls. 500, and advanced in small amounts to Tls. 1,005, at which sum the pontoon was knocked down. Mr. Seabrooke was the purchaser, and, it was said, was acting on behalf of Mr. A Malcolm, to satisfy whose claim the sale took place.

Another case of abduction occurred in this Settlement. It seems that a girl about sixteen years of age, of respectable parentage, and belonging to a place known as Ching-tu, about sixty li distant, was visiting some friends in Shanghai. She became acquainted with a man surnamed Wang, who induced her to take a drive with him, saying he would take her to see the races. Wang, however, seemed to have laid his plans very carefully, for, instead of taking the girl to the races, he drove by the French road to Siccawei, and to the bank of the Soochow Creek, at a point where a boat lay moored. The poor girl, it is said, was forced on board, the boat was cast loose and started up the creeks All efforts have as yet failed to discover her whereabouts.

To the list of casualties which have already occurred through the inconvenient position of the opium hulks, another has been added; and, although not attended with any serious results, it is worthy of mention as an additional straw to the load of reasons for some practical action to be taken upon the correspondence that has recently passed between the Municipal Council, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Commissioner of Customs, as to the removal of the hulks. Between ten and twelve o'clock on the morning of Nov. 7 four steamers were signalled to arrive—the Peking and Haesan from Ningpo, and the Kiangching and Shanghai from Hankow—all of which had to berth in the upper portion of the river. The Peking arrived first, and just at the time the Juno and the English and French mail steamers were directly athwart the river, swinging to the tide. There appeared scarcely room for the Peking to pass between them and the unsightly opium hulks; but not far behind her were the Haesan and the Kiangching, and had she waited it would, of course, have involved delay, and perhaps placed her followers in an awkward predicament. However, she continued on her course, and the result was that her starboard paddle-box was stove in by coming in contact with the hulk Emily Jane, and several cargo boats narrowly escaped being swamped. Fortunately, when the Haesan and the Kiangching came up, the mail steamers had swung further round, and they passed clear, as did also the Shanghai. But, as is well known, there is always danger of collision at this point at every turn of the tide; and we can only repeat what we have so often urged, that the removal of the opium hulks would not only rid the Bund of an eyesore, but also remove a great part of the danger and difficulty of berthing vessels of any kind in the upper reaches of the river.

A curious circumstance, arising no doubt out of the late high north-east winds, is reported by the British ship Hawkesbury. While on her passage to Shanghai, from Sydney, she fell in with large numbers of land birds, when about one hundred and fifty miles to the S.E. of the Saddle Islands, and some two hundred miles from the mainland. Among them were quail, pigeons, owls, hawks, and many small birds, principally those commonly known as water wag-tails, seventeen of which were caught on the quarter-deck of the vessel one night after dark. A sufficient number of quail also were caught for three or four meals. Most of the birds landed on the ship utterly exhausted, so much so that they seldom attempted to escape; while others, failing to get on board, were carried by the wind against the ship's side and fell into the water. Land birds are rarely found in such numbers so far out at sea; and no doubt the birds in this instance had been carried either off the mainland or from the Islands during the late high north-east winds, and, being unable to fly any longer, sought shelter on the ship as the only alternative from being drowned.

We have referred several times lately to the performances of homing pigeons kept by local fanciers. But a flight achieved by half a dozen last week eclipses anything we have yet heard of. Six pigeons, only seven months old, let go at Woosih, at daylight, all returned to their cot before nine A.M. The distance cannot be very far short of 100 miles.

The steamer Fleurs Castle, from London, reports two mishaps during the passage. In the Suez Canal she broke her propeller, and had to discharge about 300 tons of cargo, and in consequence she was in the Canal six days. In the China Sea she experienced a strong monsoon and confused sea; and, shipping a large sea, her aft wheel and steering gear were carried away.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by this mail extend to Nov. 15; no later mail from London had arrived out.

The Legislative Council met on Nov. 12, when the long-expected estimates were at last brought forward. Satisfaction is expressed at the fact that those much-needed public works—the new Hospital and Central School—are really to be proceeded with, and the sums necessary for their erection have been voted, though we still have to wait until the usual red-tape formula at home has been gone through. The Governor also announced that it was intended to make alterations in the jail to permit of the separate system being carried out. He also promised a lunatic asylum at a cost of $5,000, a very moderate sum even for the few lunatics there are in the colony. Mr. Hennessy likewise promises a large increase in the number of trees planted, his scheme being in the course of a certain number of years to cover the inhabited side of the island with vegetation. This, it is observed, would be a vast improvement, and one that ought to have been effected by Mr. Hennessy's predecessors. Many other plans were hinted at by the Governor for the benefit and improvement of the colony.

The local Government Gazette gives the following summary of the Act recently passed in Queensland regarding Chinese Immigration:—

Clause 2 provides that the master of every vessel having Chinese on board shall, immediately on arrival and before entry at the Customs, deliver to the collector, or other principal officer of Customs, a list of Chinese passengers on board. Penalty for default not exceeding two hundred pounds.

Clause 3 provides that if any vessel shall arrive in any port in Queensland having on board a greater number of Chinese passengers than in the proportion of one to every ten tons of the tonnage of such vessel, according to the registry thereof, if British, and if not, then according to the measurement defined by "The Merchant Shipping Act, 1854," the owner, charterer, or master of such vessel shall be liable on conviction to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds for each Chinese passenger so carried in excess.

Clause 4 provides that, before making entry at the Customs, the master of the vessel shall pay to the collector, or other principal officer, ten pounds for every Chinese passenger about to be landed. Penalty for neglecting this provision not exceeding twenty pounds per head, in addition to the said sum of ten pounds, together with forfeiture and condemnation of vessel.

Clause 5 provides that every Chinese arriving otherwise than by sea shall pay a sum of ten pounds.

Clause 6 provides that the office receiving this amount of ten pounds shall, without demand, forthwith hand to the Chinese immigrant a certificate of the payment of such sum.

Clause 7 provides that any Chinese immigrant leaving the colony within three years after such payment, on producing to the Collector, or other principal officer of Customs at the port of departure, the certificate handed to him on his arrival, shall be repaid the said sum of ten pounds, provided that he shall have proved to the satisfaction of the Colonial Treasurer that, during his residence in the colony, he has not, as an inmate of any hospital or jail, been any charge on the revenue thereof.

Clause 8 provides that any Chinese entering or attempting to enter the colony over the border without payment of ten pounds, shall, besides such sum, be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds.

Clause 10 provides that the Colonial Treasurer, or officers authorised by him, may grant to any Chinese, being a bonâ fide resident of the colony at the time of passing this Act, an exemption for a temporary absence only, and for a specified time.

Clause 11 provide that no Chinese who is one of the crew of any vessel shall be liable to make such payment unless he lands.

In presenting medals and a pecuniary reward from the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society to two Chinese junk-masters. His Excellency the Governor made a speech, in the course of which he mentioned that he intends having some silver medals struck off for presentation by the Governor of this colony in his own name on such occasions.

From the Daily Press we take the following:—

On November 8 Admiral Ryder and Captain Colomb left the colony in the P. and O. mail steamship Nizam. The Admiral left the Audacious at eleven A.M. in a barge pulled by officers. Captain Colomb following in another, also pulled by officers. The Admiral's flag was at the same time lowered from the main and Vice-Admiral Hillyar's flag run up at the fore, the first being saluted by the Victor Emanuel with seventeen guns, and the latter with fifteen. The Audacious then saluted the Commodore. The gallant Admiral has been deservedly popular amongst his officers, men, and the public, and has always evinced a warm interest in the welfare of seamen. He carries with him the good wishes of all who came in contact with him. Captain Colomb also was held in general esteem.

An explosion of gunpowder on board a trading junk on Nov. 6, resulted in the loss of over twenty lives. The Wing Fook Lee junk plied between Hong Kong and Kwong-hoi, and left for the latter place on the same afternoon. About eleven o'clock at night, passing the Cheung-chow lekin station, she was hailed by the examiners to heave to while they searched for contraband goods. She accordingly hove to, and two officers came on board to conduct the search. At the close of the search they came to the powder magazine; by some means the powder was ignited, and the junk was blown to pieces. There were over forty persons on the junk at the time, some of whom were passengers, and more than half of this number perished, either by drowning or injuries received in the explosion; the remainder were saved.

Banks.	Average Amount
Oriental Bank Corporation	$399,388
Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China	572,298
Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China ...	446,895
Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation...	1,759,272
Total	$3,177,853

Amongst the passengers per steamship Amoy, for Shanghai, was Mr. R. E. Bredon, late Commissioner of Customs at Canton. It is rumoured that he has gone North, to succeed Mr. Hart.

George Herbert Hamilton, who was indicted for obtaining goods under false pretences, has been sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

A reward of $20 has been given to a Chinaman for having been the means of bringing a kidnapper to justice.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The present French mail brings advices from this port to Nov. 22; the French mail from London, Oct. 19, was received on Nov. 18.

A meeting of the Legislative Council was held on Nov. 16, when the Governor delivered the subjoined address:—

Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:—It affords me much pleasure to inaugurate my official intercourse with the Legislative Council of these Settlements. I am glad to have an opportunity of meeting you so soon after my arrival, and I use this occasion to solicit at your hands that cordial co-operation and support without which I cannot hope to acquit myself as I should wish of the highly responsible duties which the Queen has been graciously pleased to entrust to my care. I shall lose no opportunity of making myself acquainted with local wants and circumstances, in the hope that the experience so gained may be subservient to the public good; and while congratulating you on the general progress of these Settlements, and the important position which they have attained as a commercial centre in the East, I beg to assure you that I have no earnester wish than that hereafter you may be able to look back to my Administration as a period during which the welfare of the people was the chief objec tand desire of those entrusted with the management of public affairs.

The estimates for 1878, which were laid before Council by the Administrator, have been considered by the Finance Committee, whose report is now ready to be presented to you. Those estimates having been prepared and sent down to you before my arrival, I have made no change in them, beyond proposing to provide, by direction of the Secretary of State, for interest and sinking fund on the Loan which is about to be issued under the authority of Ordinance No. 1 of 1877, which, as you are aware from a notice in the Government Gazette, has been graciously confirmed by Her Majesty. Despatches on the subject of the Loan Ordinance will in due course be laid before you. A Bill to amend the law relating to the constitution of the Courts of Justice, which has been prepared in accordance with instructions received from the Secretary of State, has, since my arrival, occupied my careful attention. This Bill, which has been drawn up with much ability and care, will shortly be submitted to you, with Bills to regulate the Civil and Criminal Procedure; and I feel sure that these measures, in which I am glad to understand that the public have taken a deep and enlightened interest, will receive at your hands the consideration which their importance demands.

I am happy to be able to congratulate you on the recent completion of the works for the supply of water to the town. I am sorry to learn that the undertaking has cost more both as regard time and money phan had been anticipated. The most recent estimate of the gross expenditure was, I understand, no less than $430,000, of which $311,000 have been supplied out of the public revenue, while $119,000 will have to be repaid by the Municipal Commissioners; but the importance of the boon conferred on the public, especially on the poorer classes in the town, through the provision of an unfailing and abundant supply of pure water, so essential to comfort and health, is more than commensurate with the outlay, and has, I believe, been fully appreciated during the severe and protracted drought which has now extended so far beyond the ordinary limits of the dry season.

I am not yet sufficiently acquainted with the financial position of the Settlements to decide what works of importance, in addition to works already authorised, it would be desirable for the Government to enter upon, but I am glad to understand that no difficulty will be experienced in providing the funds necessary for the construction of the new jail from current revenue, or from treasury balances which are now in excess of the reserve indispensable for current wants. The plans and estimates of the building are now in course of preparation, and will, I trust, be ready for your consideration soon after the return to duty of the Head of the Works Department. It may interest you to know that I have been requested by the Secretary of State to take a convenient opportunity, after my assumption of the Government, to consider the organisation and cost of the Works and Survey Departments. It is my intention to lose no time in complying with his Lordship's instructions, and to report fully on the whole subject, as soon as I can make myself so familiar with the circumstances and requirements of the Settlements as to enable me to do so with advantage.

On the affairs of the Lieutenant Governments and Native States I do not propose to address you until I shall have visited those places, but I will at once communicate to you certain papers which will serve to acquaint you with the line of policy which, under instructions from Her Majesty's Government, I have adopted in the matter of the election of a successor to the late Sultan Ali of Moar. There are many subjects of importance on which I must refrain from addressing you until I can do so with the confidence which more experience of the Colony, and consultation with my Executive Advisers, will confer; but I cannot conclude these necessarily brief and imperfect remarks without expressing to you my grateful sense of the kindly spirit which has marked my reception amongst you, and the sincerity of my desire to devote the best energies which I possess to the advancement of the prosperity, I believe, that the policy and intentions of the Government should be known and understood by the public. I propose to afford you the fullest information in my power on all questions which may come before you, and as the views and wishes of the members of your Honourable Council will at all times receive at my hands the most respectful and impartial consideration, I trust that our intercourse may be marked by cordial personal relations, and that our present and future deliberations may result in progressive and beneficial legislation.

With reference to the speech the Straits Times says that it has made a most favourable impression, and, according to all appearances, the best relations promise to exist between his Excellency and the community over which he rules.

One of the events of the week had been the attempted departure of the schooner Annie Beaton, while in custody of the Supreme Court for debt. The Colonial steamer Pluto was sent after her, and brought her back, and the Chief Justice, taking a lenient view of the case, fined the captain only fifty dollars.

Another event had been the upsetting and sinking in the harbour of the barque Nil Desperandum, Captain Griffin. The accident was owing to the imprudent way in which the vessel was unloaded. She was under water for several days, but had been floated again with the loss of one mast.

On Nov. 17 a fire occurred which might have ended in the destruction of the Tanglin Barracks. The lalang grass around the bungalow of Mr. John Baxter, was set on fire, and owing to the long drought the flames spread rapidly. Assistance was promptly rendered, and the fire was stamped out before reaching the barracks or bungalow.

A farewell ball to the Hon. W. and Mrs. Adamson was given in the Tanglin Club, on Nov. 19. It was a great success, and is said to have been quite an ovation.

The Autumn Race Meeting came to a close on Nov. 17. It had been on the whole an entire success. Beyond the races there had been no public amusement.

NINETY per cent. premium has been paid upon the Rotterdam Lloyd's steamer Friesland, from Batavia for Holland, which put into Gibraltar for coal on the 4th inst., and left again for her port of destination on the day following. Since that time nothing further has been heard of her. A telegram received at Lloyd's from their agent at Corunna strengthens the fears that this steamer has met with a disaster. The telegram states that for the last few days boxes of tea, bales of tobacco, coffee, and bundles of bamboo have washed ashore, belonging to a steamer, name unknown, supposed to have been lost, with all hands, at Corrobedo, near Finisterre.

A TELEGRAM from Singapore, dated 18th inst., states that the Johann Rudolph, from Manila for Sydney, with a cargo of hemp, has been totally lost by fire off the coast of Mindoro. The crew were picked up and landed at Singapore.

A TELEGRAM from Singapore, dated 22nd inst., states that the Flintshire (str.) from Singapore to Hong Kong, is ashore on Scarboro Shoal, but is making no water, and that assistance has been sent.

THE LIVERPOOL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ON THE CHEFOO CONVENTION.

The following despatch has been addressed to the Earl of Derby by the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce with reference to the Chefoo Convention :—

The Incorporated Chamber of Commerce of Liverpool.
Liverpool, Dec. 20, 1877.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to inform your Lordship that several communications have been made to the Council of this Chamber on the subject of the Chefoo Convention, the ratification of which is under the consideration of the Foreign-office.

Some of the communications referred to advocate very strongly the ratification of the Chefoo Convention, while others, on the other hand, ask the co-operation of this Chamber in favour of withholding the ratification of the Convention.

The communications upon the subject have been carefully considered by the Council, who have directed me to state most respectfully to your Lordship that, in their opinion, the Chefoo Convention ought to be ratified, and I am to ask your Lordship to be pleased to advise Her Majesty accordingly.

I have the honour to be, my Lord,
Your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,
WILLIAM BLOOD, Secretary.

To the Right Hon. the Earl of Derby.

CLOSING OF THE WOOSUNG RAILWAY.

The Daily News, alluding to the above event, says:—The story of the Woosung Railway will form an interesting page in the history of our relations with the Chinese Empire. It is necessary to remind our readers that the undertaking itself was an attempt to force upon the Chinese the benefits of the railway system. The provincial authorities gave permission to certain English capitalists to construct an ordinary road, and the latter took advantage of the concession to make a railway, which they hoped would prove so popular among the people as to disarm the opposition of the authorities. However well meaning may have been the intentions of the authors of this experiment, it was, we think, an error of judgment on their part to act without the sanction of the Government of China, or, at all events, of its local representatives. The railroad, although a short one, was exposed to great danger during its construction; and, indeed, many times it was confidently predicted that the Chinese would either pull up the line or never allow it to come into operation. These prophecies happily were not justified by the result. The railway was not only completed but worked, and many thousands of passengers for the first time thus made personal acquaintance with what was to them a wonderful means of locomotion. But the Chinese Government, after much hesitation, determined to exercise its authority, and perhaps in the circumstances it is not surprising that they should have felt it necessary to take action of some kind. Their action took the form of purchasing the railway with all its appurtenances, and the first use they made of their newly-acquired property was to suspend the working of the line. At this juncture Lord Derby appears to have come on the scene with the expression of a hope that the Chinese Government would not proceed to extremities. It is now said that the Government have ordered the locomotives to be pulled to pieces, and intend to remove the entire plant to Formosa. We are, however, informed that there is still a considerable probability that the line will not be transferred to another place, but that (after a short delay) it will be re-opened. All well-wishers of China cannot fail to hope that this may prove to be the case.

Naval and Military.

Colonel C. Wood, formerly of the 10th (Prince of Wales's Own) Hussars, one of the few remaining Waterloo officers, died on the 13th inst., having just attained his eighty-eighth year. The late Colonel Wood joined in 1809 the 52nd Regiment as ensign, and was engaged in the principal battles of the Peninsular war. He was severely wounded in the shoulder at the battle of Busaco, when carrying the King's colours of this noted regiment. In 1510 he joined the 10th Hussars, with which regiment he was present at Waterloo. In a note to the Duke of Wellington's Despatches, Vol. VIII., page 148, occurs the following note by Colonel Gurdon, in reference to the deceased colonel:—"Captain C. Wood, on picquet duty with Major Hon. F. Howard, squadron of the 10th Hussars, patrolled at daybreak along the road leading to Sombref. The morning's vedette fell back as the patrol advanced. Captain Wood having ascertained that the Prussian army had quitted the field of battle of the preceding day, hastened to report the circumstance to the Duke of Wellington at Quatre Bras. On the road he met Lieut.-Colonel Hon. Sir Alexander Gordon, with another half squadron of the 10th Hussars, sent by his Grace to communicate with Marshal Blucher that the British army would proceed to take up the position in front of Waterloo, and co-operate, according to previous arrangement, with the Prussian army. Captain Wood afterwards was badly wounded at Waterloo."

Under the sanction of the Admiralty, and in the presence of the Director of Naval Ordnance, Heavy Gun Committee, and representatives of the German, Italian, and Austrian Governments, experiments have been made on board the Thistle to determine whether steel is better than iron for armour-plating of ships. Four plates, each 9in. thick, were fired at with a 12-ton gun, charged with 50 lb. pebble powder and a 250 lb. projectile. The distance from gun to plate was 30 ft. The plates cost the manufacturers, Messrs. Cammell and Co. (Limited), Sheffield, nearly £1,000 each, but were presented gratis for experiments. The results were not regarded as favourable for the substitution of steel for iron.

The Northampton, twin screw, armour-plated ship, 7,323 tons, 600-horse power, has had an official trial, with highly satisfactory results. During the first hour of the run the contract power was not reached, but speed steadily increased until a maximum of 86 revolutions per minute of port and 85·5 of starboard engine was attained, indicating 6,450-horse power. The mean indicated power for the five hours was 6,037, with 60 pounds pressure of steam boilers, 27 inches vacuum, and 83·75 revolutions of starboard and 84 revolutions of port engines. During the second hour of trial the speed was taken over the measured mile, showing that just over 14 knots per hour was being made.

The officers of Devonport and Keyham yards have received orders to forward as rapidly as possible the refitting and repair of the few vessels now in hand. A number of workmen have consequently been started working overtime. Accommodation has been provided at Chatham for Her Majesty's armour-plated ship Nelson, built at the yard of Messrs. J. Elder and Co., Glasgow, which is to be sent to Chatham for the purpose of being equipped and prepared for the pennant. The Nelson, which is a sister ship to the Northampton, is of the broadside type, her tonnage being 7,323, and her engines of 6,000-horse power (indicated).

Brevet-Col. M. Dillon, C.B., C.S.I., on the Staff of General Lord Napier of Magdala, Governor of Gibraltar, as Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster-Gen., will assume the command of the Chatham District on Jan. 1, he having been appointed to succeed Lieut.-Gen. J. Erskine, whose period of appointment has expired. Gen. Erskine's appointment expired in July last, but the Commander-in-Chief allowed him to retain the command for another six months. He has made himself very popular, not only with the troops under his command, but also with the inhabitants of Chatham and the surrounding district.

The Volunteer Force is still increasing in numbers. It is shown by the reports of commanding officers furnished during the past month to the War-office that they amount to upwards of 175,000 men, all of whom have fulfilled the obligations required by the Commander-in-Chief from efficient Volunteers. Of these 175,000 men, 32,000 are artillerymen, 7,000 engineers, 133,000 infantry, and the remainder mounted rifles and permanent staff.

An application has been made to the Master of the Rolls on behalf of Mr. Vavassour, the inventor of copper rings for cannon shells and bolts, for an injunction against Baron Krupp, of Essen, to restrain him from arming the Japanese ironclad Foo Soo with projectiles manufactured on the plaintiff's system. Plaintiff, it was alleged, had obtained a patent for the invention which defendant was thus infringing. An injunction was granted.

The Iris, the new steel despatch vessel, has been undergoing machinery trials at Portsmouth. The results have been very satisfactory. A little over the horse-power contracted for was developed, and from beginning to end an almost unvarying speed of sixteen knots was indicated.

Capt. M. H. Saward, Royal (late Bengal) Horse Artillery, has been appointed a Deputy Assistant-Adjutant-General, Royal Artillery, in India, in pursuance of an Order in Council sanctioning the employment of an extra officer of that rank, with the usual staff allowances.

The Himalaya, troopship, has sailed from Portsmouth for the Mediterranean with new crews for the Devastation and Raleigh, the companies of which will be paid off at Malta.

A man named John Carson, who in his youth formed one of the force which guarded the Emperor Napoleon's exile at St. Helena, has died in Carlisle Workhouse.

The Pelican, composite sloop, Commander Boys, has left Devonport for a week's experimental cruise in the Channel, previous to leaving for the Pacific station.

On the 15th inst. the President of the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, his Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, made an official inspection of the cadets.

THE PACIFIC MAIL COMPANY'S CONTRACT.

With reference to the conveyance of the China and Japan Mails the report of the Postmaster-General says:—Congress, by Act of Feb. 17, 1865, authorised a contract for carrying the mails between San Francisco and Hong Kong, for ten years, at the rate of $500,000 per annum. According to the provisions of this Act the Postmaster-General, Oct. 16, 1866, made a contract with the Pacific Mail Steamship Company for carrying the said mails. The Company, under the terms of the contract, were to receive $500,000 for the performance of twelve round trips per annum for a contract term of ten years, to begin on or before Jan. 1, 1867, and on the day the first steamship of the line shall depart from the port of San Francisco with the mails for China." Five millions of dollars were appropriated for this service. It required a little more than two months to make one round trip. Ten years from the beginning the contract expired, Dec. 31, 1876, but the trips, commenced Nov. 1, and Dec. 1, 1876, were not completed until after Jan. 1, 1877. The Company has never received any compensation for carrying the mails on these two round trips, and no money has at any time been specifically appropriated for that purpose. This matter is mentioned that the attention of Congress may be called to it for such action as in its judgment the law and equity of the contract may demand.

THE CHINESE IN SAN FRANCISCO.

The Chinese six companies of San Francisco have addressed a communication to Secretary Evarts in reply to Senator Sargent's recent letter. They call attention to the fact that, since the adoption of the treaty, the United States have received from China nearly $300,000 indemnity for outrages on American citizens and property in China; that for years the Chinese have been robbed and murdered in California, and not in one case in fifty have the perpetrators been brought to justice; that the punishment of the Chico murderers is attributable to the influence and money of the good citizens of San Francisco, the result being an exception to the rule. They recall the recent anti-Chinese raid in Placer county and the July riots in this city to disprove Mr. Sargent's statement that county officials have sought to punish offenders against the Chinese and succeeded. They admit that the courts are honest, but say the officers surrounding the Judiciary are pledged to prosecute them before they can get office. They state that in twenty-five years immigration has not exceeded emigration by 4,000 annually, and reiterate their desire, expressed to Senator Morton, that the immigration of Chinese should be restricted within certain limits.

We are informed that the P. and O. Company have decided on allowing a reduction in the rate of passage money for persons desiring to run from India to England, and return within three months. The measure will doubtless be very popular in India, as it will afford Government officials who accumulate their annual monthly leave an opportunity of seeing the old country and their friends at frequent intervals, and on occasions will no doubt be useful to others. It is possible that some similar regulation—with, we presume, a somewhat longer interval—may be taken into consideration with reference to China; and could it be adopted, a great boon would be conferred upon many there in the Consular and Colonial Service who would be able to get away from a hot season from time to time at a more moderate outlay than at present.

THE China Mission of the Church of Scotland has been successfully launched, and five young men will shortly set out to establish Mission stations.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, Dec. 18.

The great topic of conversation and discussion here has been the events on the theatre of war, the surrender of Osman Pacha, the capture of Plevna, and the request of the Porte to the European Powers for mediation. The fall of Plevna has not created much surprise, but great praise is accorded to its gallant defender, who, with his small army of 30,000 men, has been able to withstand almost the whole army of Russia. On the Bourse, certainly one of the best barometers of the political atmosphere, the fall of Plevna has not had much effect. As regards mediation, it is beyond doubt that the Imperial Government is not inclined to interfere. Prince Bismark is still at Varzin, and by no means has forgotten how much he is indebted to Russia for the position it held during the late French war.

The sittings of the Prussian Diet during the past week have not presented anything of special interest, the debates having been upon topics of mere internal importance. The members will leave Berlin on the 21st for their Christmas vacation, and are holding night sittings in order to work up the outstanding business. The Reichstag will reassemble in January, and everybody is eager to know whether Prince Bismark will be present. His leave of absence extends till the end of March, and the latest rumours are that his health is not yet sufficiently re-established to permit of his undergoing the fatigue connected with his office. He has therefore been advised not to return to Berlin before the financial year, which commences in April, but as some topics of high importance are to be discussed in the early sittings of the Reichstag, well-informed persons in Berlin do not consider his earlier return as improbable. In the meanwhile the commercial treaty between Austro-Hungary, and Germany has been prolonged for six months, viz., to June 30 next, in order to gain time for the discussion of another treaty. As I hear to-day, the German plenipotentiaries have orders to be in readiness to proceed to Vienna.

A new telegraphic convention has been signed by France and Germany. This occurrence may be regarded as a matter of great importance, not only because the so-called word-tariff (20 centimes per word) has been adopted, but because it may be considered as leading to the proposed arrangement by which telegraphic communication between all countries shall be conducted upon the same principles as those which control the postal convention.

The corvette Leipzig, which it was intended to despatch to the Far East, will not be commissioned for this destination, but will be sent to Central America, and another man-of-war will be sent to Asiatic waters.

An event has occurred at Berlin which has caused considerable excitement. The military commander has ordered the arrest of an Englishman, who was staying at one of the first hotels in the city, upon suspicion of high treason in attempting to corrupt certain Government officials. He was in possession of plans of the fortifications of Metz.

The Chinese Minister at Berlin, has been received by the Emperor, in full state. The Minister himself was first introduced personally by the Master of the Ceremonies, and afterwards the other members of the Embassy. All of them made their appearance in the most magnificent dresses. The Minister made a speech in Chinese to the Queen, which was translated by an interpreter. The Emperor of China may well be content with the reception of his representative at Berlin.

The second month of next year will bring forth great festivals in the Metropolis, the occasion being a Royal wedding, which is now definitely fixed for Feb. 18. The Princess Charlotte, granddaughter of her Majesty Queen Victoria, is to be united to the hereditary Prince of Saxeweimar, and the daughter of the Prince Frederich Carl of Prussia Princess Elizabeth, to the hereditary Prince of Oldenburg.

The return of the Imperial Bank for the week ended the 15th inst. shows an increase in bills of m.4,425,000, and of m.5,092,000 in cash in hand. The private deposits are higher by m.1,668,000, and the notes in circulation by m.12,582,000.

At Pesth, the capital of Hungary, a demonstration in favour of the Turks has taken place, which degenerated into a riot of some dimensions. A crowd of over 5,000 persons amongst them several deputies of large towns, had assembled, speeches were delivered against the Austrian Chancellor, Count Andrassy, and a resolution was finally adopted, declaring that the time had arrived to stop the further extension of Russian power. This resolution being adopted, the whole crowd rushed out of the room in which the meeting was held, destroying furniture and breaking windows, and then moved on to the palace of the Prime Minister. Signor Tisza declined to receive a deputation, upon which the crowd began to storm the gates of the palace. It was only by the aid of two battalions of soldiers that order was restored and the crowd forced to retire. The Russian Consul was the same evening favoured by the crowd with an uncomplimentary serenade.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Business in our markets becomes more and more quiet for all articles, as no inclination is shown for larger transactions, in view of the approaching close of the year, and the continued absence of demand for consumption.

COFFEE.—Transactions have shown very little animation, and buyers have only operated for urgent wants.

SUGAR without sales. Quotations are:—Manila, brown, clayed m.24½ to 26½; do., unclayed, m.18 to 20; Mauritius, brown, m.18 to 24; do. yellow, m.26 to 28; Batavia, white, m.31 to 32½; do. yellow and brown, m.26½ to 29½; Batavia brown, m.18 to 24½; Siam, Benares and China, white, m.29 to 31; Zanzibar, brown and yellow, m.20 to 29; China, brown and yellow, m.18 to 27 per 100 lbs.

RICE.—Sales of dressed quality have been few, but values remain unchanged. Of raw quality no sales are reported.

TEA.—Of first-hand parcels have been sold 344/8 boxes Congou, 172/8 boxes Souchong and 79/4 boxes Tecco.

COTTON is firm, with some consumptive demand. Transactions have only been in American.

SPICES.—Ginger: Bengal dull at m.24 to 24½; Cochin, in demand at m.65 to 68; Nutmegs firmer at m.2.50 to 3 20; Mace, m.2 to 2.30; Cloves: Zanzibar firm, with nearly exhausted stocks at m.150 to 155; Amboina, m.160 to 165; Do. Stalks, firmer, at m.41 to 42. Pepper fully maintained; Singapore quality, m.36½ to 37; Batavia and Penang, m.33½ to 34; White, m.64 to 75.

STOCKS AND SHARES.

The princial event of the past week has been the close of the political crisis in France, which, however, has given no fresh stimulus or animation. The fall of Plevna has likewise been without effect. The same dulness prevails; transactions are restricted in the utmost, and the tendency in general must be called quiet in the extreme. Yesterday it became known that the Deutsche Bank at Berlin, with branches at several other places, including one in our town, has suffered a considerable loss, amounting, it is said, to m.554,000, caused by speculations entered into by two officials. SHIPPING.

The dulness which prevailed on the river at the date of my last letter has been prolonged, there being no change for the better, both arrivals as well as departures being limited. It is plainly visible that winter, notwithstanding the absence of frost, has arrived. From the Far East, neither here nor at Bremen has a single arrival been reported; and of departures only one has taken place, that of the Christine, Schulze, for Japan. In vessels on the berth no alteration has taken place; rates of freight are as low as ever, and steam as well as sail accept of almost anything that is offered. The English steamship Argyle, Captain Shetliff, from Dunkirk and Antwerp, to the Baltic, having broken her mainshaft, was towed into the river, and is repairing here. The damage sustained by the Pacha, s.s., is also being — de good, and she will soon be able to resume her voyage. In the Baltic a heavy frost has set in. Cronstadt, after the departure of the last steamer, has been closed, and by the appearance of the weather to-day we may soon expect to have frost here at Hamburg,

HOLLAND.

AMSTERDAM, DEC. 19.

The Members of the Second Chamber have been still engaged in the Budget discussions, which have resulted in their being carried. When the Budget of the Colonial Department came on the tapis Mr. Van der Hoeven urged that the Minister should compel the Java Government to apply the resolution regarding the police regulations respecting agreements between masters and workmen. He alluded to the abuses which prevail on the East Coast of Sumatra, in the tyranny to which free labourers are subjected by their employers. Messrs. Saaymans Vader, Teding Van Berkhout and De Yonge criticised the policy of the Ministry because they did not assist in the introduction of Christianity into Java. The Minister Van Bosse repeated what he had said before; the duty of the Government was to treat all classes of the population with equal justice. It was impossible to go farther than this. Mr. Van Bosse agreed that, when the time should arrive for the East India Government to apply the police resolutions, he would cause it to be done. The matter then dropped, and the Budget was approved by fifty-four against nine votes. It is, indeed, very strange how little interest is now displayed in Colonial affairs. The great questions are left alone by members of all parties. The East India Budget is hurried through the Chambers, and when a so-called thoroughly Liberal Cabinet is formed the portfolio of the Colonies is entrusted to—Mr. Van Bosse! The Colonial question has given place to that of lower-class education. Is it thus that the Liberal programme is to be fulfilled? Are there no reorganisations to be introduced? This "do nothing" policy causes surprise here, and will create indignation in Java, where much has been expected from the Liberals.

From several districts complaints are made regarding the Reform Bill. The general objection is the prevalence of nepotism and favouritism. The law, as it now stands, favours the Liberals, and they, of course, protest against any alteration. There is, however, discontent also on the opposite side. The Conservatives and Clericals are opposed to the Bill, which seems to have a very small chance of being carried without vital alterations. We are very anxious to know the result of the debate in the Second Chamber.

Much anxiety prevails about the fate of the steamer Friesland, homeward bound from Java, which is overdue for twelve days since she left Gibraltar. The day before yesterday a premium of 45 per cent. was paid for re-assurance, and yesterday the premium went up to 60 per cent.

I regret to record the death of A. J. C. Baron Schimmelpenninck Van der Oye, ex-Ambassador at Berlin. He was born in 1796 at Keppel.

About our trade and financial affairs there is no news to report. Trade is dull, owing to the absence of frosty weather, and on the Bourse the transactions are on a more limited scale than ever.

THIS MAIL'S NEWS.

It is satisfactory to be able to record that the Peking Government does not appear by any means so much disposed as it was last year to leave to chance the relief of the sufferers in the famine-stricken districts. As mentioned in our last, instructions had been issued by the Peking authorities to afford aid in Shensi; but it was feared that they might be rendered nugatory through the rapacity of the underlings employed. To obviate this contingency, the Emperor has appointed a high official, formerly Vice President of the Board of Works at Peking, to travel through the districts, and superintend the relief. No further accounts concerning the famine are brought by the present mail, but there appears to be no doubt as to its continued severity. Some very important facts are brought to notice concerning opium in China. It seems that the Peking Gazette of Oct. 13 contains another of the now too familiar decrees forbidding the cultivation of the drug. The last of these fulminations, which appeared on Sept. 26, 1876, passed apparently without notice, and hence the present renewal of the threats and prohibitions. But the curious part of the business is that a fortnight previous only a decree had appeared sentencing to degradation a Mandarin in Kweichow, who it set forth had misappropriated the sum of eleven hundred taels of lekin dues on native opium. By this the official Chinese Gazette distinctly recognises the legality of collecting taxes upon the drug, the cultivation of which is pronounced in another breath to be illegal and immoral. The fact is certainly interesting, as showing the extent to which the Chinese are endeavouring to suppress the cultivation. From Shanghai there is comparatively little news by the present mail, in consequence of its covering the period of Race week. The Autumn Meeting appears to have been spoilt by extremely unfavourable weather. Details are given with reference to the recent Chinese Loan. Kidnapping in the settlements continues, and a somewhat serious case in which a girl was enticed away is related.

In Hong Kong the long-expected estimates have been brought forward. A résumé of the new Ordinance passed in Queensland with regard to Chinese Immigrants is published. A serious gunpowder explosion has taken place on board a junk.

From the Straits Settlements we receive by the present mail the full text of the speech delivered by Sir W. C. F. Robinson, the new Governor of Singapore, at the meeting of the Legislative Council on the 16th ult. The address—which we reproduce in full—has made a favourable impression. A farewell ball has been given to Mr. and Mrs. Adamson, who have returned home by this mail. A fire, which was extinguished before it had attained important dimensions, has occurred near the Tanglin Barracks.

WE give elsewhere the letter which has been written by the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce to the Earl of DERBY in favour of ratifying the Chefoo Convention. It has the merit of not being over long, but it would no doubt carry more weight had the Chamber indicated their reasons for the view which they advocate. They appear to have been simply influenced by a balance of the views which have reached them. This is perhaps to be regretted, as Sir THOMAS WADE, having been recently at Liverpool, could doubtless have given them every information on the subject and aided them in forming an opinion of their own.

THE ALTERED STATE OF THE TEA TRADE.

A CHANGE of a very important character in the nature of the Tea trade, which has been gradually noticeable, has become latterly so much established as to deserve special attention. In former times, and indeed until quite recently, the amount of profit made by the native growers was so large that the fluctuations in the markets here were not sufficient to affect in any material way the quantity of leaf produced and sent forward to the markets. The season might be more or less profitable to the dealers; but the producers still obtained full rates for all that they could pick and prepare; and thus nothing on this side was sufficient to put an end to production in China. In consequence, as might be naturally expected, the markets in China were invariably against the foreign buyers. If the Teas at home lost, the producers and the country dealers could look philosophically upon fluctuations which still left them a handsome profit. As a result of this state of things, the Tea market, however disastrous its state might be, nearly always lacked the benefit of the reaction which ordinarily adjusts other overstocked markets. No cessation of production or shipment took place; and while the foreign merchant bewailed his losses, the up-country dealers accepted with perfect equanimity prices which though death to others were sport to them. Gradually, however, this state of happy independence on the part of the Chinese has become diminished, and there are signs that at last a healthier state of the Tea trade may be anticipated from very unexpected causes. The excessive supplies from China, combined with the large importations of Indian Teas, have had the effect of establishing a permanently lower range of prices. Common Congou, which formerly blushed to be below 10d. a lb., has, until recently, shown itself unabashed at public sales at 7d., and other Teas have fallen in proportion in their average and normal value. This result has not been brought about without much serious loss to the Tea trade; but out of this evil good of a permanent character is likely to arise. A point has, in fact, been reached at which the fluctuations in the market have begun to affect the producers and the Chinese dealers. We read in late advices that the natives have stopped bringing Teas down to the leading markets; and a calculation will show that the range of prices which had become established in the markets here for the past two years is such that Chinese producers themselves will find it difficult to send Teas to meet them without loss, it being well known by those Europeans who have travelled in the Tea districts that ordinary Congou cannot be manufactured for the foreign market inside 8d. a lb., without loss to the producers. The importance of this change, in its bearing upon the healthiness of the trade, cannot be overestimated. The effect—which has in fact been already felt this year—will be, that the production in China instead of continuing practically an unlimited quantity will come more into harmony with the wants of the trade this side, and that a low market here will again have the effect of curtailing supplies, and will thus once more have within itself an element tending to rectify it. This feature in the Tea market will be further increased by the competition with Indian Teas, which have now become so thoroughly established as a staple article of commerce. There can be no doubt that they must always exercise a strong influence upon the ordinary run of blacks from China; while we find that some classes of teas from that country have already been completely ousted by their rivals from India. Green Teas are now becoming a thing of the past in this market; and it is probable that China Teas will be affected in the following rotation by the increasing supplies of Indian, namely:—

(1.) Green Teas.
(3.) Foochow Pekoes.
(4.) Tayshan Congou.
(5.) Red Leaf Congou.
(6.) Souchong.

In short, the probability is that only the Black Leaf Teas will be left to blend with Indian, unless, indeed—as however it would appear too much to hope—the buyers in China will insist upon the producers making a tea which can holds its own against the Indian leaf. Still, however, with those Teas which they will not supersede, the Indian product will unquestionably continue to compete very severely, so that in fact we shall find that the days of the independence of the China Tea growers and dealers must in a short time be considered numbered. China no longer possesses any monopoly, and the profits which the producers there can make will be in future years much more dependent upon the prices that can be realised here than has hitherto been the case. Under such circumstances there is room to hope that the markets here will cease to be so much oversupplied as has hitherto been the case, and that if profits be not so large as they were (when they did occur) in former days, they will be more regular, while on the other hand losses will be less severe and of less frequent occurrence.

JAPANESE FINANCE.

THE latest papers from Japan again bring to notice an unsatisfactory and doubtful state of Japanese financial policy. It appears to be generally understood that the Government is continuing the issue of paper money, but upon what basis and for what special purpose is not known, even to the best-informed natives. A sensible article on the subject is contained in the Kinji-Horon, one of the native papers, which had been informed that the Japanese Government had recently issued paper money to the value of 20,000 yen, and states that this money was to be found in the hands of tradesmen, and that official salaries were being paid in it. The native journal above named naïvely observes that "it is very wrong on the part of the "Government to have issued paper money without any "previous notice to the people." Of this there can be no question whatever, and the Japanese Government will assuredly ruin its credit if it persist in so ill-advised a course. According to the statement published by Mr. MOUNSEY, the Secretary to the British Legation some time back, the financial position of Japan was by no means of a character to make it necessary to resort to extreme measures; and there can be no question that the issue of paper money without due notice—in point of fact making forced loans—is an expedient of a most dangerous character. Its bearing both internally and externally ought to be most carefully considered by the Government. Internally it must, if continued, have the effect of totally paralysing trade, and that in a manner which must always be against the native. In the purchase of imports from other countries they will be forced to pay higher rates to make up for the fall in exchange which will arise in consequence of more money (or rather what passes for money) being placed on the market. In the sale of their exports they will in few cases get higher rates from the foreign buyers, in consequence of the depreciated currency—or at least will do so only after great losses have been already incurred. In this way these fitful issues of paper money, which in point of fact amount to neither more nor less than forced loans made at the absolute will of the Government, must always exercise a most pernicious and dangerous effect upon the trade of the country; while the results of such action externally will, if possible, be even more pernicious. Japan has a fairly good standing at present in the money markets of the world; but if it become known that she is resorting to capricious and unrestrained issue of paper money, her credit must be most seriously impaired; and thus, for the sake of a small immediate advantage, the Japanese Government will run the risk of permanently debarring themselves from the great financial benefits which Japan has hitherto been able to derive from her ability to obtain loans from time to time in European markets. These considerations are so obvious that it can hardly be supposed they have altogether escaped the notice of so shrewd a set of people as Japanese Financial Ministers undoubtedly are; but they appear unfortunately in this as in many other things to be a little too much inclined to follow American example, forgetting that it is possible for a powerful and thoroughly established nation like the United States to do things which it may be very dangerous for a nation like Japan, which is new in regard to its connection with European countries, to attempt. The United States, with its marvellous energy and resources, has got over its financial difficulties, including its paper currency; but it has long recognised the wisdom of doing away with paper, and only resorted to the step after the gravest deliberation, and as a matter of pressing necessity. For Japan to attempt a similar policy will certainly be a most dangerous experiment, and it is to be hoped that she will see the true bearing of the course she seems inclined to enter upon. At the very least, all issues of paper money should be made in the most public manner possible, and due notice be given of them, so that at all events a minimum amount of disturbance to trade may be produced when the paper is put into circulation.

THE COLONY OF SAIGON.

A PAPER, in which the prospects of the French Colony of Saigon are discussed, appears in the Journal du Commerce Maritime, from the pen of M. G. VINSON. He deals with much force and in an evidently impartial spirit with the past history, the present state and the future prospects of the Colony. With respect to the past, M. VINSON advocates a policy in which we imagine he will find very few to follow him, and of the inadvisability of which we think he himself gives the best proof in the paper under notice. At the risk of appearing somewhat "antideluvian," he expresses his regret that the Government did not from the first protect French commerce and the French shipping trade by customs and other dues—which he considers would have been the best way to secure French prosperity and to propagate French commerce, ideas and language. This he thinks would have averted the present state of affairs, which, as is well known to those who have paid attention to the subject, has long been a matter of regret to the French, namely, that the Colony of Saigon has of late become a very painful exemplification of the proverb Sic vos non vobis. At no time, he points out, has Cochin China produced more rice, and at no time has the rice been sought at higher prices than at present; but nevertheless the French do not benefit by this prosperity. Beyond doubt the Asiatics have become enriched, and are daily becoming more enriched; every day comfort and well being increase for them. But it is equally certain that they alone are benefited by this increase of riches, and that the French shipping and local trade scarcely take any part in it. "All our "crops," he says, "are carried off for China, the Philip-"pines and India, by English, American and German "steamers; the French have no steamers in these seas, and "the Messageries Maritimes only carry on the direct and "regular trade." The Government had nothing to do with this, as it could not prevent the substitution of steamers for sailing vessels, or bring French steamers to do what is being done by those of other nations. Export trade is described as being equally unsatisfactory. It is in the hands of the Chinese, who have long been in relation with the Annamites and Cambodians, to whom they are more nearly allied in manners, language, and religion than Europeans can be. Finally, with regard to Insurance and Banking, the bulk of the business is out of the hands of Frenchmen. If the drafts are drawn on Hong Kong they may pass through the French Bank, but if upon Manila, Singapore, or Canton, it is by the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank or some Chinese Bank that the bills are negotiated. All these circumstances are deplored by M. VINSON, and though he holds there is no immediate remedy for this disappointing state of affairs, he considers there is hope for the future in the cultivation of the large and productive lands that can be obtained, and he hails the formation of a Company for this purpose. It is only the initiative period that need be feared. This past, the rest will come "as if by enchantment." Thus he considers there is no reason to despair of the prosperity of the commercial interests of France in Cochin China, but, on the contrary, the Colony, thanks to the policy pursued by Admiral DUPERRE, has entered upon "a "rational way, the initiation of new cultivations more "rich than those hitherto made by the Annamites." Of the advisability of the policy which has been thus inaugurated there can be little doubt but it must be carried out in a spirit very different from the protection which M. VINSON admires in the opening of his article, to give it any chance of success. So far, we think, from its being a source of regret that a liberal commercial policy has been inaugurated in Saigon, it would appear that such limited prosperity as the Colony has hitherto enjoyed is mainly due to its having afforded facilities to those who, as the facts prove, could develop its trade. It is very much open to doubt whether the trade itself could have borne such protective imposts as would have been necessary in order to keep it in the hands of Frenchmen, and by far the wiser course is to endeavour to adopt a liberal policy, so as to attract those who have more enterprise than the French have generally themselves in foreign countries. This we have always understood has been the base line of the policy which h s been recently inaugurated with a view to developing the agricultural resources of Cochin China, and this end will assuredly be best attained by affording to all equal facilities and protection, and thus aiding them in the production of wealth, which may become a profitable source of revenue to the Government.

In the course of a lecture on our relations with Japan Mr. B. Stewart Lane, the secretary to the Japanese Legation, suggests that it is unfair to insist upon the continuance of the present tariff of duties on foreign trade in that country, as while the Japanese are bound by it, England remains free to impose such duties as she thinks fit. He considered it was not equitable that we should charge a duty of about 50 per cent. on tea here, while the Japanese could only charge 5 per cent. on imports into their country. The remarks are worthy of notice in conjunction with the news brought by the last mail from Japan, to the effect that the Japanese Government contemplates demanding a revision of the tariff. The whole subject will, however, have to be very carefully considered in all its bearings before any decision can be arrived at. Whatever view may be ultimately adopted, it will be impossible to deviate widely from the basis of the present tariff, without disturbing trade in such a manner as cannot fail to be dangerous and undesirable.

We hear that the Customs' authorities have not been asleep under the recent Adulteration Act, which, whatever its defects, is sufficient to be put into practical effect in important cases, and is producing some good in stopping parcels of spurious teas which still occasionally find their way to this market. Recently some shipments from Macao of "Tayshan District Leaf"—in which spurious matter was mixed—have been stopped by the Customs as unfit for consumption here. It is to be hoped that this vigilance will have the effect of once for all convincing merchants in China that it is useless to run the risk of purchasing teas of extremely low grade, which, even if not adulterated, are too common for home consumption. It rests entirely with the European buyers to check these practices, as the Chinese will soon cease to bring such teas down, if foreigners refuse to look at them, and recognise the simple fact that "Congee"—that is a mixture of rice and gum—coloured up to represent tea must be dear at any price.

We understand that notwithstanding the urgent representations of General Sir Francis Colborne and the officers engaged in the Perak Campaign no distribution of field allowances or batta money have as yet been made. In our issue of April 16 we reported the answer given by Mr. Hardy, the Secretary of War, in which it will be found that a distinct promise was then made that the officers and troops engaged in that campaign should be awarded the same advantages as those engaged in Abyssinia. We do trust that Mr. Hardy will see at once to the settlement of this matter. Since the Perak campaign the War-office has had comparative leisure, and the delay appears to the public to be quite inexcusable. We may mention that the leave of General Colborne, commander of the forces in Hong Kong and the Straits, and who is now in this country, expires next May.

The Daily News, in noticing the closure of the Woosung Railway, adheres to the position which it has persisten tly taken up, that it was an error of judgment to act without the sanction of the Government, a view of whose sound ness, judging from an ordinary standpoint, there can certainly be no question. The only answer to the argument is that, had that course been adopted, the railway would never have been in existence; and an opportunity of inducing the Chinese to take this step in the direction of progress would have been irrevocably lost. We are glad, however, to find that the Daily News recognises the benefit which the railway will be to the Chinese; and, alluding to the probability that the line may yet be reopened, expresses the opinion that all well-wishers of China cannot fail to hope that this may prove to be the case.

Sir Thomas Wade has shown an apt appreciation of Chinese character in some remarks which he made at Liverpool when speaking, in conjunction with the Bishop of Manchester, upon education He stated, as is undoubtedly the case, that the Chinese system of education fortified the memory, but when a Chinaman deviated from his own groove the system provided him with no authority for solving a new problem. Notwithstanding this tendency of the Chinese mind, it is surprising with what facility Chinese adapt themselves to new circumstances when they see any practical advantage to be derived from doing so.

A remark which is incidentally made in the account given by a Rangoon paper of the journey of Lieut. Gill from Shanghai to Rangoon is worthy of notice, as showing how little there is in the arguments of those who constantly urge that European civilisation will be a detriment, instead of a boon, to Asiatic nations. Comparing Native and British Burmah, Lieut. Gill and Mr. Mesney, by whom he was joined in the later part of his journey, state that the cultivated fields and contented looks of the people in the latter contrasted markedly with what they saw in the former.

We understand that Admiral Ryder who has been relieved by Admiral Hillyar on the China Station will return to England by the Pacific route and may probably call at the Russian ports en route. The members of his Staff are on board the P. and O. steamer for Southampton.

The appeal case of De Bussche v. Alt has been further postponed, and will not come on again till next month. The case of the appellant had been concluded before the last adjournment.

Correspondence.

THE CHEFOO CONVENTION.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

Sir,—I have read the letter signed "A China Merchant," also the letter of Messrs. Michie and Barnes, and I remain entirely unconvinced that manufactured goods are placed in any worse position than under the present treaty; on the contrary, I submit it is notorious that the Chinese have rightly or wrongly levied lekin on these goods in the so-called concessions for many years past, and therefore the exemption now secured for this local trade is decidedly to our advantage; particularly in the case of Shanghai, where at least three-fourths of the native traders in manufactured goods live in the concession. As to lekin outside the limits of the concessions it may continue to be imposed as at present, but it is evident that dealers will at once avail themselves of the immunity enjoyed in the settlements should any but trifling levies be asked. Goods in transit are protected by Art. 28 of the Treaty of Tientsin, which is confirmed and materially enlarged by Art. 4 section 3 of the Chefoo Convention. If traders neglecting these regulations send their goods away from the concessions without paying the 2½ per cent. transit duty, entitling them to the transit pass, and then find they are subject to lekin or other dues, they have only themselves to blame. I now live on the Mediterranean, where Italy divides from France, and have this very day been unpleasantly reminded that China is not the only country which collects a tax on goods varying at different places, and not, I believe, authorised by the treaties with Great Britain—I allude to the octroi, which in some respects resembles lekin.—I am, &c., Palazzo Orengo, near Mentone, Thomas Hanbury.

Literature, Science, &c.

China, Historical and Descriptive. By Charles H. Eden. London: Marcus Ward and Co., Chandos-street.—This little book conveys an excellent general idea of China and its people, and although it does not present anything very new to those already acquainted with the country, it will at the same time be perused by many as a pleasant reminder of old familiar scenes and events. Mr. Eden gives a sketch of the Taiping Rebellion, and reproduces a harrowing description of the barbarous cruelties perpetrated by the Imperialists on the rebel prisoners. He blames England for having aided in the suppression of the Taiping Rebellion; but we think overlooks the fact that similar if not worse atrocities were perpetrated by the rebels, and that so far from countenancing them, Colonel Gordon did all in his power to prevent them, and ultimately threw up his commission on account of the treachery displayed towards the Rebel chiefs on the capture of Soochow. It is quite open to question whether our interference was not a political mistake; but England cannot be branded with the responsibility of atrocities which it was impossible for her to prevent. The illustrations in the book are truthful and well executed; but in one or two instance the subjects are not very well selected. For instance, the China woman given at page 170 wears a handkerchief, an article not worn generally in China, and adopted only by a limited number of boat-women and others at the Treaty ports and at Hong Kong, where cheap handkerchiefs from Manchester in imitation of the native fabric, can be obtained.

Our Opium Trade with China. By SAMUEL S. MANDER. London: Simpkin, Marshall and Co.—The above pamphlet is a reproduction of a series of letters which were some time back written by its author in a local newspaper, and which will be recollected by our readers. Mr. Manders is a strong anti-opiumist, and earnestly advocates the total suppression of the traffic.

Sutton's Amateur Horticulture Guide.—The number of this Annual for 1878 is, though taking the modest form of a trade pamphlet, really a work of art, the drawings of the various flowers and vegetables (many of them coloured) being most excellently executed. The information which the book contains will be invaluable to the increasing number of amateur horticulturists in China, Japan and other parts of the Far East, where many of the plants and vegetables noticed have already been successfully introduced.

CHINA AND KASHGAR.

Advices received at St. Petersburg announce the arrival of the Chinese General Tso-tsoun-tsan at Kotubi, a place between the towns of Manas and Sheeko. Further progress has been arrested by an epidemic among his troops, which is stated to have decimated them. The disease, called by the Kashgarians "vuoba," has a great affinity to cholera, and was brought with the army from the captured Doungan fortress of Toorfan. Bek-Kuli-Beg, being fearful of catching the contagion from the enemy, has stopped his march for a while. Unless further reinforcements arrive for the Chinese, the Emir believes that disease will soon reduce the disparity of force caused by the breechloaders with which the Celestial troops are armed, and he will then be in a good position to repel the invasion. Should Tso-tsoun-tsan experience a defeat he would have considerable difficulty in effecting his escape to China, as the whole population of the subjugated Doungan district would rise up against him. The Chinese General continues his horrible atrocities at Manas and Toorfan unchecked.

Intelligence from Turkestan announces the arrival at Tashkant of Mahmoud-Khan, the envoy from the Emir of Kashgaria, charged with a special mission to General Kaufman. The envoy is accompanied by Mirza-Mirkazeem, who was attached to the Kashgarian Embassy despatched by the late Yakoob Beg, and who is stated to speak Russian tolerably well.

OVERLAND FROM CHINA TO BURMAH.

The Rangoon Daily Review publishes an account of a journey recently made by Lieutenant Gill, R.E., from Shanghai to Rangoon. The journey had no official character, and was made by Lieutenant Gill on his own responsibility. The Review says:—

Shanghai was left in February last, and the journey to Hankow made in a steamer. From Hankow Lieutenant Gill went to Chung King at the invitation of Mr. Baber, and then a trip was made northwards for a little distance. At Tsi-liu-tsing the fire-wells were seen. These wells go down some 3,000 feet below the surface, and an inflammable gas finds its way out of them. It is supposed the strata has a bed of petroleum under it. There are brine wells also in the place, and these go down to about the same depth. The natives manufacture excellent salt out of the brine. From Tsi-liu-tsing Mr. Gill went to Cheng-tu, from thence to Sung-pan-ting, on the borders of Coconoor, and on to Liung-nganfu. The return to Chenn-tu was made by a different route. Here Mr. Gill remained till he was joined by Mr. Mesny, of the Chinese service, and then the two began the long, perilous, and arduous journey to Burmah overland. Chung-tu was left on July 10, and on the 25th of the same month Tachien-lu was reached, distant about 291 miles. Here the travellers met a body of Roman Catholics, and a French Roman Catholic Bishop, from whom they received much kindness. After a halt of about a fortnight the station was left for Li-tang, which was made in two days. The next station was Ba-thang, some 307 miles from Ta-chin-lu, and this was reached on August 25. Ba-thang is almost in the thirtieth degree of latitude, and quite on the borders of Thibet. From Ba-thang the travellers went to Atun-tze, a distance of one hundred and seventy miles, which they reached on Sept. 5. Atun-tze was left on Sept. 9, and Talifu reached on the 21st of the same month, a distance of three hundred and sixty-one miles being traversed. From Talifu the next station was Man-wyne, which they got to on Oct. 24. Bhamo was reached on the 1st of this month, Mr. Cooper kindly sending on his boat to meet the intrepid touriste. Mr. Gill speaks of the natives as quiet and far from hostile. But he describes that part of the journey from the point at which he was joined by Mr. Mesny as very arduous, graphically comparing it to "continually going up a staircase." Roads there are none, the way consisting of mere tracks through a rocky, mountainous country. In the neighbourhood of Ba-thang ranges were crossed some 15,600 feet high. The scenery in this direction, and indeed all through, is said to be very pretty. The most common tree near Ba-thang was the pine, which in some places was seen in magnificent forests, and the trunks of many of which were about three feet in diameter. On their way down from Mandalay it is said these gentlemen were much struck at the difference between the two political sections of the country—Native and British Burmah. In the latter the cultivated fields, smiling homesteads, and contented looks of the people offered a striking contrast to what obtained in the other.

OUR RELATIONS WITH JAPAN.

The last of a series of four lectures upon "War and Commerce," in connection with the Trades Guild of Learning, was delivered on the 17th inst., by Mr. B. Stewart Lane, the secretary to the Japanese Legation, at the Vestry Hall, King's-road, Chelsea, the subject being "Our Relations with Japan." Professor Leoni Levi, the chairman, introduced the lecturer, who, after glancing at the history of Japan and the characteristics of the country and people, referred to the treaty of 1858 negotiated by Lord Elgin. He praised the moderation of the treaty as a temporary arrangements, but thought that the time had arrived when it should be revised on a more equitable basis to the advantage of both countries. Consular jurisdiction at the time the treaty was signed was a necessity, and its partial continuance was still required, but it was, he urged, unfair to insist upon the continuance of the tariff by the Japanese, as it prevented changes by them, whilst England was at liberty to act freely. In 1858 this country charged an import duty on tea amounting to 150 per cent. on its cost, whilst a duty equal to 50 per cent. was still maintained. The tea exported by Japan during the year 1875 was valued at over $7,000,000, or upwards of one-third of this total exports from the country. The Japanese were, however, restricted to charging only 5 per cent. on imports from the country. It was an excusable error on the part of foreigners to suppose that the murders of Englishmen in Japan were attributable to the action of the Tycoon, the fact being that the opposition to foreigners had arisen from a wish to create difficulties, in order to bring about the fall of the Tycoonate, which had long been the aim of many of the feudal lords. Whilst referring to the circumstances which had led to the bombardment of Kagosima and the capture of the forts of Simonosaki, he condemned the course which had been adopted, particularly in regard to the indemnities extracted from the Government of the Tycoon. Passing to our relations with Japan, he called attention to the progress made by that country, and referring to the opening up of the country to foreign trade he asserted that it would take place so soon as by a proper revision of existing arrangements it could safely be done without exposing the Japanese Government to difficulties with foreigners. The Government, he thought, should have power to settle cases which did not involve the liberty of English subjects. A policy of conciliation which would inspire confidence was required on the part of this country, and towards this end he suggested several measures. In conclusion, he expressed his disbelief in the unmanly prediction of Mr. Bright, that the Indian Empire would soon cease to be under the control of England, expressing his conviction, however, that the great Asian problem would soon have to be faced, and that whatever form it assumed we should be wise to make, by our conduct, friends, instead of enemies, amongst the Eastern nations, so that whatever our shortcomings might have been in the past, the beneficial influences of the British Empire might be felt in the future.

THE CEYLON COMPANY.

The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of this Company was held on the 18th inst., at the offices, Palmerston-buildings; Mr. Lawford Ackland in the chair. The Secretary having read the notice calling the meeting, the report was taken as read.

The Chairman said that although the directors had not thought it right to propose a dividend, yet the report was not altogether unsatisfactory, since a fair profit had been realised on the Ceylon branch of the company. But, as stated in the report, the results of the operations in the Mauritius were not yet known, and that was the reason the directors had considered it prudent to abstain from paying an interim dividend. In regard to Mauritius the fact was that one estate which owed a large sum of money had turned out disappointingly, and would add to the loss. Two other agencies would also add to their debts in all probability, but the nine others would pay their expenses and reduce their debts. The company's own assets in Mauritius had yielded considerable profits. The price of sugar in Mauritius up to the last advices had been very good, being rather higher than in the same period of last year, which was, of course, satisfactory. Three of their estates had been sold in Ceylon. One, the Keenakella, had realised a profit of about £11,000. The other two had been taken over in payment of a debt, and had yielded very little profit. However, they had been sold for more than they had been valued at. The present price of coffee in London was very good, probably owing to the certainty that the crop would be an exceeding small one in the coming year. In Mauritius they had sold the Auchendrayne estate, but the money had not as yet been paid. However, the company still held the estate as security. They had also sold their Albion Dock shares, which, although they had yielded a good profit during the time the company had held them, were not exactly the property a company of that kind ought to invest in; and having an opportunity of getting rid of them at their full amount the directors had sold them. He concluded by moving the adoption of the report.

Mr. P. F. Robertson seconded the motion. Mr. Maitland considered the report as being on the whole satisfactory. Mr. Butler Johnstone thought that the shareholders had no reason to be satisfied with the management, and unless there was some change for the better before the next meeting he would be disposed to move for a committee of inquiry.

The report was then adopted, and the proceedings terminated.

Monetary and Commercial.

The letters of allotment of the Chinese Loan of 1877 were posted Thursday. The total amount of subscriptions for London and China has, it is stated, amounted to nearly £4,000,000 sterling.

The Stock Exchange Committee have appointed the 28th inst., a special settling day in the Four and a-Half per Cent. Debentures (£100,000) of the Straits Settlements (Singapore, Penang, and Malacca) Government, which are to be marked in the official list.

The final arrangements for the carrying out of the works of the Hong Kong Sugar Refining Company have been successfully completed.

Considerable transactions in Tea have taken place during the past week, and quotations are now falling into their relative proportions in place of the irregularity so long one of the most unsatisfactory features of the market. The imports for the present month will be exceptionally small, and will not reach ten million pounds, whereas last year during this month the import reached twenty millions. The excess of deliveries for the twelve months over 1876 will reach the unprecedented figure of ten million pounds, which is accounted for by the large shipments to Russia, and which will continue for some time yet. The proposed resumption of duty on Tea to the extent of 10 cents per lb. in the United States has caused some little inquiry for low Greens and Ooloongs for shipment to that country. The latest telegrams from China speak of an absolute deficiency of 15,000,000 lbs. in the exports; and the total receipts are likely to be decreased by 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 lbs. more as compared with last year by the fact that no Japan leaf will be received, the losses reaching from 40 to 50 per cent. on that imported. The political events of the last few days are likely to play an important part in the future supplies of the leaf, and are commencing to attract attention on the part of the trade.

For the week ended the 15th inst. the total quantity of tea delivered from the bonded warehouses in London showed a falling from the previous week of 514,944 lbs., or 12⅞ per cent., the total being 3,485,693 lbs., of which 2,193,309 lbs. was for home consumption; 807,423 lbs. was removed coastwise, 380,153 lbs. was exported, 101,088 lbs. was sent coastwise for exportation, and 3,720 lbs. was for ships' stores. During the week the amount paid as duty was £54,022, against £60,000, a decrease of £5,865, or 9⅝ per cent.

The tone of the Silk market has continued upwards, and a fair business has been done at very firm rates, especially in Japans, in which large transactions have taken place at an advance of 1s. In Cantons there has been a good inquiry for No. 4 at 13s. 6d. Within the last day or two the market has been less active, consequent upon the adverse political news; but apart from such extraneous influence, there is no doubt that it would continue firm and upward.

Notwithstanding the heavy stocks in Shanghai, the shipments of iron to that port continue upon an extremely large scale, and it is to be feared that they will be sufficient to do away with all chance of the markets giving satisfactory results.

In the Produce Markets the general condition of trade is without improvement, and most articles remain flat, the present unfavourable aspect of political affairs having an adverse influence upon many. Coffee has been less active, and has declined 2s. per cwt. from the highest point of last week. Sugar exhibits a slight recovery from the recent depression. Cargoes of new Burmah Rice have been sold at a decline upon previously current values. Tin has slightly declined, Straits being quoted £66 10s., Banca £71 per ton. Gambier, Pepper, and Spices show a declining tendency. Sago and Tapioca are quiet but firm.

Our readers will be glad to learn that recent telegrams from Singapore quote gambier "new terms." It is to be hoped, therefore, that the action of the Singapore merchants, and the support given to it here, have been successful in putting an end to what had become a scandal and disgrace to the trade, and that the last has now been heard of the frightful adulteration of this article. We are also informed that a telegram was received on Thursday to the effect that the stoppage in business was practically at an end, and that the dealers had given in to the extent of delivering the gambier and pepper at the godowns.

The Leesh River Tea Company (Limited) is announced, with a capital of £15,000, in shares of £10 each, it having been formed for the purpose of acquiring land and growing tea in the Western Dooars, a district lying at the foot of the Bhootan Hills, in Bengal; the Northern Bengal Railway, just opened, having brought it within forty-eight hours of Calcutta, thus giving it great advantages over both Assam and Cachar. The Western Dooars are stated to be especially suitable, as regards climate, soil, and facilities of labour, for the cultivation of tea. The company has acquired about 1,300 acres of land on the junction of the Leesh and Teesta River on leases from the Government of India, at small progressive rents amounting in the fifth year to 12 annas (about 1s. 4d.) per acre, the leases being renewable every twenty years at a rent not exceeding the rate of rent paid per acre in the neighbourhood at the time for the highest class of land under ordinary arable cultivation. Lieut.-Colonel Money has been appointed managing director.

The market for Bar Silver was for a few days very steady at 55¾d. It has since become somewhat firmer, and business has been done at 53⅞d., and 54d. may be quoted as the nearest price. Mexican Dollars, owing to higher exchanges from China, have also improved in value, and have been placed at 53d. per oz.

TEA.

Messrs. Layton and Co.'s report upon Thursday's sales is as follows:—2,672 packages were sold without reserve as under:—1,157 half-chests Congou, at 9d. to 1s. 6d. per lb.; 282 flowered boxes Congou, 11d. to 11½d.; 325 flowered boxes Pecco Congou, 11d. to 11½d.; 109 half-chests and cases Gunpowder, 1s. 5½d. to 2s. 11½d.; 11 half-chests Imperial, 6¾d. to 8¾d.; 65 half-chests Young Hyson, 6½d. to 1s. 0½d.; 31 half-chests and cases Hyson, 7½d. to 2s. 4½d.; 692 boxes Ping Suey Gunpowder, 10½d. to 1s. 10½d. Good common black leaf in matted half-chests sold at 9d. to 9¾d.. but 355 half-chests medium ex "Khiva," at 10½d. to 10¾d., were a penny under rates in the private market. Good qualities of red leaf were not competed for, and went below valuations and market quotation. The remainder of the sale comprised fine lines of Moyune and Ping Suey, the latter, quality considered, sold at low prices. The usual auction will not be held next week. In looking back to our series of unprotected sales the chief feature to notice since arrival of the new season's teas is the want of competition, and the almost unvaried low scale of prices realised for all classes except common compared with private sales.

SILK.

The market has been active, and prices of all descriptions have advanced. The deliveries continue on a fairly satisfactory scale. The deliveries from 1st to 19th inst. inclusive have been:—China, 1,432 bales; Canton, 346 bales; Japan, 583 bales; Bengal, 56 bales; Total, 2,417 bales.

COFFEE.—The proposal to increase the duties in Austria having been indefinitely postponed, the demand on that account has entirely disappeared, and as the effect of the improved condition of French politics has been counteracted by the anticipation that this country may be compelled to go to war, the market has gradually become depressed, and prices have generally given way. Light supplies of Plantation Ceylon at auction have found a very slow sale at gradually declining prices, closing about 2s. lower for the past week; new crop, after selling much above its value in relation to other kinds (middling to fine at 109s. to 117s. 6d., with bold at 119s. to 129s.) has, with slightly increased supplies, quickly given way, middling to fine closing at 105s. 6d. to 114s. Only a small business has been done in Native, good ordinary at 82s. 6d. Quotations are:—Plantation triage 78s. to 89s., small 90s. to 98s., low middling 100s. to 102s., middling 103s. to 106s., good middling to bold dull 107s. to 112s., pea-berry 106s. 6d. to 112s.; new crop small 90s. to 97s. 6d., low middling 100s. 6d. to 105s., middling to fine bright 105s. 6d. to 114s., good to very fine bold coloury 114s. to 128s., pea-berry 110s. to 118s. 6d.; Native Ceylon, ordinary mixed, 82s. 6d. Of other East India 144 bags pale Indan Manila sold at 84s. and 149 bags Singapore, picked Bally, were bought in at 79s. per cwt. It has been resolved that the public sales should close on the 20th inst., to be resumed on Jan. 3.

COTTON.—During the week gradually increasing quietness has prevailed, sales have fallen off, and last week's advance has been lost

Digitized by Google

The market closes with a dull tone, more particularly for future American, in which the bulk of the business is transacted, and quotations are slightly cheaper than a fortnight ago. The sales for the fortnight have been about 29,500 bales. On the spot :—Tinnevelly 6d. to 6¼d., good fair to good ; Western Madras 5⅞d. to 5⅞d., fair to good ; Coconada 5⅞d. to 5¼d., good fair ; Dhollera 5 5-16d., fair ; Scinde 5¼d. to 5½d., good fair to good ; Salem 5¼d. ; Bengal 4 13-16d. to 5¼d., fair to good ; Rangoon 4¾d. to 5⅜d., fair to good. For arrival :—Tinnevelly 5⅝d. to 6d. August to November, good fair ; Western Madras, 5 3 16d. to 5¼d., April-June, good fair new ; Coconada 5⅛d. to 5¼d., September to February, fair red.

CHINA STRAW PLAIT.—At auction 204 bales sold at full prices, chiefly White, at £10 5s. to £13 10s., good and fine qualities £14 5s. to £22 5s., with cord edge at £13 10s. to £19 5s., Rustic £8 10s. per bale.

CHINA FEATHERS.—At auction of 215 bales 30 bales sold (without reserve) at 2¾d. to 8½d., one lot 2s. 11d.

COCOANUT OIL has been steady, Cochin at £43, Ceylon in pipes at £38 10s.

GAMBIER.—Of the large supply of 2,555 bags free cubes offered by auction, about 1,000 bags sold at easier rates, fine pale 29s., chiefly sea-damaged, first-class blocky to good pale Java sort 25s. 6d. to 27s., 368 bales pressed ditto bought in at 26s. 6d., 106 broken bales and 6 tons loose block bought in at 18s. 6d. per cwt. Two tons (loose and broken bales) chiefly sold at 16s. 9d. to 17s. 3d., 465 bags cubes bought in at 28s. to 29s.

HEMP.—The market for Manila is steady, with a fair business doing privately at firm rates. A small supply at auction was partly disposed of at steady prices. Of 277 bales offered, 165 bales sold, fine brown Cebu at £26, good fair to good at £26 10s. to £27, the remainder being bought in, including fine white Lupiz at £65.

HIDES.—At the periodical public sales Thursday, a small quantity and indifferent assortment of East India in the hair was brought forward at these, the concluding sales of the year. The Bengal offered were chiefly remnants from previous catalogues, and those sold brought late rates. There was a slightly improved demand for Bombay and Kurrachee, and prices were frequently ¼d. per lb. above those of the previous sales. Cochin, likewise, were in rather better request. Singapore Ox and Cow could not be disposed of at last sales' rates, and were mostly bought in. China Ox and Cow were only partly sold without change in value. Of 2,775 dry China offered 275 sold : heavy average 14⅜ lb. 7¾d. ; extra heavy, average 22½ lb. 7½d. ; kips, average 7⅞ lb. 7d. per lb. Buffalo : Singapore were in good request and brought full prices, particularly the lighter averages and level Hides. For Penang slaughtered the biddings fell short of late value by ½d. per lb., and none were sold. Low prices were accepted for the Rangoon. Bombay, Kurrachee, and Cochin brought a slight advance. Of 5,504 Singapore and Penang offered 5,088 sold : Fair to good, first heavy, average 25⅛ to 33⅛ lbs., 5⅝d. to 5⅞d. ; second heavy, average 25⅛ to 30¾ lbs., 4⅝d. to 4¾d. ; first light, average 14⅝ lbs., 6¼d. ; heavy, average 27 lbs., 5⅜d. ; light, average 9⅜ to 12¼ lbs., 5¾d. to 6¼d. ; ordinary, first heavy, average 31½ to 41⅜ lbs., 4⅝d. to 5⅛d. per lb. Of 1,200 Rangoon 468 sold : Light and small, average 8½ to 15⅜ lbs., 5⅜d. ; heavy, average 39 lbs., 4¾d. ; thirds, 3¾d. per lb.

JAPAN WAX.—288 cases offered at auction were bought in, bold saucer 55s., squares 52s.

PEPPER.—Black : A moderate business has been done privately at 3 3-16d. for Penang, and 3½d. to 3 9-16d. for Singapore. A total of 3,171 bags at the public sales went off slowly, and only a small part sold at easier rates ; of 1,982 bags Singapore 870 bags sold, sound at 3½d., first-class sea-damaged at 3⅜d. to 3½d., 1,189 bags Penang bought in at 3¼d. After the sale 400 bags Singapore were sold at 3½d. White remains very quiet. Only 80 bags Singapore were brought to auction, of which 50 bags fair sold at 6d.

PLUMBAGO.—107 barrels Ceylon dust partly sold at 9s. to 9s. 6d. per cwt., being firmer. 128 barrels (from the Cape) sold, good small lump at 13s. 3d. to 13s. 6d., dust 8s. 6d.

RATTANS.—At auction 80 tons were partly sold, Penang at £20, Singapore £12 2s. 6d. to £23 2s. 6d., including first-class sea-damaged.

RICE.—The market has been quiet, but about 4,000 tons new Burmah have been sold, February-March-April shipment, basis Rangoon, at 8s. 10½d. open charter, or 8s. 9d. London ex ship. A steamer cargo of new crop Rangoon has been sold for spring shipment at about 9s. 7½d. open charter. At auction about 10,000 bags badly-damaged Bassein, per A. D. Cooper, were sold from £1 17s. 6d. to £3 10s. per ton. For arrival 100 tons Necransie, indirect shipment from Calcutta, have been sold at 9s. tale quale.

SUGAR.—The market has been characterised by a steadier demand for common brown as well as better refining kinds, and prices are firmer. The business in East Indian descriptions has been as follows :—On the 14th inst. in auction 914 bags 652 baskets low to fair brown Native Penang were bought in at 14s. to 14s. 6d., but 100 baskets afterwards sold at 14s. 8,161 bags China were bought in above the value, clayed brown at 17s. to 19s., yellow at 20s. On the 15th 2,000 bags brown China were sold at 16s. 6d. On the 17th 300 baskets brown Native Penang sold at 14s. 3d. On the 18th, in auction, of 1,220 bags grainy grocery Penang, 200 bags sold at 25s 6d. Privately 4,000 bags Formosa China sold at 14s. 6d. ; also 5,000 bags strong China at 18s. 6d. On the 20th privately 500 bags grocery grainy Penang sold at 25s. 6d., and 500 bags common brown Native at 14s. The floating cargo per Windsbrant, 2,100 baksets Java, No. 13½, sold at 25s. for France.

SPICES.—Cinnamon : 64 boxes China coarse quill were bought in at 6d. Cinnamon Chips : 479 bags Ceylon bought in at 4½d. to 5½d. Cloves : No sales. Nutmegs : Fine bold continue firm, but medium and small are rather easier ; 22 cases Penang were chiefly sold, extra bold, average 60 nuts to the lb. at 5s., 74's at 4s., 90's at 3s. 2½., 100's at 2s. 5d. Of 52 cases Java 25 cases sold, 71's at 4s. 1d. to 4s. 2d., 140's at 1s. 9d. to 1s. 10½d., defective at 9d. to 1s. 2d. ; 10 cases Wild Java sold at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d., inferior at 10d., in shell at 9½d. Mace continues dull, and of 8 cases Java only 3 cases wormy and ordinary were sold at 1s. to 1s. 9d., 4 cases ordinary Java bought in at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 9d., 1 case Wild Java sold at 4½d. per lb.

SAGO.—At public sale 878 bags met only lower offers, and were all bought in ; small, at 17s. 6d. ; medium, at 19s. ; grey to good large at 22s. to 23s. ; except 50 bags sea-damaged small, which sold at 15s. for first-class.

SAGO FLOUR.—880 bags Borneo were bought in at 17s., excepting 110 bags damaged, which were sold at 15s. 6d. to 16s. for first-class.

TAPIOCA.—The auctions comprised 1,166 bags Singapore, which were chiefly held firmly and bought in at 3d., only about 220 bags finding buyers ; ordinary grey, at 2½d. to 2⅝d. ; fair, at 2⅝d. to 2¾d. Pearl : Of 137 bags offered 75 bags good bullets sold at 28s. to 28s. 6d., being cheaper ; the remainder seed bought in at 24s. Flour : 137 bags of old import bought in at 1⅞d.

TIN.—The market has continued quiet, and prices exhibit a slight decline for the week ; current quotations are as follows :—Straits on the spot and afloat £66 10s., Banca £71, Billiton £68 per ton.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

Early in the week the market was inactive, although more inquiry for China makes of Goods and Yarns was apparent. At the close political matters seem to be adversely influencing the market all through, and the tone has been dull though not depressed. The moderate amount of business done shows prices tolerably steady, instances of concessions on producers' quotations being rare.

TONITE, OR COTTON POWDER.

THE SAFEST, STRONGEST, AND CHEAPEST OF ALL EXPLOSIVES.

Recommended to MINERS, PIT SINKERS, QUARRYMEN, and CONTRACTORS as the MOST EFFICIENT and ECONOMICAL BLASTING AGENT ever invented.

Results of practical experience show a saving of from 15 to 20 per cent. over the strongest explosives previously in use.

It saves labour in drilling holes, as a less number of holes are needed.

It does not require thawing, but is ready for use at all temperatures and in all climates.

It can also be advantageously used in breaking up boulders, extracting stumps, removing wrecks, exploding torpedoes, and for submarine purposes in general, as well as for signal lights and fog signals for ships.

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.
